The restitution by George-W. Perkins to the New York Life Insurance company of $45,019 which includes the principal sum and interest that was contributed to the Roosewelt campaign fund by that institution, leaves Chairman Corietion, Treasurer Billss and other Republican managers in a worse light than before. Mr. Perkins in returning the noney says: "The payment was made without any hought on the part of the president cripised of personal advantage but solely in the belief that it was for the best and broades in the belief that it was for the best and broades in these insurance affairs of J. P. Mor gan and some hollited favors must have been expects. In June 10 of the Republican leaders, for it is all bosh to say "it was for the best and broades interests of the policy in the contribution. How can it be explained otherwise that the officials and finant ciers who contributed the New York Life and other companies were so anx lous to contribute the Republican interests of the policy holders," many of whom were Democratis and opposed to the election of Mr. Roosevelt "What is the secret connection between the Roosevelt campaign fund and now again, to the life insurance company with the evident intention of shielding the lepublican leaders from making restitution themselves? Mr. Perkins dip into the inside workings of the Republican machine secuns to have been as expensive and unfortunate for him as for Mr. Hacon, that other partner of J. H. Morgan whom Mr. Roosevelt and the revents do not always agree with the Irets.

The Psalmist over and over vows.

Jephthah must be commended for his recognition of the fact Jephthah must be commended for his recognition of the fact that the success of his campaign depended upon the favor and help of God.

To Jephthah must be conceded a sincere spirit of devotion and worship. But these virtues could not save him from the terrible mistakes which come from ignorance and superstition.

Jephthah made the awful blunder of supposing that the favor of God could be bought.

And he made the other and more common mistake of bringling God down to the level of human conceptions.

more common mistake of bringlang God down to the level of human conceptions.

In the rash vow of Jephthah may be traced the influence of the heathen practices about him.
Human sacrifice was made to the heathen gods. Would he do less in seeking the favor of the God he worshiped?
How little he understood God. How imperfect was his conception of what God required in the way of worship and service.

Perfect worship and perfect service can only come from perfect understanding of God.

And we must not forget that it is easier to promise than it is to fulfill.

Jephthah under the thrill and the enthusiasm of that forward movement against the enemy piedged to God that which was not his right to give and that which would not honor God in the giving.

Too often is the piedge made to God under the impulse of the moment without due thought as to our right to give or the will-ingees of God to receive the gift.

But let us not confuse the vow thus made with the one which is made while communing with God in the mountaintope experiences where the soul mounts the spiritual heights and aspires after richer and better things in the grace and fullness of Christ. There the soul may pledge its deeper consecration, its fuller devotion, and then come down to the commone down to the commone toward if the three to pay the vow which it has made.

But delay to make thy vow, then haste thou to its fulfillment.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

JEPHTHAH was more than pleased with the way—in which he—hadbeen received by the people upon his return from the land of Tab. It was only too evident that they trusted him implicitly and—expected—him—to—lead them to victory against the Ammon ites who had for years so sorely op pressed them. When the deputation from—Glead had first come to—him implicitly and—expected—him—to—lead them to victory against the Ammon ites who had for years so sorely op pressed them. When the deputation from—Glead had first come to—him implicitly and the had also had he had doubted their entire sincerity, in spite of the positive assurances given him that they would loyally support him in all that he add.—Dat as he had gone throughout—the country of Gilead and Manasseh meeting with the most enthusiastic welcome, his spirits had rises and his condidence grown, mail!—as he walted at Mispeth, the place appointed for the assembling of the army, there came over him an elation of spirits that made success seem more than ever certain.

It was during these enthusiastic lays of preparation for the coming conflict that an Ammonite spy was brought into camp. He had been captured—while endeavouries to get information—concerning—the army—while lephthah was reliaing and were eage-y-creparing to enter Gliead.

"For days," boasted the captured spy, 'the people have been making valive offerings to the gods of the Ammonities and the was only yesterday that the captain of the host of the Ammonities to win their favor in the coing entitle, and it was only yesterday that the captain of the host of the Ammonities and captain of the lost of the Ammonities to win their favor in the coing entitle, and it was only yesterday that the captain of the host of the Ammonities and captain of the lost of the Ammonities and the said of the Ammonities make a layer the favor in the coing entitle, and it was only yesterday that the captain of the lost of the Ammonities and captain of the lost of the Ammonities and captain of the lost of the Ammonities make and

ROAD TO SUCCESS

MERCHANTS MUST ADVERTISE

"Fight Fire with Fire" and the Dol-lars Now Going Cityward Will Stay in the Home Community.

Stay in the Home Community.

The merchant who would wage successful warfare against mail-order competition should study mail-order methods. The same tactics that takes the dollar out of the community will keep it at home.

And what are mail-order methods. The keynote of it all may be found in the one word—publicity. The mail-order house advertises. It does not advertise better goods at less money than the home merchant gives, but it advertises persistently. It puts its proposition before the public constantly. It recognizes no dull season in its campaign for publicity. It never tets up.

Does it pay to advertise?

The more than $2.96,000,000 that finds its way to the Chicago mail-order houses each year is garnered by a campaign, of advertising. You, Mr. Local Merchast, teltin, and varshift, that you can sell the same goods for that you can sell the same goods for the same, or less money, than the mail-order man gets the business.

Why do they get it? Because they advertise.

They not only advertise, but they advertise in your field, and they advertise in your field provided to the contract of the contract of the contract of the contract of the city mail-order man built at the expense of the local community, but we know absolutely the value of publicity and we know the mail-order houses will capture the dolars eight in the public what they can buy and at whatter.

Farland displayed the greatest of pluek by riding on to Victor after suffering the Injury, although he said upon arriving, here that he felt several times that he must give up. Knowing, however, what difficulty would attend any attempt to dismount, and how well nigh impossible it would he for him to remount in the event that he succeeded in getting safely off his horse, the ranchman gritted his teeth and kept on. After having his leg set hy a surgeon of this city, Farland collapsed and it was late in the afteraono before he was alic to proceed homeward in a carriage, the accident having happened early in the morning.

TRY DR. WILLIAMS: PINK PILLS FOR STOMACH TROUBLE.

Convincing Evidence Supported by a Gurantee That Must Convince The Most Skeptical.

Dr. Williams Pink Pills are a doctor's prescription, used by an eminent practitioner, and for nearly a generation known as a reliable household remody throughout the United States. Needless to say, no advertised medicine could retain popular favor for so long a portion without having great merit and it is the invaluable curative properties of the pills that have made them a standard remedy in every civilized country in the world. Added to this is the absolute guarantee that the pills contain no harmful drug, opiate, narcotle or situmiant. A recent evidence of their efficacy is found in the statement of Mrs. N. B. Wintley, of Boxley, Ark, who says:

"I had suffered for a good many years from stomach trouble. For a long time I was subject to bad spells of faintness and lack of breath accompanied by an indescribable feeding that seemed to start in my stomach. Whenever I was an indescribable feeding that seemed to start in my stomach. Whenever I was subject to but you first the spells would come on. They decined frequently but did not last very long.

Will Be Found Good Change from the Het Biscults That Are the Staple Furnishings of the American Table.

No American table is complete without hot bread or bisquit of some sort. Abroad one never sees them, as they are not thought to benefit the digestion. The English watters and crumpets are the nearest approach to our hot cakes. When properly ande there is nothing better. The following net two English recipes for making them:

cur not cares. When properly sands there is nothing better. The following are two English recipes for making them:

Yorkshire Muffins.—Take three pounds and a half of flom, half an ounce of sail, one quart of water, one gill of yeast or its equivalent in a yeast cake dissolved in warm water; best together for 20 minutes and then let them rise to the top of the bowl in which they have been niked.

Heat them down a second time; turn them out on a bed of flour and with a knife and spoon make them up; when the iron is hot sift a little flour on it, which will turn brown.

Lay the muffins on it; when blistered on the top turn out; when brown on the other side they will be sufficiently baked.

Grumpts.—Heat two eggsa light mix with them one quart of warm milk and water, one large spoonful of yeast, beat in as much flour as will make them quite thick; have a brisk fire and the griddle hot; fall—muffin rings with the mixture; when done on one side turn with a cake turner and brown on the other side. They are excellent togated.

Cream Biscults.—Sift two teamponfuls of baking powder and one of sait into one quart of flour; ent into little pieces.—In one flour one half pound or one cupiul of butter, and mix lightly with nilks.

Roil out and spread with butter; roil out again and cut with a small cutter; bake in a hot oven. These are excellent for luncheon or for pleules.

Clothes-Horse Hint.

Where there is very little room the following suggestion will make a very good substitute for that domestic animal, the clothes-horse, which is easily carried out by the home carpenter. From the carpenter obtain several dowels, or white, round sticks. At the hardware store get some bracks. Place the brackets in a manner to bring the dowels across a corner of the kitchen, and on them the clothes may be hung in air. During the week the dowels may be removed and put oway in a corner, or may be used to hing dish towels to dry, asys Women's Life. This arrangement does away with the dangling line that is of great annoyance to the tailer members of the family.

Stains on Tables.
If a whitish stain is left data table by envelosity setting on a pitcher of hot water or a hot dish pour some lamp oil on the spot and rub it hard with a soft cloth, then pour on a little cologne water over the white mark and rub it dry with another citch.

VARYING IDEAS OF HELL.

What Thomas Carlyle Thought of Dif-ferent Conceptions.

What Thomas Carlyle Thought of Different Conceptions.

The word heil is still frequently in use—(1856)—among the English people; but I could not without difficulty ascertain what they meant by it. Hell generally signifies the infinite terror, the things a man is infinitely afraid of and shudders—and shrinks from. Struggling with his whole soul to escape from. There is a heil, therefore, if you will consider which accompanies, man in all stages of his history and religions or other development. But the help is of men and peoples differ notably.

With Christians it is the infinite terror of being found guilty before the just judge.—With old Romans—I conceture it was the terror not of Pluto, for whom probably they cared little, but of colon unworthly, doing univertity, doing uni

Women Avoid & Operations

When a woman suffering from male trouble is told that an oper-on is necessary, it, of course, ghtens her.

The very thought of the hospital,

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

maile from native roots and herbs, have escaped serions operations, asevidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 30 7. W. 28th St., N. Y. She writes:—
Dear Mrs. Pincham:—'Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered Intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objecting to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

The Great Imported German Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH NO. 3183

Will make the season of 1907, from the first of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Boone County, Ky.; the remainder of the time at Jno. W. Clore's Stable near Hebron, Ky.

This Stallion is a mahogany bay, 163/2 hands high, weighs 1350 lbs, and is the finest and most stylish stallion in the county. He has proven himself a sure foal getter, there being 85 mares bred to him during the season of 1906, getting over 60 per cent of them in foal.

Any one having mares to breed will do well to inspect this horse before going else where, as it must be remembered that this class of horses always demand high-prices and to-day they are the highest price horses on the market.

TREMS-$20 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season.

Care taken to prevent accidents but not responsible should any occur. Positively no business done on Sunday. Impregnator used on barren mares if desired.

We will give a return season to the dams of the best horse colt and the best mare colt the get of this Stallion of 1907, to be shown the first Monday in September, 1908, (court day) at Burlington, Ky. For pedigree and further particulars call on or address, character are assured by the California Fig Syrup Company's original method of manufacture, known to the Company only.

There are other ethical remedies approved by physicians, but the product of the California Fig Syrup Company possesses the advantage over all other family laxatives that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts, without disturbing the natural functions or any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

This valuable remedy has been long and favorably known under the name of syrup of Figs, and has attained to world-wide acceptance as the most excellent of family laxatives, and as its pure laxative principles, obtained from Senna, are well-known to physicians and the Well-Informed of the world to be the best of natural laxatives, we have adopted the more elaborate name of Syrup of Figs, and Elixir of Senna, as more fully descriptive of the remedy, but doublessly it will always be called for by the shorter name of Syrup of Figs, and to get its beneficial effects, always note, when purchasing, the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co-plainly printed on the front of every package, whether you simply call for Syrup of Figs, or by the full name, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, as Syrup of Figs, and Elixir of Senna, is the one laxative remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Company, and the same heretofore known by the name, Syrup of Figs, which has given satisfaction to millions. The robbery of the sub-treasury in Chicago recalls the Their.

The robbery of the sub-treasury in Chicago recalls the fact that the treasury department in Washington was the victim of a $40,000 theft about 30 years ago. At first, although no reasonable explanation of how the thing could have been done by an out-aider could be given, it was assumed that it was the work of some one unconnected with the office in which the robbery occurred. It was not long, however, before a clever detective became acquainted with the fact that one of the clerks who might have had access to the bundle of bills was, acquainted with a professional gambler of shady antecedents. That discovery solved the problem. A little patient watching resulted in catching, the gambler with the stolen notes, and the rost was casy. The clerk was arrested, and, while in confinement, was given to understand that he was be trayed, whereupon he confessed the robbery, which was accomplished by shoving the package of notes, all of large denominations, into a, position where they could be "snaked up" with a cone provided with a book.

ranted the Inference.

Prof. William Lyon Phelps of Yale recently told this story at Now Hat ven's chamber of commerce banquet: A hard drinker was told by his doctor that he could be cured if every time he felt that he must have a drink he would immediately take something to cat-instead.

The man followed the advice and was cured, but the habit of asking for food had become so fixed with him that once he was nearly locked up as a lunatic. He was stopping at a hotel and, hearing a great commotion in the room next to his, he peeped over the transom to see what the matter was. He saw, and rushed mady down to the office and ishoulted to the clerk: "The man in 158 has shot himself! Ham and ogg sandwich, please!"—Lippincott's.

EXCELSIOR BRAND Oiled Clothing and Slickers

The idea of private property has never been fully accepted by the masses of the people, and never had their cordial approval as an institution, says a writer 'n the London News. The most popular songs and ballads of our nation in all ages, it may be noted, have been those which described sympathetically attacks on private property, from the Robin Hood. cyclo to the broadshets in which Turpin and Sheppard were made herces.

Turpin and Sheppard were mane heroes.

Even nowadays the literature that really touches the people, the literature that the educated classes seldom so much as see exposed for sales, the literature that is sold in the sutall "general" shop in the back street, and costs fewer pennies than the novel we know costs shillings, still very largely deals with the romantle exploits of the robber, He is never a viliain; he is noble and generous to a fault; but he is convinced of the impropriety of persons having too much money.

Maine Woman Has Pet Deer.
Mrs. Neille Smith, of Sebee, Me, has a tame deer which is nearly two years old now, but which she has raised like a cosset lamb, feeding it from a bottle at first and making a great pet of it. It was given to her by a iumberman, who overtook it in the deep snow and caught it in his arms when it was no larger than a cat, except for its legs. It has always been perfectly tame and domesticated, never having known anything of the wild life of its kind, but runs about the premises unrestrained, having its place in the stable on cold nights. The deer are numerous around Sebe, and it is a question whether, as Mrs. Smith's pet grows older, it will not answer to the "call of the wild" and join its comrades in the forest.

Deterioration of the Mastiff.

Some breeds there are that have been driven into obscurity by the unbridled craving of hreeders for particular properties. Most lamentable of these is the case of the mastiff who, 15-or-29-years ago, was the king-of the beary brigade. Size and massive heads became the alpha and omesa of the breeders. Increase in size resulted in limbering, overfed apathetics, that could not get out of their own way, and only by an effort could support their caffish carcasses on sprawhing legs and splay feet, says R. F. Mayhew, in Everybody's Magazine. And in the intensity of desire to produce massive heads, the hither end of the wretched anims! was forgotten, and paralyzed or semiparalyzed hind-quarters were the result. Hence, the downfall of the mastiff and, in a measure, of the St. Bernard. Their former position in the dog world is now occupied by the Great Dane, the deerhound and the Russian wolfhould. pied by the Great Dane, the deerhound and the Russian wolfhound.

The Homemaker.

The Homemaker.

It must he taken into consideration that every successful homemaker is necessarily a housekeeper—one who keepe the house in the hollow of her hand, so to speak. One whose eye guards every detail of expenditure; one whose heart and mind are centered in the beautifying, guldance and maintenance of her stronghold. It would be foolish to insist that every housekeeper possess the rare and beautiful gift of creating and evolving a home, says Margaret Anglin in Pietorial Review. The housekeeper works for her-wages, oftentimes grudelingly; the homemaker takes up her daily the homemaker takes up her daily tasks with inspiration. Her labor is performed with love; and as I believe some poet has remarked, even the beautiful action.

Indoor life, with the numerous arti-Indoor life, with the numerons artificial and unwholesome—conditions which it imposes, is a powerful factor is lowering the vitality, diminishing the power to resist disease and in maintaining a continual contact with conditions productive of disease. Monkeys and most other wild animals deteriorate rapidly in captivity because of the deprivation of the fresh air and sunshine to which they are naturally adapted. Civilized women are almost compelled to live sedentary lives. This fact, declares a writer in Good Health, accounts in large degree for the almost universal invalidism among women.

Mexico is prosperous under the gold standard. The republic's fiscal re-ceipts ($50,298,000 United States curcelpts ($50.288,000 United States currency) for the year ended June 30, 1896, were far in excess of other years and much beyond what was expected even bythe most optimistic economists. El Imparcial, a local newspaper, says the income 11 years ago was only $25,-110,000 United States currency, and concludes that the decided advance to $50,000,000 is due to carreful financing. The gradual growth in the fiscal receipts during the last 11 years is the outcome of increased business prospertly and not of increased taxation.

Prince Henry of the Metherlands, husband of the queen, proved his humanity and his courage when the ateamer Berlin was wrecked off the Hook of Holland last month. He learned that some passengers were left on the vessel, and took command of the rescue party which finally brought them off. When he came sahore with them he was cheered to the echo by the enthusiastic Dutchmen gathered on the beach. King Edward has hestowed on him the Grand Cross of the Order of the Bath in recognition of his hravery.

She is one of the splendid galaxy of noble women which the Bible narrative gives to us.

galaxy of noble women which the Bible narrative gives to us. This daughter of Jephthah had not much to look back upon in the way of ancestry, for her grandmother, as the Scriptures declare, was an harlot, and upon her must have rested much of the stigma that surrounded the birth and the early life of her father.

But whatever she lacked in the way of a proud family tree she made up in the charm and nobility of her own character.

There is much in this story of Jephthah's rash vow and the sacrifice of his daughter which we cannot understand, except as we consider the customs of the people about them and understand that that which Jephthah did was common practice in the worship of the heathen gods.

But without attempting to in the worship of the heatnen gods.

But without attempting to the preptage will not allow, even though such contemplation were profitable—which is doubtful—let us gather up some thoughts and suggestion which will be heipful to us.

First of all, we must recognize that however imperfect the knowledge of Jephthah's daughter concerning what the true worship and service of God required, she realized that God had first claim upon her and upon her father, even to life itself.

And second only to this was

And second only to this was her deep sense of filial obedience. No word of repreach; no despairing cry.

Nay, rather, there was such utter forgetfulness of self, that she turns in solicitude to comfort her father and encourage what seemed to her a faltering courage and a threatened dialoyalty to God.

And lastly, during those two months of seclusion what more reasonable to suppose than that she was performing a final ministry in spiritual things to the companions she had gathered about her. The precious meants which remained to her nery in spiritual things to the companions she had gathered about her. The precious moments which remained to her were to be used to the uplifting of others. Surely, in these more striking points Jephthah's daughter being dead yet speaketh.

While she was speaking she was

All the trusts and combines that produce products in which any article is used that has been imported and duty paid thereon are allowed similar favors under this Republican tariff faw. For instance, the Steet trust was allowed $2,25,231.82 on the plates and hundreds of thousands of dollars on other articles. The Lead-trust was allowed $2,85,760.56 on lead; the Linseed Oil trust was allowed $28,481.46; the leather trust was allowed $28,481.46; the leather trust was allowed $28,481.69; the leather trust was allowed $28,481.46; the leather trust was allowed $28,481.46; the leather trust was allowed $24,711; the Sugar trust was allowed $24,712; the Tobacco trust was allowed $25,619.11; the Student Oil trust was allowed $47,819.47; the Standard Oil trust was allowed $27,819.69; the Beet combine was allowed $27,819.99; the Beet combine was allowed $565,511.99; and so the list might be continued. Our home consumers. of any of these trust-made articles have to pay the government tariff duty and the trusts tariff tax, which the English. or Belgian consumer pays no tariff tax and the trusts have to sell there for a small profit, because they must compete with the English and Belgian manufacturer, or the producers of any other country that export their surplus there to sell.

Is it not about time that the Demogratic plain of tariff reduction was inaugurated so that the American consumer would get a "drawback" instead of paying it to the trusts and the foreign buyer?

Fictitious Stocks and Bonds.

The old story of locking the stable door after the horse has heen stoten, is to be applied to the issue of fraudiient stocks and bonds of railroads, if the Washington Post has been rightly informed. "The president realizes,"
says that journal, "that nothing can he done now to correct the evil wrought by past issues of .watered stock, but he will urge congress next winter to pass a law which will enable the government to scrutinize future issues." It is a very serious matter for the people if the president has arrived at that conclusion, for it will entail upon the public the payment of continued urreasonable rates if dividends are to be paid on these fictitions stocks and bonds. Such will hardly be considered a just settlement of the railroad rate issue and will force to the front the more equitable plan of flading out just what it will cost to replace the railroads and then confine their charges to what will pay reaseable interest on that replacement value. The stable door should, of yourse, be locked and the key given to the interstate commerce commission to prevent any more of the people's horses being stolen, for no more stocks or bonds must he issued, the proceeds of which are not actually necessary and for which full value has not been

Republican Promises.

How slightly the Republicans regard platform promises or how quickly they change front, when the necessifies of political campaigne urge them to become opportunities is resulty proven. In 1830 with the fear of the people drilled into them by the election of a Democratic congress the Republican party-in its sational platform declared that: "Further subsidies to private persons or corporations must cease." That acknowledgement of having granted subsidies to persons or corporations and promising to discontinue such plundering of the people did not deter the party from four years later entering on the pian of ship subsidy and attempting to carry it, out. In 1830 the scarce of the Tiliden campaign had made the Republican politicians careful of the interests of the people and the election of a Democratic president in 1834 showed their fears were well founded. But after 1836, with the trusts and combines still filling the campaign chest, as they had already done in that campaign of corruption, all their fears were handled and the policy of a ship subsidy was used as a further incentive for more campaign funds. But thanks to the Democrats and a few homest Republicans, the dream of making the people psy a subsidiy to the brians that conceived it.

ship owners is still a figment of the brains that conceived it.

Our Pacific Failure.

The Republican boast that the Pacific ocean was to be "annexed" and dominated by the United States seems doomed to failure. Instead of gaining power on the Pacific we are losing it as far as ships and commerce are concerned and our friends, the Japanese, are fact outstripping us. As long as our antiquated navigation laws and our high tariff to prohibit trade is allowed to remain on the statute books we can expect nothing different. Our enormous trade on the Atlantic is nearly all in the hands of foreigners and is great in spite of the trade ohatscless we have so foelishly placed in its path. With free ships and free men and anyone allowed to buy ships where he could get them the cheapest and the tariff reformed so as to encourage trade, we would soon resume our old supremacy on both the oceans as it was when the Democratis were running this government and our fag was seen on every see.

Wine—Try the Plan.

If you, Mr. Merchant, would compets with the mali-order houses there are three main essentials to suggess—the goods—the prices—advertising.

The last of these is quite as essential as either of the others.

In the great majority of cases the local merchant has the goods, and he makes the prices, but in very many cases he either fails to do the advertising, or what he does do is not effective in the same way that the mali-order man's advertising is effective.

The writing of effective advertising is not an art, it is not a business that requires years of study and comparison will give you every essential detail that you will need.

R is comparatively safe to say that 75 per cont. of the advertising carried by local merchants in the local papers is worded in generalities only. Such advertisements as the following are found in every paper:

Deterioration of the Mastiff.

Some breeds there are a that have been driven into obscurity by the unbridled crawing of breeders for particular properties. Most Lamentable of these is the case of the mastiff who, 15 or 20 years ago, was the king of the heavy brigade. Size and massive heads became the alpha and omega of the breeders. Increase in size resulted in lumbering, overfed apathetics, that could not get out of their own way, and only by an effort could support their califish carcasses on sprawling legs and splay feet, says R. F. Mayhew, in Everybody's Masgazine. And in the liftensity of desire to produce massive heads, the hither end of the wretched animal was forgotten, and paralyzed or semiparalyzed hind-quarters were the result. Hence, the downful of the mastiff and, in a measure, of the St. Bernard. Their former position in the dog world is now occupied by the Great Dane, the deerhound and the Russian wolfhound.

The Homemaker.

It must be taken into consideration that every successful homemaker is necessarily a honsekeeper—one who keeps the house in the-hollow of her hand, so to speak. One whose eye guards every detail of expenditure; one whose heart and mind are centered in the beautifying, guidance and mainteance of her stronghold. It would be foolish to insist that every housekeeper possess the rare and beautiful gift of creating and evolving a home, says Margaret Anglin in Pictorial Review. The housekeeper works for her wages, oftentimes grudgingly; the homemaker takes up her daily the homemaker takes up her daily tasks with inspiration. Her islor is performed with love; and ss I believe some poet has remarked, even the g of a room may wecom a utifui action.

El Imparcial, a local newspaper, says the income 11 years ago was only $25, 110,000 United States currency, and concludes that the decided advance to $50,000,000 is due to carrelul financing. # JEPHTHAH'S DAUGHTER

A STORY OF THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES IN ISRAEL

SERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

One cannot read this tragle, and yet beautifully touching story of Jephthah's daughter without being deeply touched by her devotion to God, her heroic loyalty to her father, and her sweet, tender, graciousness as she faces the awful doom which her father's rash vow had brought upon her.

Her purity and strength of character stand out clear and positive.

character stand out clear and positive.

She is one of the splendid galaxy of noble women which the Bible narrative gives to us.

This daughter of Jephthah had not much to look back upon in the way of ancestry, for her grandmother, as the Scriptures declare, was an harlot, and upon her must have rested much of the stigma that surrounded the birth and the oarly life of her father.

But whatever she lacked in her birth and the early life of the father. But whatever she lacked in the way of a proud family tree she made up in the charm and nobility of her own character.

There is much in this story of Jephthair's rash vow and the sacrifice of his daughter which we cannot understand, except as we consider the customs of the people about them and understand that that which Jephthah did was common practice in the worship of the heathen gods.

in the worship of the heathen gods.

But without attempting to discuss the perpiexing phaces, which our space will not allow, even though such contemplation were profitable—which is doubt-TuI—let us gather up some thoughts and suggestion which will be helpful to us.

will be helpful to us.

First of all, we must recognize that however imperfect the knowledge of Jephthah's daughter concerning what the true worship and service of God required, she realized that God had first claim upon her and upon her father, even to life itself.

And second only to this was

and upon her father, even to life itself.

And second only to this was her deep sense of filial obedience. No word of reproach; no deepairing cry.

Nay, rather, there was such utter forgetfulness of self, that she turns in solicitude to comfort her father and encourage what seemed to her a faltering courage and a threatened disloyalty to God.

And lastly, during those two months of seclusion what more reasonable to suppose than that she was performing a final ministry in spiritual things to the companions she had gathered about her. The precious moments which remained to her were to be used to the uplifting of others. Surely, in these more striking points Jephthah's daughter being dead yet speaketh.

then there would ring through his soul the words of his daughter: 'Il' thou hast opened thy mouth unto the Lord, do to me according to that which hash proceeded out of thy mouth,' and the sterner sense of duty and loyalty to God would drive the weaker self back and again hold him to the obligation he had tyken.

And with the coming of the daylight had come his daughter to asylight had come his daughter to his people!" And as they stood there in the doorway in each other's embrace. The last they would ever enjoy on earth, it seemed to Jephthsh as though the battle rust all be fought over again, and as though all the powers of his strong nature were concentrating in effort to tun him from the uffilliment of his vow.

With an ineffable sweetness and device and patriotic, shal he respondness:

"Spoken like a true daughter of Jephthtah, little girl. If I had no

Again-they stood in slience. The precious moments, how sweet they seemed. Soon she would be wending her way to the mountain retreat where companions awaited her coming and where she was to pass in meditation and prayer the time which yet remained to her. Soon her father would be sitting alone, thinking of her; yes, thinking of her, and what last message, what last word could she speak that would help him to bear the loss and impire him to the work of ruling the people who had chosen him as their leader? It should not be of herself. It should not be of the strong enemy.
No, it should be of the future, toward which every true son of Israel looked with expectant hope, because of the promises which God in times past had spoken to Abraham, Isaae and Jacob.
"Father," she said at last, "God hath spoken good concerning Israel."

Jacob.
"Pather," she said at last, "God hath spoken good concerning Israel."
"Yes, my daughter."
"And he hath not failed us even now in that he hath given us the desire of our hearts in the deliverance which he has wrought."
"Yes"
"And God hath given us the last."

"Yes."
"Yes."
"Yes."
"He hath, indeed, my daughter."
"Ho bath, indeed, my daughter."
"How great a privilege and honor then that we should have a part in carrying out the purposes of God. We serve not time but eternity; we give ourselves that we may continue to live in the life and memory of our nation forever. Let us see the brightness as we behold it streaming out of the glorious promise of the future."

of the storious promise of the fature."

While she was speaking she was gently disengaging herself from her tather's arms. She stood for a moment pointing down the golden path, and the stood for a moment pointing down the golden path, and the stood for a moment pointing down the golden path, and the stood for a moment pointing down the golden path, and the stood for a moment pointing from the sun, and then quickly turnings she threw her arms about her father's neck and drawing his face down to hers pressed one lingering kias upon his bearded cheek and then was gone. Down the pathway of light he saw the white-clad form gilde as though even then she was bound from earth to heaven and would step therein through the resplendent gateway of the sun.

During the two months which followed while his daughter kept her vigit in the mountains with her companions, that vision never left him, and when at times through the months and years which followed it seemed as though the anguish of his heart would crush him, he would hear her words again:

"Let us see the brightness as we behold it streaming out of the glorious promise of the future."

"Amen, and Amen!"

Fictitious Stocks and Bonds.

The old story of locking the stable
door after the horse has been stolen, is to be applied to the issue of fraudulent stocks and bonds of raliroday;
if the Washington Post has been rightly,
informed. "The president realizes,"
says that journal, "that nothing can be done now to correct the evil wrought by past issues of .wstered stock, but he will urge congress next
entall upon the public the payment of continued unreasonable rates if dividends are to be paid on these fictitious stocks and bonds. Such will hardly be considered a just settlement of the raliroad rate issue and will force to the front the more-equitable pian of finding out just what it will cost to replace the raliroads and then confine their charges to what will pay reasonable interest on that replacement value. The stable door should, of

the interstate commerce commission
to prevent any more of the people's

PARTISAN POLITICS.

Curious Inconsistency of Leaders of National Grange.

An interview sent out from Concord, New Hampahire, in which N. J. Bachelder, Master of the National Grange, gives the credit to that organizatic for the defeat of the ship subsidy bill. There is no doubt the members of the Grange in most states are entitled to credit for their opposition to subsidies, but in electing representatives in congress and members of the legislatures, who elect United States senators, their votes do not appear to have counted. All the members of congress from New Hampshire voted for ship-subsidy and either Gov. Bachelder and the Grange must have very little influence in the politics of that state or their Republican partisanship must have closed their eyes to the trust and corporation propensities of the candidates they elected.

It is rather a singular fact that in those states where the Grange is strongest, the vote of the congression men representing them was simosen unanimous for ship-subsidy. For instance, all the congressional delegation present from Maingoin; all from States, all from Washington; all from Pennsylvania and all but one from New York, and these states are the strongholds of the Grange.

The trouble with the Grange is it is run by a set of Republican politicians and has therefore become a partisan adjunct of the Republican party; who pretend to be non-partisan and as the subday bill was championed by the administration and was a party measure, those members of congressme from those excees where the Grange is a powerful influence amongst in the farmers, voiced with their party instead of for the interest of the farmers whose where the souther and southern extends to be non-partisan and as the subsidy bill; from Indiana four; from Kanasa three; from Michigan thee; from Michigan

Our Pacific Failurs,
The Republican boast that the Pacific ocean was to be "annexed" and dominated by the United States seems doomed to failure. Instead of gaining power on the Pacific we are losing it as far as ships and commerce are concerned and our friends, the Japanese, are fact outstripping us. As long as our antiquated navigation laws and our high tairff to prohibit trade is allowed to remain on the statute books we can expect nothing different. Our enormous trade on the Atlantic is nearly all in the hands of forefigners and is great in spita of the trade obstatcles we have so foelishly placed in tapath. With free ships and free menad anyone allowed to buy ships where he could get them the cheapest and the tariff reformed so as to encourage trade, we would soon resume our old supremacy on both the oceans as it was when the Democrats were running this government and our flag was seen on every sea.

Party—Had Planned to Entertain a Number of Friends.

Chicago, AApril 15.—Jas. H. Eckels, president of the Commercial National bank of this city and former controller of the currency, died at his home here of heart disease.

The death of Mr. Eckels occurred apparently while he was asleep in his bed. The fact that he was dead was discovered by a butler, Frank Evans, who entered Mr. Eckels room after hearing a telephone within ring continuously without receiving an answer.

timously without receiving an anawer.

Thinking that Mr. Eckels had not been awakened, Evans entered and found Mr. Eckels apparently asleep.

The buttler called to him, and, getting no response, sought to arouse him and found that he was dead.

Other members of the household were summonded and Dr. Frank S. Churchill was hurriedly called.

Dr. Churchill arrived within a short time, and after an examination gave it as his 'opinion that Mr. Eckels had been dead for some hours.

Dr. John H. Murphy, the Eckels of James H. Eckels, died two months ago.

On the morning of the death of the elder Eckels the son was a host of former President Cleveland.

The former president and Mr. Eckels were at breakfast when the news of the father's death was received at the Eckels residence.

GOVERNOR OFFERS REWARD

Frankfort, Ky—By a proclamation issued Gov. Beckham offers a reward of $500 for the apprehension and conviction of the persons guilty of outrages in the tobacco-growing section of Western Kentucky by the burbing of tobacco-plant beds.

In offering the reward the executive invokes a statute adopted ten years ago to break up toligate raiding in the state.

The law has not since been called into operation.

No reflection is "atended upon the courts of the districts," in which the offenses have been expectated, but their efforts to locate the offenders have been fulle. The governor is authorized to employ describes and may do so if the reward does not result in locating the guilty parties.

The executive does not believe that either the tobacco association or its members are responsible for the outrages, but that lawless persons have taken advantage of the tobacco agitation now on in this state.

DYING ARE HIS UNCLE AND AUNT

Shot and Beaten by the Youth Who Was Their Guest.

Bardweii, Ky.—Ed Stockton, 17, the son of Gilford Stockton, a fararrer, shot and fatality wounded his uncle, J. F. Stockton, beat his uncle's wife into insensibility with the but tend of a gun, saturated, her clothing with coal off and attempted to set her on fire. Both victims are in a dying condition.—It seems that the nephew arrived at his uncle's house at midnight and was shown to a room for the night. Early in the merning Mrs. Stockton, his aunt, hearing a noise in young Stockton's room, aroused ite hisband, telling him to take some more covering to Eddle, as he might be cold. As the uncle opened the door Stockton opened fire on him with a Winchester riffe, shooting him through the left lung, the bail going entirely through his body. The young man then attacked his aunt. Stockton was arrested and lodged in jail. There is intense excitement, and violence to the prisoner is threatened. The authorities are taking precaution to protect him. It is believed by some that the yould is demented.

The Great Imported German Coach Stallion,

PLUTARCH NO. 3183

Will make the season of 1907, from the first of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Boone County, Ky.; the remainder of the time at Jno. W. Clore's Stable near Hebron, Ky.

This Stallion is a manogany bay, 16½ hands high, weighs 1350 lbs. and is the finest and most stylish stallion in the county. He has proven himself a sure foal getter, there being 85 mares bred to him during the season of 1906, getting over 60 per cent of them in foal.

Any one having mares to breed will do well to inspect this herse before going else where, as it must be remembered that this class of horses always demand high prices and to-day they are the highest price horses on the market.

TERMS—$20 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season.

Care taken to prevent accidents but not responsible should any occur. Positively no business done on Sunday. Impregnator used on barren mares if desired.

We will give a return season to the dams of the best horse colt and the best mare colt the get of this Stallion of 1907, to be shown the first Monday in September, 1908, (court day) at Burlington, Ky:

(Conyright, by Joseph R. Howles) and Particle Programment of the American missionary. His foot-prints are large and deep and many, and I shall certainly come up with him. Then we shall know what sort of individual he is—whether a hetced saint, as the religious papers represent, or a double-deed knave, as many other papers and people assert, or a plain, every-day American, trying to do an extraordinary job to the test of the ability. He missionaries them, and became the best of the ability. Rather queer, isn't it, that after having been in the business of exporting missionaries for well-nigh a bundred years, America should actually know so little about the article himself, and see so decidedly divided as to his value?

For the American missionary has been more a subject of controversy intan American canned beer. Hundredly control of the program who have risited foreign parts and say that they know, and thousands who declare that they have their information "straight," declared the foreign field gets that the missionary is a sort of plous binneo-man; that he is not wanted where he works, that he is an immitigated missione, and that he is keenly and the other he works. That he is a minitigated missione and that he is keenly and the other of persons, in eyery part of the land, firmly believe, and support their conviction by their roin, that the missionary is a saint and a hero, and the rifless servant of a Huankless, world's welface. All critleism of him they sweepingly resent, and are lout to hear aught to his dispraise. The spotheresis of the missionary is a characteristic of modern religious life.

On a Still Hout for Facts.
Curfously enough, the public hears only these two optinions of the missionary, once of which supresents him as a seconderel or a foot, the other of which exists him as a demised. So far as I am aware, nobody has ever set out, independently, and representing no board, society or cause, to find out, luspartially, the exact facts in the case. This is the mission I have underlaken. My journalistic integrity is pideged to the duty of ascertaining, without favor or fear, exactly what sort of person the missionary is a how he works and amid what conditions, and whether the task he has imposed upon himself is worth doing at all, and if so, whether he is doing it well.

To that end I shall personally examine, on the grand, representative enterprises of all denominational and scarch out the foremost foreign critical and search out the foremost foreign critical middle and search out the foremost foreign critical proposed the soliton out.

The Evolution of Household Remedies.

In the early history of this country, EVERY FAMILY HAD ITS HOME-MADE MEDICINES, Herb teas, bitters, laxatives and tonics, were to be found in almost every house, compoundaby the housewife, sometimes assisted by the spothecary or the family doctor. Such remedies as piers, which was aloes and quassis, dissolved in apple brandy. Semetimes a bop tonic, made of whiskey, hops and bitter barks. A score or more of popular, home-made of whiskey, hops and bitter barks. A score or more of popular, home-made remedies were thus compounded, the formulae for which were passed along from house to house, sometimes verbally communicated.

The patent medicine business is a natural outgrowth from this wholesome, old-time custom. In the beginning, some enterprising doctor, impressed by the usefulness of one of these home-made remedies, would take it up, improve it in many ways, manufacture it on a large scale, advertice, it mainly through almanacs for the home, and thus it would become used over a large area. LATTERLY THE HOUSE, HOLD REMEDY BUSINESS TOOK A MORE EXACT AND SCIENTIFIC FORM.

Peruna was originally one of these old-time remedies. It was used by the Mennomites, of Pennsylvania, before it was offered to the public for sale. Dr. Hartman, THE ORIGINAL COMPOUNDER OF PERUNA, is of Mennomite origin. First, he prescribed it for his neighbors and his patients. The sale of it increased, and at last, he established a manufactory and furnished it to the general drug trade, sore throat, brenchitis, and catarrhal diagases generally. THOUSARDS OF FAMILIES HAYE LEARNED THE USE OF PERUNA and its value in the hard to relay on his remedy, Peruna.

How old are you? Ask your pulse. The human pulse has a wide range, even in perfectly healthy persons. The female pulse always beats faster than the male, and from birth to death the pulse beats steadily decrease. It has been said by great authorities that the age and sex of a person could be ascertained by the rate of the pulse alone. five Bushela Wheat and five Bushela Oata Per Acre in Western Canada.

Saltcoats, Sask., 8th December, 1906.

Salicoats, Sask., $th December, 1995.

To the Editor.

Dear Sir., 1 willingly give you the result of my four and a half years' experience in the District of Salicoats.

Previous to coming here I farmed in Baldwin, St. Croix County, Wisconsir, and as I have heard a great deal about the Canadian North-West, I decided to take a trip there and see the country for myself. I was so impressed with the richness of the soil that I bought half, a section of land about the miles from the town of Saltcoats. I moved on to the land the following June and that year broke 90 acres, which I cropped in 1904, and had 39 bushels wheat per acre. In 1905, with an acreage of 160 acres, I had 24 bushels of oats per acre. In 1906, with 175 acres under crop, I had 25 bushels wheat and 35 bushels of oats per acre. From the above mentioned yields you can readily understand that I am very well pleased with the Canadian West. Of course, I have had to work hard, but I don't mind that when I get such a good return for my labor.

To anyone thinking about coming to this country I can truthfully say that if they are prepared to work and not grumble at trifles, they are bound to get on. Some things I would like different, but take the country all round, I don't know where to go to set a better.

I don't know where to go to get a bet ter.

Yours truly,
(Signed) O. B. OLSON.

Ten years ago a farmer put his initiats on a dollar bill. The next day he went to the nearest town and spent it with a merchant. Hefore the year was out he got the dollar back. Four times in six years the dollar came back to him for produce and three times heheard of it in the pecket of his neighbors.

The last time he got it back four years ago. He sent it to a mail order house. He never has seen that dollar since, and never will. That dollar bill will never, pay any more school or woad tax for him, will never build or brighten any of the homes the community. He sent it entirely out of the circle of usefulness to himself and his neighbors.

An English Bugaboo.

It is amusing to read of the expedients suggested to prevent the proposed tunnel under the English channel from becoming a menace to British safety. One of the latest things solemnly put forth, says Troy Times, is to bring the tunnel out at a point where trains passing through it will have to go over a trestle or canseway before plunging into the actual midst of the tight little island. The idea is the have British warships so stationed as to command this stretch of road, and of course any train coming as to command this stretch of road, and of course any train coming shrough the tunnel with hostile unient could he blown to smithereens before getting a chance to do the least damage. That an enemy meditating such an invasion would deliberately run into a trap of this sort seems to he the innocent belief of the projectors of this mighty idea. A tunnel of the kind in question could no more threaten peril to England than would a proposition to go around the other sides and come down by way of the North-Pole. The talk of invasion by that route is farcical. A stick of dynamite would put the tunnel out of business in considerably less than three seconds.

Where Titles Are Cheap.

The cheapest contry for buying a tittle used to be Portugal. Whan a man is made a baron or a count there his paton recites the service for which the grant is made. I was ence in Portugai and I had some curlosity to discover what were the services for which an Englishman of my acquaintance had heen made a Portuguese haron, remarks a writer in London Truth. I therefore looked the matter up and I found that I was for having up and I found that it was for having There used to be another plan rece There used to be another plan for becoming a haron. It appears that there is—or was then—a convent which once had large possessions. All its tenants were, by the fact of being tenants, barons. But the convent had lost-fits possessions with the exception of one farm. It had an agent in London. For a very moderate consideration the agent let this farm to a weuld-he tenant. He therefore became a baron, and when he resigned the farm to the next applicant he retained the title.

It is not the woman who is foreverchasing everyone in the house with a broom or duster whe makes the most impression as to the destrableness of neatness and order. While she is making a martyr of herself in her frantic attempts to always keep the hearth tidy, and the woodwork poltabed, and the carpets free from spot or speck, she is often driving away the hetter elements of the home—peace and love and harmony. A child cannot enjoy his playthings without a place in which to play, nor a man feelfree in his own house if he must be always remembering that not so much as a magazine or book shall be left one moment out of place when not being as a magazine or book shall be left one moment out of place when not being read. Yet, observes New York Weekly, these overneat women find happiness in their struggle for excessive neatness, and the thought that they often do actual wrong in the carrying out of their extreme ideas never enters their minds.

The burning of an old house in Huhhardston, Mass., a few days ago recalled to mind again the once famous bailad of 'Old Grimes,' Tor the house was built in 1761 by Joseph Grimes, whose son Ephraim, It is stated, was the subject of the hallad. Albert Gordon Greene was the author of the plece. The studied inconsequence of the treatment was what made the bailad popular, and It is farthe best specimen of a class of jocoseria of the eighteenth century.

cause air is elastic and water a German aeronaut declares th not, a German aeronaut declares that the form of propeller hest daspted to the navigation of the latter element would not yield equally happy results in the former. # THE RECORDER. BY A NAVAL THREAT

HATRED OF THE MOOR ARO AGAINST FOREIGNERS.

FRANCE AFTER SLICE OF MOROCCO

Tangier, Morocco, April 18.—It is the consensus of opinion among natives that France, is endeavoring to bring about a quarrie with Morocco. France, it is claimed, is seeking several large slices of territory and is determined to secure them. The general situation is grave. The feeling of unrest has been greatly increased by a menacing French naval demonstration off Mogador. The temper of the natives has been finamed by the sight of the warships, and they may be hard to hold in check.

inflamed by the sight of the warships, and they may be hard to hold incheck.

The foreign diplomats comment on the unsatisfactory nature of the Algeciras settlement as shown by the fresh outbreaks of Moorish fanaticism, the latest victim of which was properly to the latest victim of which was murdered by it crazed mob because he had put up a Freach flag on his home for purposes of surveying.

Other Europeans have been attacked or threatened, but the Moors are especially littler against the French and seem to think that they cas in dulge their hatred with impunity. In France it is felt also that, though the Moors must be taught to respect the rights of other nations, to exact a proper reparation will give Germany a chance of interfering.

In Moorco, as in Egypt and as formerly in Turkey, Mahommedans are coming to regard Germany as a protector—against other European states, and the reliance on German european states, and the reliance on German europort, however unjustified, may have a considerable share in bringing fanaticism to the point of an outbreak. The hatred of the Moors against the French was increased by the occupation of the town of Oudja hy French troops under command of Gen. Lyautey, one of the hravest officers in the army. Throughout the French was increased by the occupation of the field with two horrible wounds. For nearly two days he in exovered sufficient to dress his own wounds and crawl to the nearest house. As an organizer Gen. Lyautey is considered one of the most valuable men in the French army, and he has spent some years attached to the army and spent some years attached to the carmy in Algeria, so that this is not his first journey to African soil.

The Doomed Man Caimiy Goss

To His Fate.

Columbus, O., April 13. The calusest man who ever went to the electriq chair in Ohio, Dr. Oliver C. Haugh, met death at a minute past midnight in explation of his crime.

There was not a litch in the execution of the law's demand for the life of the multi-nurrderer.

The lights in the big penieutiary went out, due to a breakdown in the public service light plant, and the big prison was as biack as night for a quarter of an hour.

The breakdown was corrected, however, so as to afford no embarrassment nor delay in the electrocution.

The prisoner was preceded by the guards and Rev. Father Kelley into the death room.

He was cafin, and, stopping only at the raised platform on which the chair, is, he pansed for a second, they shink into the chair, was strapped in and the current turned on.

In a flash death resulted, the quicket in the history of the ponieutiary.

The crime for which Dr. Haugh paid the death poninty was the murder of his father, mother and brother, in Dayton, November 1, 1965.

Transformed into a flend by the ding habit, he slipped poison into the food of each member of his family on the fata light.

When the drug had accomplished the was affected the compace of his victims and then awaited a flavorable hour to touch off the funeral pyre he had planned.

Shortly after midnight the murderer posited the contents of a five-gallon oil can upon the floors and walls of the building and applied a match. The fames leaped up so quickly that Haugh himself was badly burned before he could escape from the house. He was arrested and the evidence brought out against him at the trial was so convincing that a verdict guilty was returned.

Two Men Killed and a Number Are

Birmingham, Ala., April 22—As the result of a double wreek on the Southern Railway, a short distance cast of Woodlawn, a subarb of Birmingham, two men are doed tood a number in jored.

The unusual character of the wreek makes it surprising that the casualties were not more. A friether rain with a dead engine on the reat was coming toward Birmingham. The operator, it is said, allowed No. 3, the fast passenger, to enter the block, and it crashed into the dead engine, smashing them both and demolishing several cars. Three cars of the freight train were thrown across the enst-bound track short at the instruction to the flink, Ala., passed. The wrecker struck them and practically the whole train pried into the ditch. The baggage and mail cars of the jusseonger were torn up.

Claim That Free Trade is Almed at , by Democrate is Foolish—Fig-ures That Will Convince the Fair-Minded.

Whenever the standpatters, and even those Republicans that believe there must be some reform of the present tariff system, are cornered by the exposure of the plundering by the exposure of the plundering by the protocted trusts and combines, their only roply is that free trade would ruin the country. This of course is no answer at all, as neither the Democratic party, nor any other organization of consequence politically, either demonds free trade or favors it. Free frade to a bugsheo of the standpatter whe hase a brainstorm and suffers from its mentioned. Free trade would undowntedly be the best thing for the whole world if all nations practiced it, but practically it is at present impossible.

Reforming the tariff by reducing it, its not free trade, far from it, for there would still be a large amount of tariff tax paid under one-half the present duties, and as the trusts would have a compete with the imported goods, which would be sold at a reduced price, in accordance with the lower rates of tariff duties, there would be a general reduction of the cost of itving and the great mass of consumers would be able to purchase more instead of economizing as many now do. There its now imported over $600,000,000 of dutiable goods and nearly that much free of duty. All that comes into the country upon which no duty is collected is 'free trade,' and if lumber and coal and hides was balse placed on the free list, as proposed by the tariff revision Republicans of Massachusetts, Minnesota, Wisconsin, the Dakotas and Iowa, no one would be ent down by having to compete with the Inmover the down by having to compete with the Inmover the down by having to compete with the Inmover the down the manufactured profits would be ent down by having to compete with the Imported Jumber, coal and hides, every one clae would see for he halde, the borns, and the near the profits would be ent down by having to compete with the imported products, free hides would suffer to some extent. Corruption in Ship-Subsidy. That the passage of the ship-subsidy litter and the passage of the ship-subsidy bill through the house of representatives, by the very close vote, was due to corrupt influences was shown by the statement of Mr. Birdsall of lows. a Republican, that Mr. Hinshaw of Nebraska had been sent $500 by Field S. Pendieton, the chief lobbyist of the ship-subsidy promoters, to aid his reclection to congress and Mr. Hinshaw refused to receive the brile-Then thore is the evidence that Alex. Smith of Cleveland paid Arthur B. Story $2,009 and large sums of money to other people to have printed to the subsidy before the purpose of deceiving the house of representatives by making members believe that unany labor unions were favorable to the subsidy bill. This dishonesty was exposed by President Compers and the officer is contained in a speech delivered by Congressman Shackle ord of Missouri on February 27, 1907, which will be found in the Congressional Record of February 28 on pages 1963-66. Such are some of the methods of the ship-subsidy looters that have come to light and it is but fair to advance that more desired on the statil poncealed.

JEFFERSON AND HAMILTON.

The Grant Guif There is Between

The national Democracy has gathered momentons impetus in the last year or two and the greatly increased vote for Democratic and dates for congress and the election of Democratic governors at the last election is the proof of its increasing favor with the people. "Ten years age they called our ideas insanity," said Mr. Erran, speaking at Boston, "yet on no question that we ever discussed have we been more vindicated than on on idea that more money would make higher prices and better times. The Republican party has been in power for ten years, with undisputed rule. If it hasn't done anything that ought to have been done, it is its own fault. What is the result? We find the Republican party has gone on the toboggan side, so that now it has just one man whom it regards as popular cought to have been done, it is for many home it regards as popular cought to be the candidate for president. Why is it that the president alone has escaped the paralysis that has fallen upon all the rest? There is only one explanation, and that is that his-popularity is due to his following the Democratic doctrines." This may be true of some things that President Roosevelt has done, but he still falls far short of being a Democrat; or doing all he could have done for the people. He has allowed the influence of the protected interests over the Republican politicians to prevent him from recommending tariff reform. Thus he has protected the trusts in being able to continue to charge enormous profits and keep up the present high cost of living. He favored the ship-subsidy bill although one-fourth of his own party in congress voted with the Democrats to defeat it and those Republican members who voted against his recommendation were the meet archert. supporters—of some of his other policies. He favors and has done more to centralize power in the federal government than any of his predecessors, which is not only undemocratic but unconstitutional, and has efforts in that direction can be used as a precedent for further executive encroachement. I

State Rights or Centralization.

The Hamiltonian theory that all good government can but proceed from centralized power at Washins, to have been thoroughly imbibed by President Roosevelt. In his last message to congress he said: "It cannot be too often repeated that experience has conclusively shown the impossibility of securing by the action of nearly half a hundred different state legislatures anything but ineffective chaos in the way of dealing with the great corporations which do not operate exclusively within the limits of any one state." Yet the fact that 14 states have brought the railroads to time by fixing either two-cent or 2½-cent passenger rates, entirely demoishes the president's Hamiltonian theory that he is the only reformer that "does things" aided by an unwilling Republican majority of congress.

No one can show one cent saved from corporation plundering through any action of the president or congression there is the fact that the legislature of Ohlo reduced passenger rates one-hird, to two cents a mile, and that rater appears to give satisfaction to the people and the railroads submit to it, so it must be reasonable. Other states have made similar reductions and either by direct law, or through their railroad commissions, have reduced freight rates aino. It that is "ineffective chaos in the way of dealing with the great corporations," the people no doubt wish the president and contress would do something in the same chaotic way. The further fact that the reform the states are enacting, is another evidence of the advantage of the reserved rights of the states and their much more effective and quicker-way of obtaining relief from corporation injustice than the combined and centralized power of a Republican president and a Republican congress. After all it is not way of but deeds that count.

The reasons why people should trade at home are numerous, but $60 far as we are able to learn but one ceason is advanced for purchasing goods of mail order houses. That one reason as aving of money—is often no reason at all, for in many instances the express charges or freight and cartage will bring the cost of un-article that as quoted in the price list seemed a wonderful bargain, almost or quite up to the purche charged by the local dealer. But even were one able to save a few cents on the purchase price by buying away from home, it appears to us that the loss is initially more than the gain, for he who, sends the money which he sams is the home town out to swell the coffers of wealthy dealers in distant cities cannot fall to forfeit in a considerable degree the respect of those around him, nor can he under these conditions preserve his self-respect intact.

The man who patronizes mall order house must have a sneaking feeling that everybody in town knows that he is a hindrance rather than a help to the community. He is not wanted in public positions, and when questions of local interest and importance are discussed, his opinion carries far the man who contributes his share to the prosperity of the community by spending his money where he earns it.

In addition to losing in a large degree the respect of others and his own self-respect, the man who coes nothing to build up the town in which he lives fails to find the contentment which is necessary to happiness. Having done nothing to make the town better, he is unable to see the many advantages it possesses, and is continually talking and thinking of its desicrences. He does not more out, however, but stays on year after year, a discontended parasite, getting all he can and giving as little as possible income to the many advantages it may be town to make the town heart of the contentment which is not many of the heart of the contentment which is not many of the heart of the contentment which is not many of the heart of the contentment which is not continually talking and thinking of its desicrences. John Smith Swears. Assassin's Words.

Lexington, Ky.—"James Cockrell was assassinated by Curt Jett, John Smith and John Abner, and the plans were laid for the assassination by Judge James Hargis, Ed Callahan, William Britton and Elbert Hargis. Curt Jett free four shorts, John Abner fired three shots, and I fired one shot, all from the first and second windows on the second floor of the west side of the Breathitt county courthouse at Jackson."

This statement was made by John Smith, a witness for the prosecution, who made a complete confession of the assassination of Cockrell. He told the story of the pirot to murder and its execution coolly and calmly. Despite the statements that have been published from time to time that the witnesses for the prosecution were a "sorry lot," these statements have not been substantiated by the appearance of the Commonwealth's witnesses at this trial.

As a reward for the murder of Cockrell, Smith sald that the Hargises and Sheriff Ed Callahan had promised to start a wholesale whisky house at Jackson and put him in charge of it.

THE RELIGIOUS ROMANCE OF TRANSFORMED HAWAII

(Copyright, by Joseph B. Bowles).

It is a superior of the country of the condition of a fautar beauty. Hawali is of interest to the tourists; but to the student of religious, social and political questions its greatest importance lies in the swiftness of its transition from a savage community, bound by the practice of human sacrifice and the allied and greater curse of the taboo, into a self-governing, ordering and prosperous community, admitted into the sisterhood of the American union within 75 years after the time it began to emerge from rank barbarism.

As a widely-heralded completed product of Missions.

Such was the stock from which places on the globe where the missionary work certs. It has been said times without number, that this is one of the few places on the globe where the missionaries finished their task; leaving to support and direct themselves as a Christian nation, the people whom, little more than a generation before, in the New England of the New England in the Ne they had found naked savages. For in 1863—the American board formally withdrew from the Hawaiian Islands, which it had entered in 1820.

Are the Missionaries Grafters? There, broadly stated, is one side of the situation. On the other hand, it has been charged, by innumerable persons and publications, that while the missionaries to Hawaii pointed the benighted native to mansions in the kikes they at the same time quiety took possession of the native's earthly real estate. That the whole island, even since it has become a territory, is the private graft of the mission aries and their sons is an accusation aries and their sons is an ac

As proof of this he said that he had recently found a native judge in one of the Honolulu courts—i think he said a United States court—worship ing at an old native indices the remote parts of the Island of Oah. Within a stone's throw of the Bishop museum, where, we were talking, was a broten down altar, which, at the time of the political overthrow in 1883, was reestablished, along with a somewhat general recrudescence of idolarly throughout the islands. Within three months, he further said, in the city of Honolulu itself, a native priest had fallen dead white conducting, heathen rites before the altar. The worshipers, fearful that the devit would catch them also, quickly bundled up the appliances of idol worship and carried them to Prof. Brigham, for they said, he would know what to do with the devit better than any other man of their acquaintance. As to education, it is enough to say that all the schools and academies and toolleges on the islands, had their origin with the churches. Conspicuous among these is the venerable Oahu college, which, in its Bishop museum, perpetuates the ememory of the last of the royal line of Kamehames the Great. Punhou college enrolls the students of the best families of Hawaii. Of so high a krade were the educational institutions established by the missionaries that Californians used to send their children to Honoliul to be educated. English is now, the only language taught to the children of this polygiot people; and the percentage of littleracy on the Islands is said to be lower than in some parts of New England. Nothing is more marked about the presenteday religious activity of the islands than the prominence given to education. Inclustrial schools, kindergartens and night schools are too common to comment. Seminaries for young women, theological schools, and what may be styled "academies" as well as the night schools, are, one or all, a department—of the work of almost every religious agency to be found here, including the Buddhists. Naturally, the printing press has been used from the beginning, and the oldest English periodical west of the Rockies is "The Friend," which is atill published by the Hawaiian board, the local successor to the American board. Savages Turned Missionaries. The Kanakas, once missionary objects, are now missionary givers. They support mission work among their own people, and for 47 years have been generous givers to missionary work on the Offbort islands, and elsewhere in Polynesia. About Star Points on Coins.

"Few people, with the exception of coin collectors, notice such minor details, but it is a rather interesting fact to note that on one side of some of our coins the stars have five points, as upon the flag, while on the other side the stars have six," an official of the Washington mint recently remarked.

"In English heraldry," he continued, "a correct star had six or more points—usually six. When designs for the first American coins were made the heraldic usage was followed and the stars given six points. The flag of the nation was made up very largely from the coat of arms of the Washington family, in which, for some reason, the stars have but five points.

"On the obverse of our present ome reason, the stars have but five points.

"On the obverse of our present quarter and half dollar the stars, 13 in number, are six pointed, while on the reverse they are five pointed. This difference is due to the fact that the reverse of these coins is simply a copy of the great seal of the United States, except that the clouds are omitted. On the great seal and on the seal of the president the stars are five-pointed, while the seal of the house of representatives shows six pointed stars."

Where She Lost Interest.

"Automobiling does tousle one's hairso!" said the beautiful young creature as they descended from the anchine and started up the dark walk toward the house where they were to call.

"It does?" he inquired politely.

"Yes; it gives it the same effect as though one had been strugkling to avoid being kissed," she gurgled.

"Indeed? I fancy you should carry a small hand mirror and some hairpins when you go automobiling," he suggested, moving right up the dark walk. Some way or other, by one of those unexplainable psychological impulses, at that very moment she begin to real ize he was not the man she would select as an affaity.—Judge.

"That's no lie," replied Brokley. "I had the grip last winter, and it's making trouble for me now. I tell you."

"Why, you're not in the hands of the doctor, now?"

"No: I'm in the hands of the doctor's lawyer now."

SAMSON AND DELILAH

A STORY OF THE PERSON OF THE JUDGES IN ISRAEL

ripture Authority:-Judges 16:

An Unworthy Love-There are strange inconsistencise in the lives of goed and great men, cometimes, just as we find in this lived goed and great men, cometimes, just as we find in this lived goed and great men, cometimes, just as we find in this lived goed and great men of such faith as to win a piece in faith a goed and great men of such faith as to win a piece in faith goldery in the elevanth of Hebrawe could fait so, low; that a man of so intense a patriottam could play en completely into the hends of the enemy; and yet it only reveale the freitlets of human nature. Its certainty proves the criptural declaration that the "heart is deceitful above all things and deaparataly wicked," and that "without God, men can do nothing" that is worthy or anduring.

Samson allowed this unworthy love to take possession of his heert and to exercise away over his life, and there was only one inevitable outcome, humilation, defeat, diegrace and angulah of body and spirit.

Samson loved Delilah. What was take in this woman that could appeal to the heart of a gody man? Nothing, surely, of the quality of goodness—It was a love based, not on character, but upon the outward, physical beauty which captivated the eye. Such love la allows appeal to the heart for gody man? Nothing, surely, of the heart for "out of the heart for out of the heart in the woman that love which takes possession of the heart for out of the heart for out of the heart for out of the heart are the lasues of 'life." If that love which takes possession of the heart for out of the heart are the lasues of 'life." If that love and interest of the heart of a gody man in the woman that the complete surrender is made as we the case with Samson, and one finds himself above of his strendt and one finds himself above.

as wee the case with Samson, and one finds himself shorn in the strength and undone. But if that love is 3 worthy one, there can be no more potent-influence for good over the life. It leads out from self. It made inspiration and help to higher ideals. It welcomes the hardship and self-denial which are necessary to the statisting of those ideals. And asy not that we have not the power of control over our invest. We have! We can will to love worthilly. We can cut his superficial smotions of the heart, and seak for those deeper expressions which will; interpret the will and love of God in our life. The area of the superficial smotions of the heart, and seak for those deeper the will and love of God in our life. The area of the state of God on the life. The area of the life in the life is the life in the life is the life as the leads and the degree to which he is given his rightful place, to that degree will the life be blessed and be a blessing unto others.

THE STORY.

O F ALL the daughters of the Philistines Delilah was the fairest. None could compare with her in beauty of face and form, and with the physical charms there went a vivacity well-nigh irresistible. Many were her-uitors among the lords of the Philistines, and ardenty-did they bestege her heart with all the wises of the fover's art, but to none did she give special encouragement. With hewitching coquetry she kept them fancing altendance to her and maintained her sway over them, so that the beaufitul valley, through which ran the brook Sorek, where she dwelt, became known as the enchantress garden where the queen of hearts ruled supprene.

Now it chanced in the course of his erratic travels through the land, seeking here and there adventure, watching the Philistines and curtailing their power, and judging life. own people, the tarseittes, that Samnen one duy came into the valley of Sorek. When his presence became known to the Philistine lords who were solouring in the place they were silled with fear, a condition of mind which was illy consaled from the eyes of the fair Delliah.

"Tell me, ye brave ones," she said, in tantaildne way as soon, as the wind.

The big barbeaue at Lexington, last Thurbady, gave the tobacco growers much encouragement, and inspired a greater effort in the business of pooling the 1907 crop. The very large acreage that has been pooled in the burley district coupled with the reports of the earness work being done in that direction, prompted the amouncement that the growers have worder light. This are greatest enthusiasm by the hundreds of growers present, each of whom went home determined to do all in his pawer to induce his naighbor, who has not pooled his 1907 crop, to or growers present, each of willing the growers present, each of willing his power to induce his neighbor, who has not pooled his 1907 crop, to do so at once. A scarcity of tobaccoplants was reported from a very large portion of the burley growers territory. This will assist the pool greatly, in its effort to maintain a good price for tobacco, as the supply to which the trust will have access will be reduced to a minimum. A received in the off of access will be reduced to a minimum, a received by those who are leading the fight for the growers, and it may be that the recent cold weather which it is claimed was so destructive to tobaccoplants was a blessing after all, and will prove to be an element that will enter largely into the success of the movement that has been closely watched for several months by the entire country. # Growth of Kindnes

Growth of Kindness.

The American people, in their needled work of reconstruction, are needled work of reconstruction, are needled work of reconstruction, are needled to the theoretic reference of kindiness and good-humor. A leader in reform, in a private letter, writes thus: "After all, human sympathy is the foundation-stone of democracy. I have imagined that our criticisms of life were hecoming kinder; I mean the ordinary run of newspaper criticism; and kinder means hroader. Some of us, perhaps, went rather far in the heat of attacky, and I think the increased kindiness, which leads more surely to sympathy, is an excellent tendency. Lately it has seemed to me that we needed more than anything else in this country kindiy explanations. If we could only understand one another, intolerance would expire." All of which is true, declares Collier's Westly and true, and expire." All of which is true, declares Collier's Weekly, and truly said, and charity is a friend and not an enemy

Lord Curzon, when he was a stu-dent at Oxford, burned the midnight oil, won scholastic honors galore, took a brilliant degree and won the grand prise of a fellowship. Lord Rosebery, on the other hand, took no honors, was rustrated, and didn't even get an ordinary degree.

Oil City, Pa., April 25.—Thaddeus Stevens Ross, of this city, was shot three times and instantly killed here by Miss Beile Stroup.

The Woman then shot herself through the heart. The tragedy coursed in the office of Dr. George W. Magee, while the physician was at lunoh. Both victims were members of prominent families.

Ross was to have been married Wednesday at 9 o'clock to Miss Drusilla Samsell, of this city. There were no witnesses to the shooting. The murderess and suicide was a former sweetheart of the dead man.

Ross was dining at home with his family, discussing the coming marriage ceremonies, when the telephone bell rang. His father answered the call, and a woman's volce made in quirtes for "Thad." Ross called his son and the young man, after answered the family he had to go to the doctor's office for a few minutes, but would return as soon as he could. This was the last time his parents saw him alive.

Relatives of His Wife Die Under Mis terious Circumstances.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 25.—Bert b. Bruce, a young druggist, has been indicted on the charge of murdering James S. Self and Ernest Gelsler, his wife's brother and step-father, respectively. Self died November 9, 1906, and Gelsler died April 4, 1906, both under suspicious circumstances. The lives of Self and Gelsler were insured in favor of Bruce's mother-in-law. The dead men's bodies were reexhumed recently and analyzed by experts. Gelsler's wife became very sick after her hushand's death, and she was taken to a hospital, where she soon recovered. Mrs. Bruce got a divorce from her husband, charging him with attempting to kill her. Bruce is in jail here St. Joseph. Mo., April 25.—Bert b

A Crisis in the Attitude of the Protectionists.

Less than three months remain be fore the German maximum tariff rate will go into effect against our products, unjess the German goverament will again extend the time. We know that conferences are being held in Washington between Secretary Root and Mr. North, director of the census, who was head of the commission to Germany to try and patch up an agreement, and now Baron von Sternburg, the German ambassador, has been called into the conference, so matters must be coming to a cilimax. It is announced that "it has been made plain to Secretary Root that owing to internal political conditions in Germany the Sovernment of the country cannot renew the order new in effect extending to American—products the benefits of the minimum turiff rates." But probably some other basis will be found for a new agreement, as it is evident that Germany has nearly as much to lose as we have by shutting out our meat and breadstuffs, the prices of which are abnormally higher in the German beast will be found for a new agreement, as it is evident that Germany has nearly as much to lose as we have by shutting out our meat and breadstuffs, the prices of which are abnormally higher in the German who have been been emplored to the stand-pat leaders may be as stiff necked as the Germany to allow us her minimum tariff rates on minimum rates. TWO BIG QUESTIONS

THE "MORAL OBLIGATION"
"DOES IT PAY?"

SHOULD BE CONSIDERED

Honest Answer to These Kaep the Trade with the Home Merchant Every Time.

Conviginted, 1998, by Alfred C. Clark.)
When the thrifty berson or his wife sits down for the first time—or any time—with the mail order catalogue and fix temptations, there are two, and only two, points to be taken into consideration.
One of these is moral obligation, and the chances are that that will be dismissed as sentimental nonsense.
The other is—Will it pay? and to that the thrifty person will be in clined to interpret an answer from the prices quoted in black-faced figures in the catalogue.
Neither of these questions should be lightly dismissed. Moral obligation is not sentimental nonsense, and black-faced figures sometimes lie.
The duty a man owes to his own community and his obligation to trade at home are so often reiterated in the country press that, possibly fike some of the preaching, it has a tendency to harden the hearts of the sinners.
What has your neighboring town household, and that among the duties to his family and to the heirs of his active is that of practicing fudicious comony—buying where he can by the cheapest and to the best darkings. And this brings us to the second point in the argument—the paramonia question in this commercial age—'Will It pay?'

By most people an affirmative answer to that question is accepted as the call of duty. As a matter of fact, "Will it pay?' is a good test to apply to any project or proposition. There are commercial, as well as periodism of the proposition of the commercial, as well as periodism or profit, duty or dollars, can scarcely do better than to sit down by Indemental of the provided stays, that he sees to the very bottom of it.

What are the relative advantages of buying at the local store and ordering from a cetalogue house? Advantages, understand, that figure in the question, "Will it pay?' Du't get away from that question. It certainly is very comfortable to at down by your own freelde and select a dress pattern or, a sulty plow from a printed description and a picture of the article much more comfortable, in fact, than hitching up and driving to town on a raw day.

A consideration more important, perhaps, is that the printed price in the catalogue seems, in some casea at least, to be lower than the price quoted at the local store. Isn't that conclusive? Let's see. The catalogue describes the goods and quotes a given you. Mr. Farmer? A market for your produce. What has made 25 to 50 per cent. of the present value of your farm? The accessibility of a market. You know what your grandfather did on that same farm? Drove his hogs and haused bis grain 30, 50, maybe 76 miles to the nearest market town, and received prices for them that would make you how! about the trust. And he haused back the family supplies for which he pald what you would consider monopolistic prices. Do you happen to know what it he old farm was worth then? Well, it lacked a good-deal-of being 375 or $100 an acre.

The fire of publicity is the medium the mail-order houses are using to destroy this community. It is up to you, Mr. Merchant, to fight the devil with fire. By the aid of the local press you can hold him over the scorching flames, and put a stop to his devastating competition so far as this community is concerned. Will you not assist in the good fight?

Yes, the home town, with its handy market, has advanced the value of your property and made you worth several-thousand dollars more than, your grandfather was worth. The home-town affords schooling for your children, and perhaps social and church privileges which your family would not otherwise enjoy. The rural mall routes and telephene systems, radiating from the home town, as apokes from a hub, bring to your home the greatest conveniences of modern times.

Have you ever noticed that the first thing tho settlers of a newly-opened reservation do is to send for a wagon load of mail order catalogues? Well, I haven't. They lay out a town site every six or eight miles, start-two or three general stores, build a school house, a church, a blacksmith shop, a grain elevator, bettition the department for a post office, and atart a newspaper. They know, from former experience that with these things chast without then they must live live of isolation and endure an existence that is contary to all natural humas, axincts.

On the other hand, it soes without saying, that the average country town cannot exist without then they must live lives of isolation and endure an existence that is contary to all natural humas, axincts.

On the other hand, it soes without saying, that the average country town cannot exist without the support of its tributery territory. Then, if that town affords the advantages for the rural citizen that have been enumerated, there exis price: maybe it gives a picture of the particle also, but you don't see the goods. The local inserchant shows you the goods. The local inserchant shows you the goods; you may examine them critically; he may allow you to test them or to call in an expert to advise you. Is it fair to conclude that the catalogue article is the cheaper just because the price is lower!

An element that must enter into the comparison of goods and prices is, that in any attempt to fool the. customer, the local merchant is decidedly at a disadvantage. He must show the goods, not merely describe them. His business depends wholly upon the limited trading area of his town and his ability to inspire confidence within that circle. He cannot afford to make a practice of misrepresenting his goods.

The mail order house is not so tied down to the maxim that "Honesty is the best policy." It has no neighbors, no fellow citizens, no mutual interests with its patrons. Its trade area is wide and always shifting. Naturally these conditions de not demand carrive ordinary vigilance is supplying honest-make goods. And where Vigilance is not a needed employe in the bust-ness he is generally taken off the pay roll, which makes a caving in expenses well as in the cost of the goods. It lower prices are quoted by the catalogue house, may not this account for it.

Will it pay?" Is it a matter of economy to buy interior and damaged.

lower prices are quoted by the cate logue house, may not this account for "Will it pay?" Is it a matter of economy to buy inferior and damaged goods when the same money, or even a little more, will pay for goods of the best quality? Which course does a man's first duty to his own household dictate?

But to get at the bottom of that question, we must consider the farreaching general effect of mail order trading. If single catalogue houses are to be capitalised at $40,000,000, they must be recknose with along with Standard Oil, the breef trust and rallroad mergers. If they are allowed to suck the blod from our country towns, your grandchildren will find

PLUTARCH NO. 3183

Will make the season of 1907, from the first of April until the first of July, in the town of Burlington, Boone County, Ky.; the remainder of the time at Jno. W. Clore's Stable near Hebron, Ky.

This Stallion is a mahogany bay, 16½ hands high, weighs 1350 lbs, and is the finest and most stylish stallion in the county. He has proven himself a sure foal getter, there being 85 mares bred to him during the season of 1906, getting over 60 per cent of them in foal.

Any one having mares to breed will do well to inspect this horse before going else where, as it must be remembered that this class of horses always demand high prices and to-day they are the highest price horses on the market.

TERMS-$20 to insure a colt to stand up and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare is parted with. Parties breeding must follow up the season.

Care taken to prevent accidents but not responsible should any occur. Positively no business done on Sunday. Impregnator used on barren mares if desired.

We will give a return season to the dams of the best horse colt and the best mare colt the get of this Stallion of 1907, to be shown the first Monday in September, 1908, (court day) at Burlington, Ky.

China Asks for Seeds.

Another proof of the awakening going on in China is furnished by the statement that the government of the Plowery kingdom has, through representatives at Washinston, applied to our authorities for seeds and samples of every variety of plant of recognized importance raised in our country. China is on the search for desirable crops, and apparently has learned a tesson by recent experience with famine, due to the failure of products on which the people rely for food. Nor is this all, says Troy Times. China will experiment with the products of other countries as well, and as she has a wide variety of soil and climate there is no reason to doubt that many new and valuable food articles will thus be secured. Furthermore, in coming to the United States she gets expert advice and friendly and effective cooperation. The department of agriculture has labored long and successfully in the same direction and has done a vast amount of valuable work in developing and improving crops. The hints borrowed from Washington bid fair to serve most beenfeent ends in China.

Witches Still Believed In.

Witches Still Believed in.

Neglected by the powers, witches ceased to be so notorious, but the belief continued to exist, and does exist how, in rural parts of Scotland and England; and in England and France, the towns, fortune tellers whether they charge a guinea or a shilling for their advice, are witches whether they charge a guines of a shilling for their advice, are witches under the terms of the old statutes, and flourish abundantly, but as they are not burned they are supposed by superficial observations to have been exterminated by school boards and electric lighting. The blacker sort of witch who "overlooks" and casts epells on man and beast may be found in many rural regions north and south. One of them was brought before a squire and J. P. of my acquaintance as a dangerous nuisance. He said to her, solemnly: "You know. Betty, the Bible says "Thou shalt not suffer a witch, to live in the parish," and she migrated, under certain conditions of compensation, to another-parish.—Andrew Lang, in the London Post.

One way Americans of the present day have of honoring the immigrants of the past was illustrated last month, when a statue of Commodore John Barry, the father of the American navy, was unveiled in Philadelphia. Barry was an Irishman, born in 1745. It was not till 1760 that he reached America as a seller complex. According to the control of the contr as a sailor, coming West Indies. He was here trom the West Indies. He was employed by Philadelphia merchants and owned some ships in 1776, when he was put in command of the Lexington, after volunteering to serve the colonies on the sea. He captured the first British warship taken by a revolutionary cruiser. He had been in America, or, more correctly, in business dealings with Americans, only ten years when he began to fight for them. John Paul Jones, another of the revolutionary naval heroes, was also an immigrant, but he began to fight for us when his connection with America and his interest in it had America and his interest in it had been much less than those of Barry. Reserved for Lawyers, Witnesses, Newspaper Men, Etc.

Boise, Idaho, May 6.—Practically every available room in Boise has been reserved for lawyers, witnesses or newspaper men in attendance on the court which will try William B. Haywood on the charge of murder of former Gov, Steunenborg.

That there might be some delay has been intimated from time to time, but the fear of this has now been dissipated by statements from both sides.

Ciarrence Darrow, of Chicago, and E. F. Richardson, of Denver, jointly leading counsel for the defense of Haywood, have begt has the they are ready for trial.

Counsel for the prosecution, James H. Hawley and Senator W. E. Borah, who have been engaged especially, are of the opinion that there will be no further delay.

An application for a bill of particulars, filed by the defense, will be argued before Judge Wood, who will try the Haywood case but as his devion is not appealable, it is not thought that this will cause postponement.

The history of the case of the men charged with the murder of Steunenberg shows much delay, all of which has been necessarily expensive to the state of Idaho and the defense.

The state has already paid bills to the amount of $32,000, and at the last session of the legislature of Idaho an appropriation of $5,000 and atthe last sension of the legislature of Idaho an appropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an appropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an appropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an appropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an appropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an suppropriation of $5,000 and at the same appropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an suppropriation of $5,000 and at the last sension of the legislature of Idaho an suppropriation of $5,000 and at the same appropriation of $5,000 and at the same appropriation of $5,000 and Wife to a Doorway.

Princeton, Ky.—The first blood to now in the long stege of lawlessness. Experience of the work of the long stege of lawlessness in connection with the tobacco question was that of a woman, the wife of Robert Hollowell, living near here. An armed mob of between 25 and 40 masked men appeared at the home of Hollowell and began firing through the windows and doors. Hollowell, wife and little son were ordered out of the house, with the command that they had come after Mrs. Hollowell. Mrs. Hollowell, against the advice of her husband, left the family room for the front door, and, upon reaching the hall, was shot list the face with bird shot. "You people have shot me:" she cried. "That is just what we came to do!" was the answer. According to Mrs. Hollowells, statement, one of the members of the mob gave a sign, however, and the firing ceased. She was told that they intended to kill her if she did not "quit taiking so much" and leave the country. Hollowell and his wife were taken to a corner of the yard and were given orders to leave the country.

INJUNCTION WILL HOLD

to the American Fobacco Co.

Frankfort, Ky.—Judge Barker, of the courts of appeals, declined to dissolve the temporary injunction granted the Woodford county board of control to prevent towner Kimbrough from delivering in tobacco Co. when it was pledged to the board of control. The case was argued. before Judge Barker, but he invited all the other Judges to sit with him and hear the arguments.

In his short opinion declining to dissolve the injunction he says the questions involved were discussed by all the Judges and so many diverse opinions expressed that he concluded it beat to let the case be Irled out on its merits in the court below and come up nappeal in the regular way, as the delay would work no hardship on Kimbrough, he being protected by an ample bond.

This means that the earliest possible time. a final, decision cun be reached will be next October, even if the case is tried at the May term of the Woodford circuit court.

OPINION OF ANTWERP CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

lacy of Argumants Made by Republicans.

The chamber of commerce of the city of Antwerp, Belgium, has Issued a report on the subject of ship-subsidy. Antwerp belig one of the three great seaports of the world, New York, Hamburg and Liverpool all ranking below her in the amount of shipping that use their-ports, the opinion of heraselected merchants and stipowners on the question of increasing a national mercantile marine by subventions from the state is of international limportance. It appears that subsidized shipping has not been a success at Antwerp, and a dispatch from Antwerp to the New York Journal of Commerce tells the reason why and points to the "splendor of the English and German fleets, created solely by private enterprise, and the decadence of the French, Spanish and Italian, whose governments have multiplied laws in favor of the national merchant marine." Germany, it is observed, has given subsidies as only a secondary aid, and only to two companies running million-dollar ships. Herr Ballin's dissatisfaction with the working of subsidies upon two vessels of the Hamburg-American line is cited. And it is shown that English ships, with no subsidy and with no privileges in the national coasting trade, succeeded in sweeping from the sea first one and then another Belgian subsidized service, and that the victors at last inherited both the trade and the official axors.

As to the necessity of a merchant shipping industry to a country, the Antwerplans declare that had there been any real necessity, either native or foreign capitalists would have remedied the deficiency. Not despite that it is grateful to the national pride to see goods carried under the national flag, it is found that the vessel's country of the control of the c snipping developments, they say, have occurred since she threw away her crutches. And M. Callaux, French minister of finance, is quoted to the effect that bounties and subsidies, like equirts of morphia, are soothing agents of which one must continually renew and enlarge the dose. What is especially feared is that, once inveshighed into a grant of ship-subsidies, Belgium may come to imagine the existence of her merchant feet in some way allied intimately with the prosperity of the nation. That illusion the members have endeavored firstly to combat.

In view of these unanswerable arguments and conclusions of the merchant princes of Belgium of the fallacy of subsidies and tariffs, it is not singular why the protectionist faction of the Republicans in the United States persists in urging congress to grant a ship-subsidy to favored ship-owners. Protectionism has so increased the cost of everything that our merchant marine has been made unprofitable and our ship-builders cannot compete with foreign yards, so to complete with foreign yards, so to complete the circle of protection the people must be directly taxed to support an industry that cannot compete in the business world. The experience of Belgium and other countries, which have treet subsidies and tailed, should be a warning to us not to get countrie in the net, which our protectionists to the marine for the countries of the superior of the countries, which have treet subsidies and falled, should be a warning to us not to get caught in the net, which our protectionists be a warning to us not to get caught in the net, which our protectionists have set for us.

NO SHIP SUBSIDY CONSOLATION FOR REPUBLICANS

Can Repuke the Trusts by Voting with Democrats.

As the people do not take kindly to Taft, Foraker, Cannon, Fairbanks, Hughes and the other favorite sona, there are many Republicans who turn to Mr. Roosevelt as their only logical candidate for president having declared that he will not be a candidate, and other ambitious gentlemen having taken himathis word, he has to all inquiries about his renomination reiterated the statement issued by him on the night of election day, 1904, when he said:
"On the 4th of March next ishall have served three and a half years, and three and a half years constitute my first term. The wise custom which limits the president to two terms regards the substance and not the form Under no circumstance, will be a gards the substance and not the form Under no circumstance, will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination."

There is nothing equivocal about that statement, for President Roosevelt has not only declared he will not be a candidate, but also that he will not be a candidate, but also that he will not accept another nomination if it should be offered to him. It is evident that President Roosevelt expects to dictate the nomination of his successor, although he has not openly declared whom he favors. Some think it is Taft, others Hughes, and others LaFollette, but none seem to fill the bill, because it is very doubtful if any of them can be elected. This extraordinary state of a fairs shows how subservient the Republican politicians have been to two corporation and trust influences, and how greatly those influences still dominate the Republican party. At least two-thirds of all the Republican members of the United States senate are said to be so controlled, and the membership of the house, if the question of patronage was eliminated, would undoubtedly be in the same proportion. A large majority of the trusts and corporations to keep them in power. Indeed, the evidence shows that even the reformers marked with the Roosevelt mading iron, are not averse to calling upon their trust and corporation to offer, that any candidate whom the Democrate with the Roosevelt mading iron, are not averse to calling upon their trust and corporation that, and will thus profered accretain escape from the tanging to the state containts and the tariff protected skin their own party has created in its efforts to carry water on both shoulders. The fact that the corporations and the tariff protected skin their own party has created in its efforts to carry water on both shoulders. The fact that the corporations and the tariff protected skin their own party has created in its efforts to carry water on both shoulders. The fact that the corporations and the tariff protected in the shoulders are party is a fair guaranty of the honesty an

Out-of-Season Politica.

Politicians are talking about who they will nominate for president.

The people will take a hand later, but are now trying to earn an honest collar.

The president is "seeing things," conspiracies and such.

When the time comes the people will take care of an econspirators that conspirace and such. When the time comes the people will take care of an econspirators that conspire against them. When the Republicans and the ambition of favorite sons are some same the ambition of favorite sons are some people care for Tatt or Forsker, Root or Shaw, Cannon or Cortelyou, and the rest of them? They are till tarred with the same brush, settling and sammon stick out at extending and sammon stick out at extending the people are set; they are tired of your vaporings and political mischlevousness.

tired of your vaporings and political mischlevousness.

Who knows how any of these Republican politicians stand on the tar-lif, the protected trusts, the labor issues and home rule and the rights of the states and the actual regulation of railroad rates?

The people know you favor plundening them by protecting the trusts, substituting the subjection of the protecting the trusts, substituting the subject of the protection o

The Republicans have already started the amenides of their campaign, for we learn from Gov. Crawford of South Dakota that Congressman Mann of Chicago "is one of the hired witches who stir the political stinkpot." There is no doubt the scandals and corruption of the Republican party are anything but sweet incense in the nostrils of the voters in South Dakota, Illinois, or elsewhere, but to have one of the party leaders of the G. O. P. declare the fact that that party is a "political sinkpot" shows the awful-condition of affairs.

The consensus of public opinion is that the president should take a complete rest. His friends say he is nervous and overwrought, and his belief that conspiracies are being hatched with signantic corruption funds at the command of the conspirators to defeat him and his policies, certainly justifies his friends diagnosis. A long sea voyage on a ship without a wireless telegram apparatus, so as to be free from the politicians, would no doubt work wonders with the president, as it often does with other people suffering from a similar malady.

town Exposition Contest.

The Interest in the popularity contest increases as the days go by, and during the week just closed there has been some lively work done on the part of the contestants, resulting in a considerable shakeup in positions. Miss Pell Utz has withdrawn while Misses Effie Hensley, of Peterburg, and Lula Jones, of Walton, have been nominated. They are both very popular and will increase the interest in the campaign. The contest is young yet, and the probability is there will be numerous changes in positions before it closes. There is not a name in the list but what has a chance to land the prize, and next week may bring another great change in the relative positions of the ladies, each of whom and her friends are in earnest. This contest will cless at 12 o'clock midnight, August 31, 197, and as soon thereafter as will suit the convenience of the successful indies, the visit to the Exposition will be made.

SERMONETTE.

The Triumph of Evil.—"Our god hath delivered Samson our enemy into our hand." was the boast of the Philistines. They saw in the dewnfall of their powerful enemy an evidence of the favor of their god Dagon, and a proof of their own prowers. And that is as far as they could see or understand. Evil always is half blind. Its vision is limited by the horizon of the physical and temporal. It climinates the true God as a factor and places superstition and pride upon the throne of reason. Evil Goes not recognize God as a controlling factor in the-affairs of life; it does not understand that it overreaches itself and brings about its own destruction. But from the Divine view.

But from the Divine viewpoint, evil triumphs over the good because ein is permitted to usury the place of God in the heart and life. The fortress of the heart is impregnable until the little side door of sin is opened to admit the enemy. Samson was a defeated man from the moment he let the earthly love usury the place of God, and the final yledding te the importunities of Delilah was but the inevitable outcome of such unholy alliance.

"Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God; for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth He any man; but every man is tempted when he is drawn, away of his own lust and enticed. Then when lust and enticed. Then when lust hath conceived, it bringeth forth death." Recovered Strength. But while evil in its bilindness was glorying in the fall-of-themighty Samson, the mercy and forgiveness of God were being bestowed upon a repentant sin-en. What evil can do to a man is nothing to what God can dorn him. Samson shorm and bilind and in the power of the enemy may yet rise above the miserable conditions into which hie is has plunged him. He may again become the instrument of righteousness to the condemnation and judgment upon cvil.

"If we confess our sine He is faithful and just to forgive us hot fron, was almost enough to drive him mad? Yes, the humilialion and despair as he heard the clanking chains and feit the brutal blows which welded the heavy fetters on hands and limbs cut to the very depths of his soul! But all that excusianty ordeal was as nothing now to the anguish of, soul he endured as the accusing voice of conscience cried out in his heart and condemned him. He, the Nazarite to God; he, the chosen one of God to deliver and judge Israel; he the mighty champion who had never known defeat during all the 20 years he bad judged Israel, come at last to this! Could it be possible?

He shook himself to see if he were awake, and it was not all a hideous dream, but the clank of the ,chains came as an answering voice. He lifted his trembling hands to the sightless eyes.

"Oh, God!" he cried, "how could I have done this thing?" And in the agony of his despair he beat upon his breast until the ring of the rattling chains echoed and receboed through the prison house.

Like a flood there..swept across his breast until the ring of the rattling chains echoed and receboed through the prison house.

Like a flood there..swept across his soul the memory of his wrongdoing. How he had allowed himself step by step to be drawn into the power of that wicked woman. How he had sought his own case and pleasure and had forgotten his high calling and obligation. And, worse still; how he had allowed himself step by step to be drawn into the power of that wicked woman. How he had sought his own ease and pleasure and had forgotten his high calling and obligation. And, worse still, how he had sought his own ease and pleasure and had forgotten his high calling and obligation. And, worse still how he may have a same and the step of the heart of a profane and profligate Philistine woman.

During these meditations, when it seemed as though his very soul would be crushed by the burden of his guit and his God had forsaken him forever, there came into the prison house a company of the lords of the Phillistines, whose elaitine w fice to our god, Dagon, for see how he hath delivered, into our hands our enemy.

The words aroused Samson, and long after they had departed he kept repeating them over and ever and saying to himself:

"Nay, if was not the god Dagon, but my sin that brought me to this place. Shall Dagon, indeed, receive the giory?" And he buried his head low between his knees as he realized how grievously he had compromised the cause of his God. And even while he was thus bowed there came whisperling to his soul that with his God there was forgiveness and mercy.

"Oh, God!" he cried, as he lifted his slightless eyes toward heaven, "let this thing come to pass that I may yet show that it is to God that victory be longeth! Let not these uncircumcised Philistines forget that the God of Israel and not the god Dagon ruleth!"

From that moment something like.

is nothing to what God can do for him. Samon shown and blind and in the power of the enemy may yet rise above the miserable conditions in the condemnation and judgment upon evil.

"If we confess our sins He is cathful and just to forgive us could shut out the light of day from his eyes, but they could not chain down his heart. They could bind his spirit and prevent it from reaching out and finding the forgiving and restoring God.

After all, how circumseribed are the powers of evil. How the servant of God ought to realize the possessibilities which lies where sin has cast the condition where sin has cast the following the physical eyes were never to see again, not so with the eyes of the soul. Faith touched the strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a the strength of the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength to the humble and restoresh them which be of a strength and possessing the strength and possessing the strength and possessing the strength and power came back to him. The feeds Upon the Prosperity of the Country Towns—A Menace to the Nation,

(Copyrighted, 1986, by Alfred C. Clark)
As the years go by we are more than ever brought face to face with the vital question of trading at home. During the past decade the habit of buying 80 cells abroad has grown to such proportions that the country merchant may well feel alarmed at the probable outcome unless something is done to forestall the great calamity which will surely result therefrom.

Trade conditions 25 years ago were satisfactory. At that time catalogue houses were entirely unknown and country merchants were "monarchs of all they surveyed," so to speak, in the lines represented, and the people were prosperous and happy. Perhaps not so much because they senerally, and money enough to meet their wants, but because of the contentment that prevailed throughout the country at the contentment that prevailed throughout the country at the third time. The farmers raised good crops, generally, and received good prices for what they had to sell. They sold their surplus stuff to the local merchant and bought what they wanted; and this was the height of must advertise. He must do more than must advertise.

A Fish Story.

"Trout protection! Nonsense!" said a gunner of local eminence. "Trout are amply able to protect themselves. Look at their depredations among ducks, for example, and you will agree with me that it's the birss that need protection. It's a common thing for a trout to jump from the water, selze a duck by the neck, drag the unfortunate fowl into the depths sufficiently to leave its feet sticking in the air, where it can get no purchase upon the universe, and thus drown it. Then the trout picks the feathers from the bird, eats it at its leisure and swims away out of the jurisdiction of the courts. Are there any fishermen? None? Too bad. This would be a match for one of their fish stories."

But Cuticura Cures Them.

"My wife had eczema for five or six years. It was on her face and would come and go. We thought we would give the Cuticura Remedies a trial. We did so and she has never had a sign of eczema for four years. I myself used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Gintment some time ago for failing hair. I now have a very heavy head of hair. We used Cuticura Remedies for our baby, who was nearly baid when young. She has very nice hair now. She is very fleshy, and we had so much trouble with heat that we would bathe her with Cuticura Soap and then apply. Cuticura Cintment, it would dry the heat up so much quicker than anything else. ADVANTAGE A WIDOW HAS.

Watch Husband's Flirt.

"I saw such a pretty woman at a disadvantage the other night," the lift-tie real widow was saying. "She was married. She was sitting at a table with some other pretty women and handsome men and her husband. Her husband began to flirt outrageously with one of the women. I wish you could have seen the look that came over her face. Everybody in the room saw how distressed she was.

"Now, what I want to know is this. Why didn't she go to work and flirt with one of the handsome men fo get even? Anyone of them was quite ready and willing, but, no, wives never seem to be able to do that. They just sit ready to cry, with everybody noticing. o

Riverside has a population of about 12,000. Its principal business and the basis of its wonderful prosperity is the growing and shipping of oranges and lemons. To those who visit Riverside to-day and see the wealth of beautiful orange groves surrounding it, the hundreds of miles of well made and shaded streets, its beautiful public and private buildings, its numerous packing houses where millions of hoxes of the choicest fruit is prepared for market, its hard to realize the transformation, which in little more than a quarter of a century, has changed the dusty treeless plain into such a bower of deepest green and made it not only richly productive but among the most popular of the State's winter resorts. There are no saloons, nor slums. There are five parks, four hotels, twenty five churches, fifteen public school buildings, twenty miles electric railroad, twenty thousand acres oranges and lemons and ten thousand acres alfalia. The largest concrete bridge in the world spans the Santa Ana river three and one half miles south-west of the city.

Old Times and New.

There is said to be a decay of politeness among our children whose fathers and mothers were brought up to be very respectful and ceremonious in behavior. Perhaps nowadays the young are too independent and that reverence for old age went out with the substituting of yes and no for the affirmations to which sir and ma'nm were attached in the old days. So, too, the adoption of the words man and woman for lady and and many were entacted in the both days. So, too, the adoption of the words man and woman for lady and gentleman may have made the young-sters and their sisters more forward and presuming, and it may be that the banishment of the curtuely has made girls less modestly blushing and centimental than their predecessors in the juvenile world. Still, the taking off of the hat to women by boys and men of all classes is more general than it used to be, and we believe that profamity is less prevalent than it was once, for the vigorous fathers of the republic were somewhat given to using strong expressions, and eventue august Washington was accused. to using strong expressions, and even-the august Washington was accused of uttering a big, big D under the stress of powerful emotion. And it must be acknowledged that there was a good deal of hypocrisy in the fine phrases that, were current in the days of hoop and gown, and that youth was made familiar with hard drinking earlier than it is today. There is less belsure now than formerly, says Bos-fon Budget, and people do not have time to cultivate the graces of their forefathers, but at heart they are quite as refined in feeling and less cruel la punishment than were their ornate ancestors, and the boy and girl ornate ancestors, and the boy and girl of the present only illustrate other times and other manners and not de-

Humor and Compassion.

Humor means far more than the laughter of a fool or at one. It goes often hand in hand with compassion. It is always sane and acear-eyed, and none the less so for its kindly smile and thrill of aympathy as it contemplates the follies, follies and faults of men. In the sympathy lies its kinship and acquaintance with pathos. But it is the sanity, the clear-sighted mess, of humor that keeps the pathos from degenerating into pathos or anything that could be described as maudilin, writes Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster in North American Review. Homor is on the best of terms with sentiment, so long as it is true and healthy. When, however, feelings have passed from their natural spontance ounces into a secondary stake where they have become self-conscious, are called out for drill and marshaled for parade, then sentiment has degenerated into seutlmentality. Genuine humor is too loyal a friend of truth to fave anything to do with such artifacted in the secondary with sentimentality. or to associate with sentim

Bars of His Cell.

Gainesville, Ga., May 10.—Raving from brdrophobis, A. J. Hulsey dashed out his brains against the bars of a cell in the county fail.

Hilsey was bitten a week ago by a pet dog. Symptoms of rables developed, and two days ago, feeling that he was growing violent, he asked to be put in jail. After being confined he rapidly grew worse, and no one dared enter his cell. Foaming at the mouth and gnashing his teeth, he began butting his head against the bars with all his might, and in a few minutes had dashed out his brains.

THROUGHROTTENTIES

TWO KILLED AND FIFTEEN HURT.

curred Was One of the Most Dangeress Places On the Road.

Mayaville, Ky., May 11.—Two dead, ten seriously injured and the slightly injured was the result of the worst wreck in the history of the Clutchnatt, Flemingsburg & Southeastern railroad, which occurred three miles east of Flemingsburg, when the narrow gauge combination passenger and relight train went through a 50-foot trestle over Fleming creek.

The dead are: Charles Thomas, Covington, Ky. An unknown traveling man, weight about 212 pounds.

The seriously injured: D. Rankin, Covington, chest, hips and head crushed: Apring. Mrs. Rankin, crushed; will die. Baby Rankin, head mashed, legs mashed; will die. Clarence Browning, Flemingsburg, fireman, head crushed. Mat. Bramble, Flemingsburg, legs crushed and arms broken, Addie Newman, Grange City, 18, hip broken and internally injured. Curd Moore, Flemingsburg, englineer, internally injured. Charles Dudley, Flemingsburg, assistant superintendent of road, head cut and leg broken. Mae Rawlins, aged 14, arms and leg broken.

The wreck was caused by, the collapse of the rotten timbers in the bridge as the ongine entered from the cast side, and, before Engineer Moore could check the train, the wooden structure, the engine, passenger coach and freight car dropped in a pile into the creek.

There were 17 persons on the train, and not one escaped injury.

Those slightly injured were brought here, where the homes of the residents were thrown open, and they were so scattered that only a partial list could be secured. Within 20 minutes after the wreck 300 people from this city were on the grounds.

Women converted themselves into nurses, and physicians from Elizaville, Ewing. Mt. Carmel and Poplar Plains were summoned to attend the suffering.

Ewing Mt. Carmel and ropist reasons were summed to attend the suffering.

Lake Dudley, general manager of the road, was one of the first at the scene, and with the assistance of the farmers living near the wreck the dying and injured were brought here without delay. The trestle, where the wreck occurred, was regarded as one of the most dangerous places on the road. In fact, was looked on as a death-trap.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS

COURT ENCOURAGES THE WETS. First, Second, Third and Fourth Class Cities Have Separate Say.

Frankfort, Ky.—The court of appeals handed down a local option decision, and it contained some encouragement for the "wote" in first, second, third and fourth class cities. The case was Yates, County Judge, vs. Nunnelly, from Georgetown. The court says it makes no difference if a local option election has been held in cities of these classes within three years before an selection is ordered in the whole county, but that county judges, must fix the distribution of the city a reasonable time to sile application for a separate election on the came day as the city; that if an election is ordered for the whole county it necessarily includes any city in the county and juniess a petition for a separate vote is filed the result of the city as well as other territory in the county. The decision in the whole county supplies to the city as well as other territory in the county. The decision simply means that no sharp practice can be induled in to revent cities of the classes mentioned from holding a separate election if they wish, as contemplated by the county unit jaw adopted last year.

SIGNATURE FOUND

Which May Mean Millions to the Fisher Family.

Lexington, Ky.—Miss Piroebe Rossiler, of Orfordsville, Wis, secretary and recorder for the Fisher family in the United States, has just discovered at Harrodsburg, Mercer county, the signature of Adam Fisher, which, she says, will establish the title of herself and relatives to an estate valued at $61,000,000 in Germany. Miss Rossiler had been looking for the signature in many cities where there are relatives, but in vain. Adama Fisher and Bartett Fisher were residents of Culpeper County, Va., early in the last centry, and siter came to Kontucky with snother brother. There was another Adam Fisher in Culpeper county, Va., and his relatives are now making a fight for the estate. It was Adam Fisher, of Kentucky, who founded the reat German estate. The wills of Adam, Stephen and Barnett Fisher were found on file at Harrodsburg—dam's will, traced his signature and eff. at once for Virginia.

Man-Hunters on the Trail,

V. and Coi. Milton, adjustant general, nave issued a general order calling atention to the reunion to be held May 30 and 31 and June 1, 2, and 3. The Kentucky division will go to Richmond, Va, in a special train.

Looks, Dark For Pharis.

Lexington, Ky.—Gov. Beckham was petitioned by the Maccabees not to aerdon Fred Pharis, convicted of the nurder of Fred Ketterer, and sentenced to the penitentiary for five ears. It is said that every Maccabee Tent in Kentucky will send similar petitions to Gov. Beckham.

Night Raiders Again.
Sanders, Ky.—The large, tobacco warehouse of W. A. Shirley & Bros. was destroyed by fire, the work of an accendiary. The warehouse contained 130,000 pounds of tobacco valued at 130,000, on which there is insurance of 116,000. The owners handle tobacco for the Society of #5quity.

LOST BY HEAVY MAJORITY, But "Drys" at Mayaville Maintair Their Courage.

Mayaville, Ky.—One of the greatest days in the history of this 125-year-old town has gone and the fight of the citizens against the salcon is lost. For three weeks the temperance wing had kept up a campaign of speaking, marching and indefatigable work, striving to convince the people that they should abolish the liquor houses.

The adherents of the "drys" started at 5:30 a. m., with prayer services on the porches of residences opposite polis, while in near-by yards were tents from which women workers dispensed hot coffee, sandwiches and other edibles to all who would partake. The "wets" had worked then side "on the quiet."

bles to all who would partake. The wets" had worked their side "on the quitet."

There are six voting precincts in the city, and the "drys" carried the Sixth only. They had expected to carry the Fifth and Third also. Out of 1,690 votes cast, the "wets" polic! 975, maining their majority 348.

Throngs of school children, led by prominent men and women, headed by a band, marched all day through the thoroughfares, hundreds of flags fluttered in the air, with dozens of banners, on each of which was inscribed. "Bables or Bottles; Wife or Whisky, Home, Hope and Heaven; Heil, Heathendom or Hades; Let's Close the Whisky, Home, Hope and Heaven; Heil, Heathendom or Hades; Let's Close the Whisky, Home, Hope and heaven; Heil, Heathendom or Hades; Let's Close the Whisky, Milis and others ad infinitum."

The greatest crowd of Mason county-citizens in Majswille for years came in and the streets had the appearance of a festival, but the intense interest depleted on their councenances clearly showed how much at stake the country folk had.

DEBT OF $3

Prompted the Negro to Blow Off His Former Employer's Yeard.

Former Employer's Needs.

Lexington, Ky.—Newton Veal, 40, a farmer of Todd's road, was called from his field and shot to death by Robert Hawker, a negro formerly employed by him. The negro field, and has not been captured. Intense excitement prevails in the community where Veal lived, and threats of lynching are heard on hil sides. The assassination was the result of ili-feeling over a debt of $3 owed to Veal by the negro. A week ago, when the negro, the week ago, when the negro field, a dispute came up as to the settlement and Veal threw a rock at him. The negro force to the farm of Veal and, finding him at work in a field near the house, asked him to come to the road, saying, "I'm ready to settle." Veal waiked into the trap. When he arrived at the road the negro, without a word, reached behind the seat and, pulling out a shotgun, fired at Beal's head. Veal's head was blown off.

NOVEL SIGHT WITNESSED.

Steamboat Rode High and Dry on the Log Raft.

Catlettsburg, Ky.—The novel sight of a steamboat-riding high and dry on a log raft was witnessed by scores of people here. There is a big timber run out of the Big Sandy river and a large fleet of log rafts broke away from the men in charge and swept out into the Ohlo, carring before it the steamer Natchez. The boat was crowded against the city wharfboat and there stuck until the raft worked under it, when the whole mass broke lowes and swept down the Ohlo, the stouner being carried almost out of water. The fleet was landed about three miles below town.

TRUST HIGH PRICES

COST OF COMMODITIES ARTIFI

At Least 25 Per Cent, of the Advanc Fax Paid to Monopo Protected by the Tariff.

The average price of commodities is now so high that it is most likely the highest point has been reached for this year and probably for a year or two to come. It is therefore of the utmost importance for consumers to understand where prices have not increased in proportion to the cost of living. That a great percentage of the increase in prices has been artificially rereated by allowing the trusts a monopoly through tariff protection is plainly shown by the fact that as soon as the Dingley bill was enacted in 1887 organization of trusts, combines and pools was accomplished on an enormous scale and hear to boost the prices of their products and have constantly increased prices to the present day. If you have saved your old bills for groceries, dry goods, etc., for 1896 or 1897, and compare them with your bills of to-day, you will see that the average increase in prices is over 50 per cent. Has your income increased in the same proportion, or are the trust high prices compelling you to economize? As the question of a high tariff or a low tariff is a political issue that must be decided at the coming national election you, of course, want to be sure of the facts, so that you can vote for the system that is best for your pocket. As but lew people keep old bills, but destroy hem after a year or two, it is well to inave the actual statistics of the increase of prices to arrive at a correct solution of the question. What is known as "Dun's Index Number" is "cognized officially as the most perfect stallsties on the rise and fall of wholessed with the same period. This increase in prices is not, however, chargeable to the tariff protecting the trust, for in England, when the price is not, however, chargeable to the tariff protecting the trust, for in England, when the price is not, however, chargeable to the tariff protecting the runting the same period. OUR CUBAN DANGER.

Great Problem There and in the Philippines.

Secretary Tath has been in Cuba trying to still the troubled political waters, but when the elections have been held the deteated party is pretty certain to raise—well, something else than sugarcane. The question then will arise, must we indefinitely take possession of Cuba, to prevent disorder there? Dr. Andrew D. White, former ambassador to Germany, confesses to a great dread of annexation, and of seeing what would really be a great need of annexation, and of seeing what would really be a great need to respect the confesses to a great dread of annexation, and of seeing what would really be a great need to see the series of powerning Americans. As Dr. White is one of the greatest living Republicans, his observations on Cuba are entitled to respectful consideration; but, perhaps, like all Republican leaders, he is tainted with the Hamiltorrian heresy that even the "common people" of the United States, much less the Cubans, are not capable of governing themselves, but must rely on a centralized oilgarchy to direct them and even dictate to them.

—If, on a second trial, the Cubans prove unable to give themselves a stable government, and it is necessary for the United States to again intervene, that will be their own fault, and they will have to be satisfied for some time with a territorial government. When such a time arrives the question of admission as a state in our unlon, or of independence, will have to be settled by our congress and referred to a referendum vote of the Cuban people for rainfactation or refection. The same course will have to be pursued with the Philippine islands, for it is difficult for Democrats to believe that any-people are not capable of ultimate self-government and will son trive to attain it.

Our Republican friends got us into this mess and, for the time being, they are responsible, but under a Democratic administration much of the friction will be obliterated, and with a more simple and less extrava gant government our wards will soon attain all in the freedom they are capable of u

MONOPOLY REMEDY.

It is refreshing to find that, at least, one of the intelpal universities of the country is not under the control of the corporations, judging by the address of the president of Cornell, Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, at the Washington birthday celebration at Comaba. Dr. Schurman said:
"I suppose there is little don't the birthday celebration at Omaha. Dr Schurman said:

"I suppose there is little doubt that in some few industries monopoly actsally exists, and oppression is actually practiced by making the public pay extortionate prices. There are remedies within reach which may be used at any time. In the first place, trusts which are monopolistic and oppressive may be deprived of, the advantages which they now enjoy as a result of railfi or other iegislation. If any tariff schedule does actually enable a trust of exploit the people for its own enrichment, that tariff schedule is doomed, no matter how much talk there may be of the sanctity of the tariff, or the solemn duty of standing pat."

This is rank hereay against the

there may be of the sanctity of the tarfif, or the solemn duty of standingpat."

This is rank heresy against the sacred-tariff and will, no doubt, be punlshed by the Protective Tariff league and the Republican standpatters by anathema and excommunication. The anathema plan worked with Chairmap Payne of the ways and means committee, when the president in his tariff reform period had caused that venerable standpatter to sit on the fence until he knew where he was at. The organ of the league in consequence de nounced Payne as verging on imbeellity. But the president recanted and Payne became orthdox again and has since held down the protection ild quite earlely. But out on the western prairies there is a greater air of freedom and anathematising. Gov. Cummins of lowa did not work and for that matter Gov. Guild of Massachusetts has defied the league and the Boston Home Market club and their standpat doctrine. An alliance with the Democrats is the only hope of these Republican tariff reformers, for the Republican party is wedded to its idol of protecting the trusts.

Where Was Dingley's Statue?
It cannot be said of Mr. Carnegie that he has robbed or murdered anybody, nor that he has incited his agents to commit arson. Neither han he systematically undertaken to break down the laws of the country. What he has done is to take advantage of the inequality and ajustice of the law to gather into his own hands the fruits of the labors of his fellow men. He has done nothing illegal, but, of course, he has availed himself of all the opportunities which the statutes offered. ... It was a decided slight to a sacred memory that the at the head of the splendid procession of the great and learned which marched to the Carnegie institute for the dedication ceremonies there was borne no statue of Mr. Dingley. Not only should an average image of that statesman have headed the procession, but next to him should have come? symbolical figure of the prohibility tariff which is the foundation from which all Mr. Carnegie's beneficent wealth h.s flowed.—Portland Oregon itsu.

Is The Race in the Recorder's Jamestown Exposition Contest.

This is the beginning of the sixth week of the RECORDER's popularity contest, and the candidates are going along in 'a bunch, neither is sure of having as good position next week as she has this. This is a contest in which bustling qualities will tell, and at this early date there is no reason for suspecting that one of the ladies is any better huster than either of her rivals. By looking over the total vote, it will be seen that a very few new subscribers captured by either one of the ladies not in the lead might give her first place. 1 is a mightly pretty contest and one is which a great many people other than the contestants are interested. CONTRACT FOR ADVERTISING

The catalogue man recognizes in the advertising agent his most powerful assistant. He realizes that it is advertising which brings him his orders Let the local merchants awaken to the fact that the local papers can do for them just what the advertising agents do for the catalogue houses and the flow of money to the city mall order houses from this community will stop.

age of injustice to the community itself. In the first place, some merchant loses the profit on a sale. Not only that, but the price of the article represents so much of the merchant's capital which is tied up in the article and is not working. Having capital tied up means that the operations of the merchant are curtailed to that extent. He has that much less to spend; that much less to pay in salaries to his clerks; to pay in patronage of the butcher, the baker and the other purveyors of the necessities of life; to invest in property, in newpaper advertising; to deposit in bank where it may be used by other members of the community, or to devote to church or charity. The money which goes to the mall order house decreases the percapita of circulation in the community; a factor which determines largely the value of all goods or property on the market; the scale of wages and the interest on loans.

It is not hard to trace the effect of the diversion of money from its legitimate channels. When money is scarce trade languishes because of the lack of circulating medium; merchants and all others curtail expenses; the volume of money increases, trade moves and it moves as fast as the volume of money will permit. Money that is working is constantly producing produces stagnation in trade.

Accordingly, it is to the interest of overy member of a community to conne list expenditures as nearly as possible to the community and it have to a sible to the community of the lives. Every dollar he spends at home is because they are more salable. When a community has money with twich to buy there is little difficulty to sell and if the money is not divery desired to all; money that is one is because they are more salable to sell and if the money is not divery desired to the community of the progress of the sell support of the community of the progress of the sell support of the community. Spending money it home is a species of loyalty which haves every community to reinvest the money it produces in the community which produces it.

The chance of being swindled is an argument used sgainst trading with the mail order houses. Goods advertised at cut prices often fall to measure up to the description of the advertisement. The few cents which is saved on the price of an article so bought is usually sacrificed in the quality of the article. Buying from the mail order house is buying blind. A purchaser never thinks of buying from a home merchant without examining the goods, but will often send his money to a mail order house with blind faith that the article will prove to be as represented. How often this faith is misplaced can be proven only by comparing the goods bought from mail order houses with the goods offered for sale at home. If the mail order house with the goods offered for sale at home. If the mail order house with the goods offered at home are of better quality and as good bargains as the mail order goods, taking quality into consideration. If this presumption is true, the buyer of mail order goods is a distinct loser, as he has secured inferior goods and has robbed the community in which he lives, as well as himself, of the uses of the money.

BORAX IN THE DAIRY.

A Matter of Profitable Interest to the Farmer and Dairyman.

A few years ago most anything "went" for milk or cream or butter so long as it came originally from a cow. Now things are changed.

The public realizes, the dairyman realizes and the farmer realizes that there is just as much difference between milk from sweet neenstis and milk from "stale" utensils as there is between milk, and chalk and water.

The problem of keeping, sweet all the utensils used in connection with milk and cream seiling, and butter making, has been a serious one with the farmer.

He has come to realize fully that the slightest taint or hint of staleness left in a can, tin or churn may ruin a whole output; that the taint which is left is in the form of bacteria which grow and multiply in milk or butter, producing disastrous results.

The farmer has learned that hot water won't rinse away the greasy residue in dairy utensils.

He has learned that soap leaves a residue of its own which is, if anything, worse than the milk or cream residue, and it is little wonder that there has been a constant clamor for a dairy cleanser and sweetener that will meet modern requirements.

A few of the largest ereamery establishments have called experts into consultation on this problem and have with this scientific sid hit upon a product of nature which exactly fills the bill—Borax.

Selentists have long known Borax as a cleanser, a sweetener and a natiseptic destroyer of bacteria and germ growths. Destroys all that is harmful and promotes and preserves freshness, sweetness and purity, relieving the dairyman and dairy housewife of drudgery and of needless work and worry.

Its cheapness and value should give the first place in the necessities of every dairy.

THE COW'S UDDER is kept in a clean, healthy and smooth condition by washing it with Borax and water, a tablespoonful of Borax to two quarts of water.

acted assinguished acrees in the cape seed known. In private life she is Mme. Zoitan Deme.)

The singer who would have a career must begin almost in infancy, unconsciously, perhaps, at first, and directed oftentimes by the tender training of a far-seeing mother, as was my own good fortune. Later, as the years advance and the aim and end of things became more surely recognized, art assumes the place of first importance in one's life; if it does not, there is no call to a career. But all this period of preliminary training and hard work is but the preface to the book which holds so many chapters.

When a young woman steps out on the stage schoolroom of the studio into the public one of the theater. There her hardest lessons have to be learned, her hardest battles fought. Much may present itself to her in a light that will-distillusionize, but the beauty and nobility of her art will grow more strongly with her apprediation and prove at once her supreme comfort and compensation for the unpleasant side of things.

In the making of a prima donna there is nothing more important than recognizing an opportunity when it arrives. The great chances are not presented at the very outset.

One recollection comes to me very vividly of an experience of my own. When Mr. Gilmore, then in the zenith of his success, offered me an engagement to tour in concert with his organization, many friends considered it beneath the dignity of my-position to "sing about the country with a brass band," as they put it. But I went quietly shead and accepted the opportunity. The tour extended not only throughout America but Great Britain, and finally to Paris. At the end of it I had saved sufficient to fulfill my plans and to go to Italy to make final preparations for a grand opera career. The darkest moments and the most serious migritings are apt to precede the best success. After singing Eisain "Lobengrin" in America and Engaland, I accepted the finvitation of Mme. Wagner to create the role at the feat with the strength of the control of the final the great composer's widow, and the members of her family to lighten the strain upon my mind and every faculty, but go where I might the great festiple-haus seemed to pursue me with its shadow.

Oftener than once I was tempted to have my things packed and fee from the end always in view, and the unversus strain to which the singer is powers and abilities the task that the moment presents.

In the making of a prima donan Italy is the best field for training, because of the great number of theaters in small towns where opera is constantly presented. First, however, before a thought of this debut in opera, the American girl who wishes to be a prima donan must have undergone a thorough vocal training in her own country. When the foundation is one laid comes the time to consider foreign study and not before. During the arrived and ritally important period of study of the many who come to sing to me, I am sorry to acknowledge that there frequently appears an impatience on the part of the American girl, who sheen he first heard the expression "royal road coller and the stress of the cultivation of this higher mental equipment. Through studies in this direction and thorough towns a study it to portray the control of the

The being in a foreign country, such as Italy, so picturesque and full of color, awakens the imagination strongly. Music is there as old sweet story learned unconsciously through hundreds of years, until it is instinctive rather than acquired. How quickly the audiences in those little opera houses will tell you whether you have anything in you or not! They are not infallible, out. If they do not receive if young singer with some degree of recognition it is time for that singer to undergo a rigorous self-questinger to undergo a rigorous all questinger to undergo a rigorous all questinger to undergo a rigorous and a rigorous and are not infallible, but if they do not receive a young singer with some degree of recognition it is time for that singer to undergo a rigorous self-questioning as to what the matter was, and then set about rectifying it to the best of lier ability.

In early life, when we would have every season June, the months that come before the wished-for time seem long ones, but without their passage June would never be.

Every young prima donna longs some day to sing Bruunhilde, but before she can do that she must have sung her Violetta, her Leonore and the lighter of the old Italian roles. When that is done the Aida, the Elsa and the rest come in their order. Gradually, with the growth of strength, hyaique, routine and experience, she reaches a height where Brunnhilde and isolde stand among the immortais. Here again it is the same maxim: "Make hatse slowly"—to do each thing that we undertake so well that it becomes a part of us before we go on to the next.

Nowadays, when any pera singer is called upon to sing in three or four languages, the study of those languages, the study of those languages becomes of great importance and cannot be begun too early. It proves a source of surprise to those whose opinion is asked by young singers, that so many of them, even in the delivery of a familiar, time-worn aria, do not know what it is about. Without a full knowledge of the meaning of each word and of the situation in which an aria is placed the singer destroys its prime element. It is impossible to make others feel that which jou do not feel yourself. How can we feel that which is sealed to us in meaning? It is out of the question.

This leads again to an important matter and a critical one—excess of

This leads again to an important matter and a critical one-excess of feeling. The moment that one loses command of one's self, in that moment is lost also the command of one's audience. Between genuine feeling and the loss of self-control there is as distinct a difference as between sentiment and sentimentality. A painter in depicting a scene on canvas must work with enthusiasm, imagination, fervor and ample technique. The moment, however, that he loses the quality of self-command, he loses as well the control of his subject and a blur and jumble is, the result. With the singer conditions are ideatical.

By a paradox, which is as well an unalterable law, the singer must be peruitarly responsive on the emotional side, which means a highly developed nervous organization, and yet she must have her nerves under absolute control.

It is scarcely necessary to repeat here anything so well recognized as must have her nerves under absolute control.

Oftener than once I was tempted to have my things packed and fiee from the ordeal. But after wakeful nights of anxiety the morning hours would find me again preparing for the test that had been decided upon. When that test was over, the way had been paved for the study of the Frunahilde and Isoide, the final end and aim of those who would rightly claim the titte of dramatic-singers.

High ideals and high aims mark out for one a thorary path which can be trodden but a step at a time with the end always in view, and the univarying rule to do to the best of one's powers and abilities the task that the moment presents.

ADVICE FROM ONE WHO NNEW.

Proof of Dire Results That Follow Change of Occupation.

"When I was district atterney," said Judge Sweney, of Shasta county, Callfornia, "I secured the conviction of Montana Jack, a highwayman, who was something of a humorist. When asked by the judge whether he had anything to say against sentence being passed upon him Jack admitted that he had no protest to make, but that he would like to give a few words of advice to the young men in the room. Permission being granted, Jack said:

sald:
"Boys, my advice to you is to stick to whatever you are doin." Don't change your occupation, or you'll never get along in the world. Look at me. I was a successful burglar for years, never got caught, and collared lots of dough. Then I turned highwayman and got caught in my first hold-up. And here I am, all the result of changing my occupation. Whatever you are, boys, stick to it."—Woman's Home Companion.

And He Was Not German.

One of our third grade teachers noticed a little fellow the other day during a penmanship lesson who was evidently absorbed in his work and putting his whole soul into his efforts to make his results look like the teacher's copy upon the blackboard.

Thinking such devotion worthy of special reward she passed up the sisle to give him an encouraging pat upon the head and the regulation smile of approval. As she drew near she noticed that his lips were moving, and that with the completion of each letter he compared it with his copy and muttered audibly, "damit," "damit," then screwed up his courage and his lips for a new attempt. The teacher passed on without distracting his mind from his work.—Journal of Education.

Agricultural Prosperity.

Signs multiply pointing to another year of agricultural prosperity. From every direction come reports that the hardier grains and fruits are doing well, and in the winter wheat region the prospects are particularly cheering. The New York Trihune has made careful inquiry in the great grain-producing states, and announces that "the year's wheat crop will be a buniper one, despite reports of bugs and drouth;" that Kansas, the foremost wheatgrowing state, has the largest winter wheat acreage ever planted, with the growing grain classified at 100, or perfect condition; that planted, with the growing grain classified at 100, or perfect condition; that Jowa is planning for the greatest harvest ever gathered there; that in Nebraska the condition of winter wheat is 100, while Minnesota and South Dakota seem certain of big yields, with increased acreage and plants in unusually fine condition. In some parts of the middle west there has been a slight failing off, and in Texas and Oklahoma some damage by bugs has been wrought, but the general outlook is most reassuring. And a big year for crops means steadiness and confidence in commercial circles.

It is interesting to know that the Golden Rose of Virtue, which the pope has decided to bestow on the queen of Spain, and which was first presented by Pope Urban VI. to Johanna of Sielly, is a mimic plant of pure gold standing in a golden pot. The leaves of the plant are set with small diamonds in limitation of dew drops. A paim tent blessed by the pope is set in the central flower. Among the living princesses who possess the Golden Rose are Queen Christina of Spain and exEmpress Engenic It is the highest order that the pope can confer on a Catholic princess.

When John Burns entered the Brit When John Burns entered the British cabinet there were rumors that he would refuse to don the cocked hat and epaulets of official uniform. The king asked him about it. "Not true," replied Mr. Burns, "and, besides, I have already worn your majesty's unform." The king naturally asked when that was. "When I was in Pencionville," answered Mr. Burns, alluding to his three months' sentence after the Trafaigar square riots.

Portraits of prominent Americans appear upon postage stamps, internal revenue stamps and paper money, but never on colns. ### MERCHANT

HE SOMETIMES DRIVES TRADE AWAY FROM THE TOWN.

HINDRANCE TO LIVE MERCHANT

Are as Much to Be Feared as the Competition of the Catalogue Houses—Should Be Awak-ened or Buried.

Why should the home merchant be patronized instead of the mall order house? The subject has been exhausted almost and from all points of view and all sides there is no valid reason why the merchant at home should not—excepting two, price and articles wanted.

articles wanted.

It is not the intention of the writer to fot down a pleasant flow of language or to produce an interesting hit of reading matter, hit merely to state in a few simple sentences what have seen and learned of the competion between the catalogue houses and the home merchants. In the first place no one community suffers greatly in this competition. That makes the problem all the more difficult in solution. I mean by this that the majority of hayers in no one community purchase by all the more difficult in solution. I mean by this that the majority of huyers in no one community purchase by mail. The business of the mail order house is scattered over a large territory, the number of orders coming from any one community compared with the whole is comparatively small to the number of orders in the town. There is an exception to this in a community where the home merchants are dead ones and ask exhorhitant prices.

or harvest sale or the like? But why not? These two storekeepers are hit ter against the mail order houses, wonder why? I talked with the rail road agents in that little city and ne sale lots of hardware and furniture was abipped in. He said, "One day I made out an express order for $14$ to pay for a bill of hardware. I told the man to go up and see if the merchan couldn't fill the order. He went but soon came back, saying that he didn's have half of the stuff on hand and that he wouldn't fill the order. He went but soon came back, saying that he didn's have half of the stuff on hand and that he wouldn't cut a hit on what he did have?"

Column after column has been written deploring the fort that the huyer spends her or his money away from home, that she or he is halping to work the men of the home nerchant. The sent timent is good and the cause is worthy of the efforts being merchant. The sent timent is good and the cause is worthy of the efforts being merchant. The sent timent is good and the cause is worthy of the efforts being her participt; I will ever overcome the bad effects of the dead merchant in the little town. The truth can he plainly seen.

I have wandered from the subject and gotten over on the buyers side of the fence; but isn't it well at times to look at the other side of this pittable story? I started to write a few lines on "Why People Should Trade at Home," and have gotten into the field of "Why Hender Hell the work of the subject to the little town to once in a fair to the little town to once in a

When the local editor and the local merchant put their shoulders to the wheel of local progress the town will move, its industries will thrive, it will prosper. But remember the editor cannot do it all; he asks and must have the merchant's assistance.

To illustrate. There is a little city in the central part of Wisconsin, a beautiful little place, with its shady streets and pleasant homes. It has several and pleasant homes. It has several ageneral stores owned by live wide awake merchants, who are husting for husiness, yet are always hustling for husiness, yet are always hustling for ready to vlsit with a customer. They are not put out at an area of the city of color and maybe then asking even a five-cent sale. They take that as part of their husiness; not have in a five-cent sale. They take that as part of their husiness; not have in stock that is wanted by a customer; their stocks are uppotent of their stocks. There and in the local papers are changed requirity as how time and study. They meet the mail order man more than half way in special sales and clearing of odds and ends. Here is an instance where there is no legitimate accuse for K. person sending away after goods. On the people do not. Very few articles of general merchandise are shipped into that city. The buyer and seller are working in harmony to their own betterment and advantage.

But look at the other side. The city which we have in mind after the size of their circle of trade and probably with some strumbles about the store amounts. They present the store amounts in special such as the store amounts of their order of these store amounts in super stocks of order to stocks for the size of their c

No Market For Pikers, Say The Who Know—Houses Grow Rich In Commissions.

Chicago, May 20.—The past week with its "dellar wheat," has been a his toric one in the annals of the Chicago boar of trade.

While statistics on the quantity of wheat which changed hands are not obtainable, the assertions of veteras are an imprecedented proportions are not contained. There have been wild sessions in the wheat pit before, notsiby when "corners" were being run, when prices ductuated more violently, when small ciliques made or lost—mostly lost—imposing fortunes; but never before has there been a broader or hetter sustained general market.

Never before, have grain brokers done a larger business. Hardly a house in town has a sufficient force of clerks in the pit to fill the orders which are pouring in from Maine to California.

Nor are there enough wires to handle the mass of daily business.

The inevitable, therefore, has happened, and only the larger orders have been considered. In the language of the pit, "It is no market for a piker." Crop reports, private and public, the solemn yerdlets of "exports," statistics, and the enticing literature of the commission houses who are growing rich on commissions alone, very noticeably in detail, but they are practically united in the statement the world can not grow this year all the wheat it needs to consume.

Even Liverpool importers, who usually work for cheap wheat in America, have bought directly in this market, a present of the completed to take in the rich world "traders proclaim loudly still higher prices, but take profits on good advances.

NO KISSING IN CHURCH.

Galician Peasants Punished for Un-

Twenty Ruthenian peasants belonging to ispay, in Galicia, have been sentenced to various terms of imprisonment, from a week to a month, for lksing each other in church.

A fend has arisen between two parties in the town, and the priest preached a sermon in which he urged the peasants to make friends before they came to church again. They took him at his word, and on the following Sunday the two hostile parties marched up the church aide hy side, and klased one another on both cheeks in the Polish fashion to seal the reconciliation.

The kissing scene excited loud aughter among the members of the congregation, and the priest prosecuted the peasants for unseemly conduct in church. The court held that a church is no place for kissing and form he pressants guilty.

LAILROAD REGULATION.

The railroad managers are trying to create the impression that the government regulation of railroads will prove diasstrous to the business of the country, and that therefore congress and the state legislatures should "let the railroads sione." But the people who have been and are being plundered by those corporations feel that drastic legislation and strict enforcement of the laws now as the statule books has become medessary. It is well, therefore, to inquire just what the public demand, namely: Reasonable passenger and freight rates.

Safety and reasonable celerity in transportation of passengers and goods.

Fairness and equal rights to all persons and places.
No watered stock and bonds.
Cessation of stock-föbbing operations by railroad managers and directions by railroad managers and directors.

Discontinuance of political activity and corrupt lobbying.

Taxation of railroads on the same hasis as other-property.

These seven requirements would seem to be fair and reasonable and why trying to enforce them should produce business depression, or ruin the railroads, can hardly be sustained by evidence or the facts in each case. Everyone is glad to see the railroads prosper, their employes well paid, with reasonable hours of service and all modern appliances for their protection and the safety of the traveling public.

As it is impossible to have competition except at terminal points or where two or more roads touch the same place; it is useless now to attempt to abolish combinations. Six great combines now control about all the railroads and competition, except with water routes, is virtually abolished. The public has received no benefit from the dissolution of the combination between the Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington railroads and the energy of the administration, the department of justice and the supreme court has been entirely wasted in the dissolving of the Northern Securities company, for neither freight nor passenger rates have been reduced thereby, nor any advantage gained by the public. Looking at the matter from a political point of view this useless effort to restore competition is all the Roosevelt administration has accomplished. The railroad rate bill of the last congress has given the interstate commerce commission more power to investigate railroads and say what rates are unreasonable one is virtually lacking, therefore rates are the same as before the law was enaacted. The Spolis of Office.

The Spolis of Office.

The Republican politicians will abuse each other and fight over a few petty federal offices, it appears that President Roosevelt has turned down the hencheme of Hon. James Wolcott Wadsworth, who for 20 years has been the most influential Republican leader of eastern New York, and for the same period representing the Thirty fourth district in congress. The refussi to continue his friends in office has led him to declare: "The whole thing stamps the president as urneliable, a faker and a humbug. For years he has industed in lofty sentiments and violates them all for the sake of gratifying a petty spite. It is appairent that he intends to persecute in a like manner every federal officeholder who is so unfortunates as to be my-friend. Thank God, he can't fool all the people all the time, and the country is fast a wakening to the resil character of this hioody hero of Kettle hill."

The reply to this should make the recent voicanic outbursts tame in comparison and that Wadsworth will be relegated to the Annanias class goes without saying.

It use to be that the local option question was a stumbling block to candidates, but not so since the anti-whilsky sentiment has become so pronounced in Kentucky, and now some of the sapiring geutlemen who, some of the sapiring geutlemen who, are the same proposed as the same proposed as the same proposed consolation into the cars of the whisky men, are openly declaring that they have always been local option men.

On the 21st day of May, 1883, the corn was up and many had begun plowing it. That afternoon a cold rain began fall ng, which turned to snow, and on the morning of May 22d, twenty-forn years ago this morning, there was four inches of snow on the ground. There was great alarm among the farmers, many of whom thought their corn was rulined. While it was not the cold weather put a kink in it which it took the warm weather some time to remove. It is with the weather as it is with everything else—It never gets so bad but what away back somewhere in the dim, distant past it was worse.

The fact that Judge Cantrill is, and has been for some time, drawing a salary as a member of the Court of Appeals in this State will be worth many hundreds of votes to the Republicans in the State election next fall. Judge Cantrill being a man in good eigenmastances makes his holding on to the office with its big salary the more reprehensible, and, his action is a burden to the Democratic place of the office which he holds made it necessary to increase the duties of the office which he holds made it necessary to increase the number of members of the Court of Appeals by the appointment of a Commissioner, when, if Judge Cantrill had resigned the Judgehlp as he should have doen filled and the Commissioner rendered unnecessary. But as it is two salaries at one you, it seems that all some people care for is to be on the salary roll.

To most of the people in Bethlehem Noami and Ruth were but poor, needy unfortunates. To the former the surprised word of greeting on her return was apoken, and sympathy expressed, and then she was forgotten. For the latter there was the curious, wondering gaze of the neighbors and friends and townspeople of Naomi, and the unapoken query as to why she had come and what she had hope of gaining.

spoken query as to why she had one and what she had hope of gaining.

But to one person at least in Bethichem there came an appreciation of the purity and atrength of character of Ruth. He heard of Naomi's return, and being a kinsman of her dead huaband he might have felt annoyed at the thought that here was a poverty-stricken relative who would make drafts on his bounty. He heard of the coming of the daughter-in-law, and he might have listened to the unkindly criticism which must have been dropped as the strange woman from a strange land came into their midst. What selfish purpose had she carry and her poverty might have so prejudiced his mind as to blind him to the rare womanly virtues which she possessed. But his love for real goodness was so keen and gnuline, and his high-minded judgment so free from bias and impure motives that he was able to understand fully "all that Ruth had done," and though he had not seen her, he loved her. DAZ was absent from Bethlehem at the time of the return of Naomi and her daughter-in-law. Ruth, but on his reaching home this bit of news was among the first to reach his ears, for the townspeople had not yet cased to goosip concerning the event. In factile had searcely gained the gate of his village before he was surrounded by a group of neighbors who poured into his interested-ear all—the story of Naomi's life and misfortunes—in the iand of Moab, and of her having tost husband and sons there, and of her return in sorrow and poverty to the old home she had left over ten years before.

there is one more mouth to feed Everyone in talking about the matter. Was it not folly enough that Naom's sons should have married contrary to the law of israel, and now must we have constant reminder of their sin by the coming into our midst of this Moabitish woman?"
"But did 'Naomi urge her to come?" saked 'Boax.

"But did rasum: use saked Boas."
"No," admitted the other; "it seems that both daughters-in-law started to return with her, when she rebuked them and bade them return to their homes and their people and their gods This. Orpha, the wife of Chilion, did not be the same than the same

"But had she no friends to go to

"Had she not, I do not think that

"Had sine not, a up not continued and a continued and a come?"
"Yes, I believe I did hear some one say that Naomi had told them that Ruth had renounced the gods of her people, saying that she had come to know that they were no gods at all, and that she could not return to serve them."

"And does she believe in the God of the Hebrews" questioned Boaz, who was a devout Israelite and served God with loyal whole-heartedness.

"Yes," the other went on to explain: "this woman, Ruth, it is said, clung to Naomi, pleading that as she had chosen the Hebrew people as her people and the Hebrew God as her God, she be permitted to return with her."
"And since coming thither, how bath

God. she be permitted to return wisher."

"And since coming thither, how hath ske done?" Boaz continued, persisting in his questioning, for he had perceivedast the very beginning, when they had begun to tell him of Naomi's return, that there was a prejudice against the Mosbitish woman who had come with her, and he was too fairminded to condemn her hastily and on too insufficient evidence.

"Her whole thought has seemed to be for the comfort of Naomi, and it must be admitted that she has worked unceasingly to provide for their simple wants," was the admission.

"Yes," spoke up another, "and when the neighbors and friends of Naomi mould have provided for them. Ruth declared that she had come not to be a burden but a help, and many is the deed of kindness which she hath found time to do while yet busy with the tasks which would buy them shelter and food."

The drift of the conversation having been started in that direction, there were others ready to tell of incidents in which Ruth had displayed her sweet, self-sacrificing devolion to her mother-in-law, and also of her faith in the God of the Hebrews, so that when Boaz-had-left the true the whom who had been to think about.

Naturally he felt special interest in Which Ruth had displayed her sweet, self-sacrificing devolion to her mother-in-law, and also of her faith in the God of the Hebrews, so that when Boaz-had-left the group and gone on to his own home he had much to think about.

Naturally he felt special interest in Which Shoublith woman's So he thought as his mind kept recurring to Ruth. During the busy days which followed, for the barley and wheat harvests were near at hand, and he had much to look after, he could not rid himself of the thought, and he went over and over again in his mind all that he had had and concerning Ruth.

First of all, he settled in his own mind that her motives for coming to Hetchehm were purely unselfish, for the strange land and strange people could not offer her the same certainty of home and friends which her own land would ha fron the devotion which she had shown since her arrival in Bethlehem.

So, as the days went by, the desire grew up in his heart to see her. He had reached an age when he felt he was beyond sentiment, and for this yeason he could not quite define or understand the stirrings within his own breast. He knew he grew into the habit of listening for some tidings of Ruth, and more than once he questioned his neighbors and friends concerning her. In this way he became, familiar with every detail, almost, of her life in Bethlehem, for people did not seem to three Her goostp which centered shoul. Narmi and her Moshitah daughter-in-law.

"She must be a good woman." Boax would say to himself. "Fam glad she has come to Bethlehem," and he would go on picturing to himself his home with such a woman in it. Then he would laugh and shake off the "spell," as he would call it. But Ruth on his lips came to be a sweet word, and Ruth came into his thought as though she had somehow always been there.

So I went until, during the midst of the barley harvest, he came into his field one day and, while talking with the foreman of the reapers, his attention was attracted to a figure quiety following in the wake of the men as they cut and gathered and stacked the grain.

"Whose damsel is this?" he asked, and while the words were helme us.

Former Chief of Police Locked In Cell—He Had Mortally Shot His Successor and Fled.

Bellevernon, Pa., May 17.—A desperato buttle was rought here between Chief of Police Thomas L. Guess and former Chief of Police Thomas L. Guess and former Chief of Police W. L. Cate, is which Guess was mortally wounded. After shooting his victim Cate forced his way out of the jall and began to "shoot up" the town. After more than 100 shots were fired he was placed under arrest and hurred to Unfontown on a special train to prevent him being lynched. Cate had heen chief of police of Bellevernon until last October, when he was supplanted by Guess. Cate went to his home and obtained his 38-caliber automatic revolver. As he was leaving the house he told his wife he was going to kill Guess.

When Cate appeared on the street Guess placed him under arest and took him to the town lock-up. Taking his prisoner isto a cell, Guess began to search him for a knife, when Cate slipped the revolver out of his coat sleeve and shot Guess through the head. Guess pulled his gun and fired twice as he dropped to the floor unconscious.

Burgess Leonard Thompson heard the shooting and quickly organized a posse. Armed with a nondescript of weapons the posses thrated after Cate. He ran to the tollhouse of a bridge and there barricaded the place. A veritable heim of bullets was poured into the ititle tollhouse, and Cate returned the fire, but none of the bullets struck any of the posse. Finally Cate's ammunition was exhausted, and Burgess Thompson and Mackey rushed into the tollhouse. Cate fought desperately, but was clubed into insensibility. By this time the mob had taken possession of the unconscious Cate, and, kicking and dragging him through the streets, was preparity to lynch him in spite of the efforts of Burgess Thompson and Mackey rushed into the tollhouse. Following Desperate Duel.

Maccn, Ga., May 17.—A duel to the death was fought 100 feet in the air between Foremst Battle, in charge of the construction of the federal building, and D. M. Berry, one of his assistants. The duel took place on the very top of the building.

People in the street below saw the two men struggling on the roof. One appeared to hit the other with some weapon. The blow scened to paralyze the stricken man, who was selzed by his antagonist, pushed to the very verge of the roof and then buried off to the pavement below.

The body in its downward flight struck scaffolding after acaffolding, and every bone must have been broken before it reached the ground. Spectators discovered that the dead man was Berry.

Officers went to the top of the building and arrested Battle, who admitted having fought with Berry, but said that he had fallen accidentally. Battle says that he was attacked by Berry, with an iron bar, and then defended himself.

RUEF PLEADED GUILTY

PATHETIC SCENE IN COURTROOM.

Trial Abandoned—Sentence Will Sep Pronounced in Two Weeks.

San Francisco, May 16.—Abraham Ruef, better known as Abe Ruef, the acknowledged adviser of Mayor Schmitz and once the recognized distance of municipal effairs in San Francisco, pleaded guilty to the charge of extortion in Judge Dunne's department of the superior court. Sentence will be pronounced upon him two weeks hence.

After a private conference with his four attorneys in Judge Dunne's private chambers, and after they had with drawn from his case, because of the resolution he had taken to change his plea and aryold trial. Ruef, to the utter astonishment of the prosecution, arose in court and announced in a dramatic address that after long and earnest consideration he had determined to withdraw his plea of not guilty and effer a plea of guilty. He asked that the Jury be dismissed and the trial abandoned.

Ruef read his statement from a manuscript which he had prepared a few moments before Judge Dunne's chambers opened. He showed in his voice, in the expression on his face, in his quiet and gestureless, attitude and by the tears that again and again overhowed his eyes, the great emotion and utter humiliation that he had suffered. The pathos of the scene was communicated to the crowd that thronged the courtroom.

municated to the crowd that thronged the controom.

Tears spraing to the eyes of veteran newspaper men, who have been lifelong acquaintances and whose papers have conducted against him and his political associates a long and bitter eampaign for the purification of municipal affaits. The accused man wab several times all but overcome by emotion. When he reached the final words of his address—"I desire to withdraw my plea of not guitty and enter the contrary plea"—his volce was sunk to a whisper. But so intense was the silence that it reached to the far corners of the room.

The First Coined Money.

The First Coined Money.
When metals were first used for payment they were simply weighed. The next step was to issue pieces of gold and sliver which had been weighed; and then in time it became the custom to mark the exact weight and value on each piece. This was first done in Assyria and Baylonia, where shekels of pounds of gold and sliver have often been found. The idea of coining money was first conceived by the Greeks of iona in the seventh century B. C. These people stamped or each coin their city arms and seal, thus giving the guaranty of their state for the correct weight and value of the coins. The custom spread rapidly among all the Greek provinces and into Italy. The oldest gold coins are the yellow shekels of Babylonia.

These were stampled only with the arms of the country, which thus made liself responsible for their proper weight. Nearly all of the more modern coins derived their weight from the scale of value established by the 6th shekels of Babylonia.

The appraisals are high on many of the buildings, as compared to actual cost. The valuations are placed, and as they are exemptions there has been no occasion to appeal for their reduction.

QUEER KINDS OF CURRENCY China and Parts of Russia Have the Most Unique.

Chinese money is traced back three thousand years before Christ. One imperor objected to copper coinage, tathered a whole issue together, burded le deep into the earth, and threw in on top the workmen employed in fliging the pit. The pu and tao currencles were struck in the form of scraps of cloth of knives for barter, and were in existence from about the seventh to the second century before Christ. The commonest of Chinese money is the cash, a round metal disk with a square hole in the center; a housand of these are worth barely 75 cents. One's cook in China gees to market with great strings of this heavy money round neck, shoulders, and waist, but even when weighted with as much as a strong man can carry, very little of our money is represented. On the Russo-Chinese borders treen tea pressed into bricks has been the money of the country for a thousand years.—Sunday Magazine.

Don't Poison Baby,

RTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it hears, the signature of Char H. Fletcher. TAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."

Dr. Alexander E. Mintle, of Cleveland, Ohlo, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children."

Dr. J. S. Alexander, of Omaha, Neb., says: "A medicine so valuable and heneficial for children as your Castoria is, deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."

Dr. J. A. McCiellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use Castoria for my own children."

Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it:

Dr. J. H. Gilidden, of Sc. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no healtancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Peace.

Making peace with an ax is diminishing in popularity among modern rulers. With the ancients, however, the above means seemed to he the only kind that really counted. Caesar, after laying waste a Gaelic province, reported in his gentlemanty Latin: "The barbarians are pacified." It is related that a Gothic ruler once became converted to the Christian faith. After mourning for some weeks over the blindness of his people he called a general conference of his chiefs. At his right hand stood a missionary, at his left hand a gigantic executioner, who held a broadax suggestively rest: who held a broadax suggestively rest ing on the block. "Friends," said the king, "I have brought you here this king, "I have brought you here this morning in order to teach you the great truths of Christianity." Religious enlightenment came easy in that state. These events occurred before the principles of arbitration were understood. The aim of our modern peace conference, says Collier's Weekly, is to teach the spirit of tranquillity to the individuals who form the units of the nation. The number is increasing of those who have the most definite and conclusive reasons for, beliefur the trightourses $\frac{1}{2}\text{trightoursess $\text{trightoursess $\text{trightourses nite and conclusive reasons for, believing that righteounsess find peace

Helping People to Self-Help.

Helping People to Self-Help.
In America we are just learning that the greatest giff you can give a bitind man is the ability to earn his own living. Demmark extends that boon to the half and malmed as well as to the bitind. A workman crippled in a Danish factory knows precisely what to do. He goes to the school for disabled workers and learns to support himself without the lost arm or leg or finger, as the case may be. The school has made an exhaustive study of trade chances for crippled folk. It provides tools, food, medicine and free orthopedic treatment for its unfortunate pupils, buys their work as soon nate pupils, buys their work as soon as it is saleable, and once they know a as it is saleable, and once they know a frade finds them positions. Here, says Mary Bronson Hartt in the World's Work, is a prophecy for the future extension of the American movement for the industrial independence of the blind.

M. T. Oblaski writes in the Revue Scientifique concerning the North American Indians, particularly those of Canada. He is pessinistic as we their future. He notices two principal types of red men. One comes from the regions of the Pacific, is of small stature, slender limbed, fond of the water, non-aggressive, and indolent. The othef is taller, attonger, has more prominent features, abides by the land, is gay, and fond of hunting. He finds the Canadian Indianmuch more civilized than the Indian of the United States. But, from a Marwinian point of view, he foresees the ultimate disappearance of these aborleines. Among them there is no struggle for existence; for they are housed, fed and educated by the government; and for this reason natural selection has been interfered with, The evils of civilization have taken hold of them, and will destroy-them. Assaint in Taking Her Life.

New York, May 23.—Amelia Stat-feld; 15 years of age, was assauted and naurdered on the outskirts of her father's farm in Elmburst, I. I. The crime was committed in a lonely spot, where the girl had wandered in search of dandellons, and the weapon employed was the kitchen knife which she had used to sever the crowns from the roots of the wild flowers.

The girl was seen entering a pasture to on Baxter avenus by Joseph Engle, who was engaged in hauling fertilizer in the vicinity. Engle afterward saw the girl at work pleking dandellons. He found the body at 4 o'clock. Engle says that he saw a man crossing the tot in which the girl had been about three quarters of an hour before he found the body.

New York, May 27.—Murdered by tightly closed upon him was the fate that befell an Armenian priest, supposed to be Rev. Father Casper. His body was found in a turnished room on the third floor of No. 333 West Thirty-seventh street.

Every available man in the detective force of the West Thirty-seventh street station, in the shadow of which the murder was committed, is at work on the case.

There are several theories on which the police are working. The most romining of these is that the priestwas killed for the purpose of robbery.
Another, which several detectives from the central office are following, is that the priest was a victim of a feat which has existed in the Greek and Armenian churches in Jersey City.

Two men are suspected of the crime, and the police any that an arrest is probable at any moment.
Heary Sherrer and his wife Anna

They were known to her as "Paul Sarkis" and "John." They had the front room, for which they paid $3 a week.

"Sarkis" is described as being about 21 year old, short and of slight build and of medium complexion. With a slight, dark mustache. He said he was a carpenter. "John" is about 35 years old, weighs about 135 pounds, has dark hair and is smoothly shaven. He was employed in a restaurant.

Mrs. Sherier said the priest went to the house to visit the men three timbs to her knowledge. The last time he was seen was Wednesday morning at 8 o'clock. He stayed in the house overnight twice, sleeping in a small room off the one occupied by the two men. Wednesday morning he left the house, accompanied by "Sarkis."

In the afternoon two men delivered a trunk to the house. One said he was an expressman and the other told Mrs. Sherrer his name was "Sarkis," although he was not the "Sarkis" although in the front room. Mrs. Sherrer said she noticed it was heavy and that the men had difficulty in carrying it up the states.

"John" and "Paul Sarkis" returned to the house in the evening. Mrs. Sherrer said, and, after writing some letters in the kitchen, told her there was some mistake about the trunk, that the wrong one had been delivered. They said they would take it away, but as they had not paid for their com for the week she said they could not take it out. That night they disappeared and they have not been seen in the neighborhood since.

Frankfort, Ky.—The court of appeals handed down its opinion in the courtested election cases from the city of Louisville and Jefferson county, upolding the contentions of the fusion late and declaring the election void, thus reversing the decision of Judges Miller and Kirby, of the Jefferson circuit court.

The court-rules that Gov. Bockham has the power to fill the vacancies by appolatment, and an election for all city and county officials is ordered for next November. The decision of the court is unanimous.

The effect of the decision is to depose the entire list of officers, from county judge and mayor down to fingistrates and minor city officials.

The court settles the question of the temporary succession, giving the governor authority to appoint to fill the vacancies pending an election by the people. The governor is to appoint the mayor, the city boards and the vacancies predig and they are to fill all minor places under them.

President of Big Monopoly Tells How Opposition is Crushed When Competitors Become Active Factors in Business.

How thoroughly competition in iron and steel has been abolished by the United States Steel corporation by its treatment of arrival manufacturers is perhaps hardly realized by the public. As the steel trust produces 65 per cent. of all the iron and steel in the country its managers can undersell any competitor and in fact did do so in 1902-4 when the demand for iron, and steel was much less than now. The way competition is prevented has just been deacribed by Elbert H. Gary, the president of the steel trust, who saft!

"While we are friendly to our com-the president of the steel trust, who saft:

"While we are friendly to our competitors, and are willing and ready to assist them in every way, they know we will net permit them to cut established prices. We make so many things that a single competitor could not live if he invited our opposition. If he manufactured structural front for instance, we could reduce our selling price to a figure below bis cost of production and drive him out of business. In the meantime we would be making our usual profits on the regs of our products. If a maker of rails, however, can get $29 a ton when we charge $28, that is his good fortune, and we don't object. But if he accepts $27.95 he is likely to hear from us."

and we don't object. But if he accepts $2.75 he is likely to hear from us."

The monopoly of prices by the trust will not perhaps ruin its competitors while the product of all-iron and steel factories are in such demand as to be sold in advance of manufacture, but when this extraordinary demand lets up and there is a surplus awaiting a market, the ateel trust will have its competitors at its mercy.

As the steel trust is protected by the tariff from competition from abroad, it therefore dominates the harket in this country and can dictate prices that all American consumers must pay. The only way to force this gigantic corporation to terms, is to reduce the tariff on its products, so that to prevent competition from abroad, it would be compelled to reduce its profits to a more reasonable basis. As the steel trust officials boast they can produce iron and steel cheaper than anyone else can, the Republican stand-patters chatter that to reduce the tariff would injure business is merely an excuse to continue protecting, the steel and other trusts in charging unreasonable prices.

As iron and steel have become a kreat necessity and enter into the prices.

All iron and steel have become a great necessity and enter into the manufacture of such a number of articles of daily use, it is a great drain on the consumers to-have therprice so largely increased. Stores, tools, machinery, nalls, the plate, household intensils, rooting, cutlery and all other manufactures of iron and steel are taxed under the present tariff from 20 to 94 per cent. Every one pays their share of this tariff tax of the tariff allows the steel trust and other manufacturers to charge by preventing foreign competition. Whether you are a farmer, a merchant, a mechanic or a laborer, do you want this protection to the trust and other manufacturers of iron and steel products continued at so high a rate? Would not much less rates of duty be to your interest? If so, why not remember It when election time comes? and yote only for those who are pledged publicly to revise the tariff. As iron and steel have become the Party Mastery,

If the present administration has any high claim on the support of the independent vote, it has been on the ground of reforming political abuses.
But we now see the means adopted by practical politicians to hold power and place are being openly and brazenly just in practice by President Roosevelt and his cubinet officers to gain control of the next Republican convention. Civil service rules and regulations have been thrown to the winds and efficient officials are being asked to resign because they belong to the opposing faction and if their resignation is not immediately forthcoming they are removed "for the good of the service" and their places filled with administration men.

But this obnoxious form of poutcal

tion is not immediately forthcoming they are removed "for the good of the service" and their placea filled with administration men.

But this obnozious form of portical activity is now outdone by another and worse political evil. It is conceded that First Assistant Postmaster General Hitchcock has been touring the southern states for the purpose of linging up the federal office holders for the administration program and probably. If there is any doubt of their fidelity and activity for that purpose, they will be dismissed and others found who are more capable or trustworthy in corralling the darky voters that will elect the delegates to the Republican national convention. In the southern states those Republican voters who are not feeding at the federal trough are notoriously "agin" the administration, and as only a small minority can be supplied with government pap, there is a continual squessing by the "outs" to get their noses in the trough in place of their more for tunate fellows.

There is always Herce competition to be elected delegates to the Republican national convention, for experience has shown the negro politicians that when there is a factional fight for control of the party, both factions are willing to contribute for expenses and votes. Of course, the administration expects the office holders—white or control—of the party, both factions are willing to contribute for expenses and votes. Of course, the administration and darky delegates to the national convention are branded and delivered without any extra cost. This is no easy job, when plenty of cash is in sight from the opposing faction. and darky delegates to the nomination a few years ago.

Those who think the Roomsvelt administration is opposed to each practical efforts to perpetuate its power with arrive at a different conclusion if they waten the course of events for the nomination of the selection of delegates to the comming Republican party is plainly apparation to the selection of delegates to the comming the publican party is plainly ap

All good citizens are anxious to abolish political corruption, but there is a difference of opinion about fust how it can best be accomplished. Gov. Hughes, of. New York, recommends a corrupt practices act, which would prevent any candidate from contributing but a limited amount. Mr. Hearst, who was the Democratic candidate for governor at the last election and paid nearly all the campaign expenses, in a signed statement auccessfully shown horffeetual the flughes. plan. will be, as it would throw the financial support of the campaign into the hands of the financiers or corporation magnates and make the candidates their debtors.

"I would call Mr. Hughes' suggesnates and make the candidates their debtors.

"I would call Mr. Hughes' suggestion," says Mr. Hearat, "a neasure to prevent any financial independence on the part of the candidates, and to compel candidates to be under obligations to large financial interests for their campaign funds.

"The public knows sufficiently well what kind of services those large financial interests require from elect ed officials in return for the campaign contributions that have helped to elect them. Therefore, i maintain that the proper method is to limit strictly the amount of money which may be spent on an exection, and not to limit merely the amount of money which may be free and independent of corporation control."

That argument is certainly a be free and independent of corpora-tion control."

That argument is certainly a squetcher for Gov. Hingles, for what honest voters are stiving for, is not so much that there shall be no money for legitimate campaign expenses, but that the candidates elected shall not for legitimate campaign expenses, but that the candidates elected shall not be under obligationa to certain interests that will demand a return of favors for the money they have subscribed. Mr. Hearst also calls attention to his bill to prevent and punish bribery as a much more effective measure against political corruption, which if energelically enforced, it certainly would be.

It is almost impossible to prevent the use of money is elections, but it can be made possible to unseast successfully candidates who have been proved guilty of corruption, or who are elected by the corrupt methods of their party associates or friends. Such a law has virtually abolished bribery and corruption in Great Britain and should be effectual here. All plans that do not include the punishment of the candidate, who himself or through others benefits by corrupt methods, will only be partially effective.

Recorder's Popularity Contest!

La Jamestown Exposition.

They are to be selected by the readers of the Recorder in a Popularity Voting Contest. The two receiving the highest num-ber of votes cast will be taken from Burlington to Jamestown and their transportation, hotel bill and admission to the Exposition paid by the Recorder. The trip will consume at least ten days. The ed-itor and his wife will be the chaperones. The date for the trip will be announced later.

Each dollar paid on subscription, either as a renewal, back subscription or new subscribtion, will entitle the party paying the same to 1,000 votes, and for fractions of a dollar will entitle to votes in the same proportion. The result will be published from week to week during the contest.

Each ballot cut from the Recorder will be good for 10 votes, provided it is signed by the party voting and received at this office not later than 10 days after its date.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

A ballot box has been secured and locked, and the keys will remain in the possession of County Clerk B. W. Adams, Atorney Sidney Gaines and Dudley Rouse, who will count and certify the result of each week's ballot, between the hours of 1 and 5 p. m., on Tuesday of each week. Ballots received after 1 p. m. on Tuesday will not enter into the count until the next week. The contest will be conducted in a manner perfectly fair to all parties concerned.

All money paid on subscription since and including April 1, 1907, will be permitted to participate in the contest.

1907, will be permitted to participate in the contest.

No commission will be allowed to agents on any money for subscriptions or job work, that participates in the contest.

· Bucket shops and poolroo have been given a knockout bl by the Court of Appeals in dec ing that they can be fined a abated as common nuisances.

Judge Cantrill has resigned as a member of the court of appeals and Hon. John D. Carroll, present commissioner, of the court has been appointed to the vacancy at the request of Judge Cantrill.

The trial of Hargis at Lexington, last week, resulted in his acquittal, One strange circumstance in connection with the vericit is the fact that Hargis' friends knew what it was before the jury left its room, and had congratulated him on his acquittal. Somebody had violated both the rules of propriety and those of the court, and an investigation is in order.

Not in the history of Kentucky judiciary has her court of appeals rendered an opinion causing such favorable comment from the country at large, as has the very recent opinion in the Louisville contested election cases. The opinion, which is a stinger, was written by Judge John M. Lassing, and has immortalized Boone county's member of the highest court in the State. So emphatic is its endorsement on the part of the public that there is a strong and growing desire in the State that he be elected this fall without opposition as a testimonial to his ability to rise above party politics when as the member of a court he is passing upon a political question.

The Baptist Convention of North America, with the Baptist hosts North and South, East and West, united in national assembly, after their separation following disagreements on the negro and other ante-bellum questions, more than half a century ago, convened at the Jamestown Exposition last Wednesday in the first annual session, with between 4,000 and 5,000 delegates in attendance, the national body being a union of the Northern Baptist convention, which had just adjourned at Washington, D. C., and the Southern Baptist convention, which had just adjourned at Richmond, Va. The convention included Indian delegates, with the right of floor; likewise negro delegates, it being the first instance of the assembling together of the white and negro Baptists in the South.

The Kentucky court of appeals stance of the assembling together of the white and negro Bartists in the South.

The Kentucky court of appeals has been teaching corrupt politicians some very badly needed lessons, recently, and it is hoped they will have a salutary effect in every locality in the State where dishonest elections have prevailed. The decision handed down, last week, by Judge Lassing, unseating the Demcoratic officials of Louisville, is a decisive blow to the political methods that have obtained in the Falls City for several years and are a stench in the nostrils of every honest Democratin Kentucky. It was shown by the proof that the Fusionists were also organized for the purpose of doing illegal work at the polis at the same election, a fact showing that politics in Louisville had reached a point where honesty at the polls-was not expected, the successful candidates being those in whose favor the greatest amount of fraud was perpetrated. The time had come when to preserve any sort of government in Louisville, it was necessary to call a halt in the political anarchy and debauchery that echaracterized every election. The appeal disposed of by the court, last week, was the first opportunity it every had to "show" the Louisville politicians and it did it in a way that it will be remembered. Let Louisville profit by her experience.

Common ordinary table salt (sodium chloride) has many virtues. It is one of the best cleansers for the teeth and gums. It is good for dyspepsia. It is excellent for the skin, and disinfects wounds and sores. It relieves pan caused by bee stings and spider bites. Land is greatly enriched and grass is made to grow by sprinkling salt on the ground. Salt used when sweeping carpets fresher them and keeps out moths. It will put out a fire in the chimney, as well as revive a confirm. Salt put on ink spots freshly made will remove them, salt in water will refreshen cut flowers, and as a head wash will prevent the hair from falling.

STILL LIVE FOR US

Funeral March for Heroic Dead Has Meaning Beyond Mere Honor to the Fallen.

the Fallen.

VERY year, in the full tide of spring, at the helght of the symphony of flowers and love and life, there comes a solemn pause, and through the selence the nation hears the lonely pipe of death.

Vear after year lovers wandering under the apple boughs and through the clover are surprised with sudden tears as they see black-welled figures stealing through the morning to a soldier's grave.

Vear by year the comrades of the dead follow, with public honor, procession and commemorative flars and funeral march—tribute from us who have inherited a nation's glory to the herees who gave it.

As surely as this day comes round we are in the presence of the dead. But not all the associations of this Day are said; some of them are tri-umphant, even joyful.

We seem to hear-the funeral-march become a pean. Our heroic dead still live for us, and bid us think of life, not death—of life to which in their youth they lent the passion and glory of the spring.

the spring.

Memorial day may and ought to have a meaning beyond mere honor to the dead. It celebrates and solemnly the dead. It celebrates and solemnly reaffirms from year to year a national act of anthusiasm and faith, alt em-bodies in the most impressive form our belief that to act with enthusiasm and faith is the condition of acting greatly. To fight out a war men must believe something and want something with all their might. So must they do to carry out anything else to an end worth reaching.

with all their might. So must they do to carry out anything else to an end worth reaching.

Peace calls for its patriotic devocation, no less than war. And, stripped of the direct associations which gave rise to it, this is a day when by common consent we pause to become cascious of our national honor and to re-joice in it, to recall what our country has done and is doing for us, and to ask ourselves what we can do for our country in return.

The great French soldier, de Latour d'Auvergne, was the hero of many battles, but remained by his own choice in the ranks. Napoleon gave him a sword and the official title "The First Grenadier of France." When he was killed the emperor ordered that his heart should be entrusted to his regiment—that his name should be called at every roll call and that his next comrade should answer, "Dead upon the field of honor." In the keeping of this nation are the hearts of many heroes; we treasure them in consecrated ground, and when their names are called we answer in flowers, "Dead upon the field of honor."

IN LABOR OF LOVE

Multitudes Gather to Aid Veterans Decorate Graves in Beautiful Arlington Cemetery.

THE Coliseum in the national cemetery at Arlington, in which people gather annually for the exercises, is indescribably beautiful. The space is sorrounded by columns, a light lattice work forming the root, tesside the columns have been planted wistaria, roses, clematis and other early flowering vines, which form a perfect bower overhead, while the maissile trees make ample shade for the multitude who come to join in the labor of love.

The thousands of exunion officers and soldiers who have died during the 38 years since the first Decoration.

day, and the hundreds that have fallen since the Spanish-American war, and whose bodies have been borne across the sea to be buried in Arlington, have made this the largest city of patriotic dead on the globe. This 30th of May, like all others, will see every low green mound of the extensive field covered with flowers and immortelles. There will be a repetition of the annual ceremonies, with probably additional interesting features. Alas: the column of exunion soft diers does not present a long line, and the few who participate are for the most part bowed with age and increased disability which time has wrought.

The patriotic organizations, sons and daughters, of veterans, and the loyal people have taken up the work which older hands have had to lay down. The spirit of gratitude and devotion to the memory of the country's defenders inspires the whole nation to-day as it did in 1888.

DIED IN PRISON PENS

Record of Those Who Passed Away in Military Confine-Iments Is an Appalling One.

The largest confederate prison was Audersonville, Ga, where 45,613 ton soldlers were imprisoned. The son had fits maximum number on sout 3, 1364, when the rolls show-the pressure of 23,114. Death lined 15,912, or 38 per cent. of the tire number. Exery day the death averaged 20. The greatest number of 25,114 averaged 20.

1864, when 127 yielded up their lives.

The largest military prison in the north was at Elmira where 11,916 prisoners were confined in an open pen or stockade. The death list reached 2,944, about 25 per cent. In March, 1865, the greatest mortality occurred—455—or 16.5 per cent. of all the deaths. All except six of the dead were buried in a field which was afterward plowed up and planted with wheat, and now neither summer nor winter shows a sign of where 3,000 hapless confoderates were laid away.

The members of the Woman's Relief Corps make a great feature of Memo-rial day. The pity of it all la-that there are so many new graves to dec-orate each year.

By Graves of Heroes

An hour, a flower, a memory, perchance a tear or two, These give we from our life to them: Nation, what gave they you?

What of the silent partings, too sol and sad for tears? What of the homesick sighing w only the night-wind hears?

What of the waking picket, guarding the nation's sleep? What of the cold and the hunger?—what of the thirst and heat?

What of the midnight marching, where, weary, footsore, drenched. The pailld weeping morning shows the enemy intrenched?

What of the shrick of the battle? What of the after-hours? Oh, men? in the name of God, can ye heal such wounds with flowers?

Look to your Illies, Columbia! Stainless they should be as snow, To rest on hearts burned white in battle's furnace glow;

And your roses, red as the blood that flowed on fields of death.

Their fragrance full sweet to stifle the smell of battle's breath!

Alas! If our flowers were all the on each nameless grave— Alas! for us and for them and rifice they gave.

But over those lowly hillocks, as over the hills of God, A glory breaks from the flower-cups withering on the sod,

For they are the pledge of the promise—"What you gave to us we will keep."
The oath of the nation's waking sons to her sons who are asleep.

Story of the Bark That Broke Record
Around the Horn,

"A story of herolam of the sea, rivaling that of Gilliat in The Toliers of the Sea, has just been enacted in the Pacific occasi," said John P. Barnes, a San Francisco merchant to a Washington Post writer. "It is the atory of an intrepid sea captain who resurrected a sunken ship that had been given up for lost and put her in such good condition that she has broken all records for salling oraft around the horn.

given tip for lost and put her in such good condition that she has broken all records for sailing call around the horn.

The sea captain lived at San Diego until a year or two ago, having retired on a modest income. His name is Thayer. One day be read in the papers of an auction sale of the hulk of a ship in she South sear. He went to San Francisco, where he found that the ship had been valued at $250,000 and had been grounded in a storm, deserted by the crew and supposedly pounded into a shapeless mass upon the rocks. But he thought he would take a chance, and so bid her in for $1.100, getting a lawyer in Oakland to take a half interest.

"Getting together a wrecking crew, he traveled 7,000 miles to the island of Manga Riva, where, through heroic efforts and after many months, he got the ship to the level and towed her back across smooth sunimer seas to San Francisco. There the vessel was rebuilt into a three-masted bark. Captain Thayer canne on to Washington and got the government to register the British ship Pyrenees, for that was its original name, as the bark Manga Riva. Then, after the refitting had been completed, he sent her to Swansea, Wales. The bark made the fastest time ever attained by any sall-ling, and his name is being paraded up and down the Pacific coast among marine folk as the modern Gilliat."

What a Frown Can Do.

A single bitter word may disquiet an entire family for a whole day. One surly glance casts gloom over the household, while a smile, like a gleam of sinshine, may light up the darkest and wearlest hours.

Like unexpected flowers which spring up along the path, full of freshness and fragrance and beauty, do kind words and gentle acts and sweet dispositions make glad the home where peace and blessing dwell. No matter how himble the abode, if it be sweetened with kindness and smiles, the heart will turn lovingly toward it from all the tunuit of the world, and it will be the dearest spot beneath the sun, says an exchange.

thing About Mecklenberg and Its Quaint Old Constitution.

The public announcement by the grand dukes of Mccklenberg of their intention to submit a new constitution next year to the extates may hereald the speedy disappearance of what the Manchester Ghardian describes as the last feudal state in Europa, "Mecklenberg," says the Guardian, "enloys the unique distinction of having 'carried medieval feudalism through the storm of the revolution into the twentieth century. The very name of its parliament—the estates of the knights and the towns—carries the mind back to the days before the passage from status contract, when the people of a country consisted not individual men and women, but of classes.

"In Mecklenburg every owner of a knight's fee, no matter how acquired—and there are some 700 of them—is a member of the estates, while 49 towns contribute each a representative. The peasants are absolutely excluded from political rights, but their loss is not very great, for the powers of the estates are not much greater than were those of the Spanish forces in the absolute days of Phillip 100 in the debased and broken feudalism which the monarchs of Europe permitted to survive from the sixteenth century to the revolution because it left the nobles privileges while depriving them of political power. There are districts in which the grand dukes are free to tax at their will, and they publish no budgets, while the estates have a closely restricted and partial control over finance and legislation. During the revolution of 1848 Mecklenburg, like Prussla, received a modern constitution, but two years later the kings of Prussia and Hanover helped to restore the old order.

"Since 1870 the grand duchy has been a curious combination of imperial Democracy and local feudalism. for, while the mass of its people have been shut out from local government, they have enjoyed universal suffrage in elections to the reichatag. Such a condition of things has, of course roused a good deal of popular discoutent, and has even impressed its incongruity upon the grand dukes, but hitherto the knights have stood in the way of change. Without the consenting upon the grand duckes the obscurantism, even in Germany, Whether the pressure of the present ruler will overcome this opposition, might please them both is likely to accord with 'the just requirements of the new age are questions that only an optimist would decide hastily.

"Shorts."

Short sheets, short imattresses and short bedsteads are said to do more harm to hotels and railroads than all other causes combined. Doctors complain that at some hotels they cannot make their patients comfortable. When they pull the cover over their shoulders it comes off their feet, and vice versa. "This state of affairs is probably harder on commercial travelers than any other class of men. It is getting so that only very short men can be commercial travelers. Hotels that treat their guests well in this respect should advertise the fact, so that traveling, people can know where to stop. Doctors should use their influence with hotel proprietors to have this nulsance stopped.—Medical Brief.

Horses for Servian Royalty.

To the long list of valuable animals which have passed as gifts from one monarch to another must now be added two of the finest horses owned by the sultan. These have been chosen as presents to King Peter and the Crown Prince George of Servia. Every precaution is being taken to insure the safe transport of the animals. Elaborate preparations are being made for their care, and one of the sultan's officers will superintend the four grooms in charge of their delivery to King Peter's stables

NAOMI'S SACRED TRUST

IN ISRAEL
By the "Highway and Byway" Preaches

ripture Authority-Ruth 4:13-17.

SEMMORITE.

The Messlanle Line — This beautiful story of Ruth traces for us the genealogy of David, who established the kingly line-from which sprang the Christ, the promised Messiah of the Jews. Note the large part which rattly plays here. Faith which stirred in the heart of Naomi in the far country of Moab and draw her back to her God and her people. Faith bringing to Ruth's heart a vision of a better life, and glying her the courage to forsake all that she might find a place with God and God's people. Faith making shem both raithful and patient during those early days of bitter trial and poverty after, their return to Bethlehem. Faith leading each stap of the way through the darkness of their loneliness and grief. Faith reaching out so hopefully, so delicately, and yet so boildly and laying hold of the right to the claim of kinship. Faith inspiring to medest ad gracious acceptance of the outliness and the stap of the way through the darkness of their loneliness and grief. Faith reaching out so hopefully, so delicately, and yet so boildly and laying hold of the right to the claim of kinship. Faith inspiring to medest ad gracious acceptance of the outliness with Boaz lifted them. Faith finding lite ultimate and jorful triumph. In a son and heir whose coming was to add its link to the Messlanic line around which the thought of vary _devout_Hebrew parent-centered. This book of Ruth is a fitting parallel to the eleventh of Hebrews. And one cannot read either without being stirred, with a yearning for more of that faith which made such triumph in the Lord possible.

And let us contemplate how this pathway of faith can be prefect exemplification of the form of the faith which was to win the ultimate and glorolous triumph over sin and death and the grave. I responded Boaz, to the happy words of gratitude which Ruth, his wife, had just spoken.

her—"and now He hath given me a son—and thee too," she added, eagerly.

A sound came from the other side of the room, where the aged Naomi was husy about the household cares, which sounded much like a sob, and caused Ruth to look in that direction.

"And thee too, mother," she added, hastily, while a shadow passed over her face, and was gone again as the breast, and when she littled her face again she said, appealingly, to her husband:

"And I want our son to so?"

Again the half-suppressed sob sounded from the other side of the room, followed this time by a choking voice, which said:
"Is not Naomi to be consulted in the naming of the child?"

"Is not Naomt to be consulted in the maming of the child?"

"Why, nichter dear, I had not thought to shut you out. I had not thought to shut you out. I had not thought that you cared," and again the troubled shadow crossed her face.

"Will not the Lord, who hath given us the son, also in His own good time give us a name for him?" asked Boaz, hastily, anxious that no suspicion of disharmosy should exist between the two women who had been so close to cach other in love and sympathy, and with the care the standard of the babe and had planned to carnestly for his future.

THE NEW INSURANCE AGENT.

He matter rested for the time being, but in the heart of each the troubled thoughts which had-been there since the coming of the babe remained. New York has opened up a promising field thoughts with heart of the promised of the heart of the child, and, without realizing it, had searcely given Naomi chance for a share in it ali. How the old woman's heart yearned for a sense of ownership-and-proprietorablp in the child, had talked of her plans for the child, and, without realizing it, had searcely given Naomi chance for a share in it ali. How the old woman's heart yearned for a sense of ownership-and-proprietorablp in the child, helw her eyee feasted themselves upon the face and form of the babe, and followed with a great hunger in her eyea every move that the little one made. The mother became conscious of this and the thought had fisshed through her heart: "She wants my haby for her own." And then had come the climax, as indicated in the opening conversation of our story.

From that moment, when the whole situation was revealed to the heart of Ruth, there began a great struggle in her heart. It was her baby. Yes, her heart wellow with the word of the state of Ruth her and the same of her dead husband midsht not be cut off. In israel, and forever shut. Her lamily, from hope of heins in the favored line of the promised one who should be a leader like Moses; this babe whom she felt hustinctively was destined to become great and cruel stab at her own heart. This babe that had come like an answer from heaven that the name of her dead husband midsht not be cut off. In israel, and forever shut. Her lamily, from hope of heins in the favored line of the promised one who should be a leader like Moses; this babe whom she felt belonged to her as a prential and tile as she alone, a devout mother in lorsel, was she not to have the direction of his mind and tile as she alone, a devout mothe pleasing unto God.

Thus in the hearts of these two women the struggle went on.

But with Ruth the conflict was especially ferce, for the natural incilinations of the mother heart were pitted against the higher and better self. She was consclous of Naomi's peculiar claim upon the child and of her special fitness to have the care and training of him. Hut how could she yield the place she wanted to occupy to he son, even though it was to one whom she knew could fill-it better? So she saked herself over and over again, and was still asking the question on the day appoliped when the neighbors and friends had been summoned to the presentation of the child before the presentation of the child before the presentation of the child before the had rerived, the question was still unanswered. The baby was still in harms, where, with feverish solicitude, she had kept him, as though fearful that to put him down was to lose him. All through the ceremonies she held him, and now has come the time when he shall be named. It is her right to name him, and she can call him Boaz, as she had expressed he wish to do. Silence has failen upon all the glad, expectant company. All eyes turn to Ruth and wait for her to speak.

The conflict rages fierce within herbreast. Will she speak, or will she dyes to the stilling. Shall she let the self-lish claims of her own heart dictair or shall she yield to the dear Naomi? She rises to her feet, the precious baby still in fine rarms. She advances across the floor, the baby still hugged close to her bosom. She turns, when in the center, and moves swiftly to wards Naomi. She reaches the old woman's side. She stoops and, opening her arms, she places the precious baby sin the agreat and glorious light illuminates her face.

A glad note of approval sweeps over the company, and the women said unto Naomi:

A glad note of approval sweeps over the company, and the women said unto Naomi:

Naomi:

'Blessed he the Lord, which hath not left thee this day without a kinsman that his name may be famous in israel. And he shall be unto thee a restorer of thy ille, and a nourisher of thine old age; for thy daughter-in-law, which loveth thee, which is better to thee than seven sons, hath born him.' And they called his name Obed, and Naomi took the child and Isid it in her bosom, and she became nurse unto it.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment, a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.
"From overwork, I suffered several years with mainutriton, papitation of the heart, and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short-time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, ny heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.
"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay but that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and may thereby know the factua at to its true worth." Read. In South America is a remarkable tree growing in the valley of the Amezon. Its sap is a milk fait is highly nutritious and will mix with water hot or cold, and never curdles in hot mixtures. It keeps good for a week, even in the hottest weather, and has much the taste of cow's milk in which cinnamon has been steeped. It is all title thicker than ordinary milk and has the feeling in the mouth or liquid juice. It left standing for a few hours a thick, oily cream arises.

How far will it pay to haul manure? This depends largely upon the quality of the manure and the aprender is used. The spreader in directly adds a large percentage to the value of manure, as it applies it much better for all uses than it can otherwise be applied and also effects a great saving in the expense of applying it. But assuming the manure to be of such-quality as may be usually picked up about towns and that one's lands are of ordinary farm crops, I should say that it would pay, using a spreader and hiring help to handle it, not much exceeding two mores and cow stables, where it was given to me, and I think it has just about been worth the wages of the teamster, reckning nothing for the team. I think the value of cotober last I have hauled from town over two hundred loads of manure, steepily read to the principle that a man should be always bays, and that it is a pient for the readows. Every newspaper has a woman's department in which the successes of the sex in wretting trades and handicrafts from their brothers and husbands are daily noted.

I saw to-day the announcement that as woman was now filling a place as brakeman on a western railway. eek to Prevent the Admission Oklahoma Into the Union Be-cause it Would Bs Damocratic State.

cratic Stata.

Conspiracies are becoming epidemic, and conspirators seem determined to ruin the Republican party. It is only a few days ago the country was startled by the statement from the White House that a conspiracy, capitalized for $5,000,000, was on foot to urge the candidacy of Fairbanks or Forvater or some other eminent republican as the candidate for president. This was regarded by President Roosevelt as a plot against "my policy," though hitherto it has been considered no crime for any combination of men to urge candidates they desire to be nominated.

Now another conspiracy has been launched to prevent Oklahoma from being admitted into the Union, on the stroud that the referendum and the powers of the rallroad commission for which the new constitution provides, are not Republican in principle, but are presumably too Democratic to suit the Republican Democratic to suit the Republican bosses. The real opposition to admitting Oklahoma by the Republican managers is the fact that the people of the state will elect Democratic satisfactorial election will offer and prospects, the voters of Oklahoma will undoubtedly elect seven electors at the next national election who will vote for the Democratic nominees for president and vice medical nominees for president and vice medical election who will vote for the Democratic nominees for president and vice medical nominees for president for the non-pratic state, and that their railroad and true. Shiles are ready and willing to help them. Representative agent of the conspirators, thinks the Oklahoma constitution is un-Republican and says the shile objection is to the initiative and referendum system whereby the people of Oklahoma are given the power to do "all sorts of mischeft." That conclusion must be reached on the Hamiltonian theory, that the people are unable to govern themselves.

Then, again, these Democrats of Oklahoma have had the audacity to provide in the romotical norm of government. As the conspirators are the reactionaries" of the Republican leaders, P

Tariff Peace.

Noting that the German government has agreed with us on a modus vivendi as to the tariff for a time, the Philadelphia Record thinks that it should be welcomed by every one whether protectionist or free trader, because such a thing as a tariff war once begun means, no one knows what. The Record then goes on to vay:

THIRD PARTIES A FAILURE.

rms Are Not Achieved by Inde-

No third party has ever been successful in electing a president of the United States, and probably never will, unless both of the two principal parties refuse to advocate a reform that the popular mind is intent on achieving. Such a condition is unlikely to occur, for the minority party is ever on the lookout for an opportunity to take up such reforms as any great body of the people are demanding that do not antagonise fundamental principles. The recent declaration of Mr. Hearst Is that "neither one of the old parties stands to-day for any particular principle," and therefore Mr. Hearst's party, the ladependence league, created for his especial glorification, is to fill up the heavy the old parties refuse to fill.

Mr. Hearst assess his advocacy of his new party on the fact that all yoters calling themselves Democrats are not agreed on the intricacles of tariff legislation and the best way to control the trusts, at d he declares the Republicans are also divided on that and other issues. If Mr. Hearst is soing to confine the membership of his league to voters who are entirely sarreed on the Issues he intends they shall sland for, he will find his following a small one, indeed. We have seen the Hesrst League in New York scriously divided on the questions of candidates, legders and issues, and if the league ever exhibits any strength in other states there will he, no doubt, similar division of opinion.

The Democratic party is and always has been the party of the people, voicing their desires and aspirations and often advocating reforms in advance of their general acceptance. But the rule of the majority must prevail, even in the Hearst minority and cannot expect to control policies until a majority have agreed to adopt what Mr. Hearst desires.

What does the lindependence league for hair the side of the soil party that has stood the stress from the time of Jeffrerson to now? There is a strong suspicion that Mr. Hearst has expended his money to repetch the discover to have the majority may prove the heart of the p ambition to be the nominee for predicted.

The present indications now are that another and greater personality is the choice of the great majority of Democrats and there never was greater unanimity on the issues that will be presented for the voters of the United States to decide upon.

Defective Warships.

That is a very serious charge, made by Congressman Waldo, of New York, that "warships bult under contract by private concerns and almost immediately after their completion sent to the Brooklyn navy yard for repairs, have been found to have rivet holes plugged with wood, putty and soap, instead of iron rivets being inserted." As the navy department has its own inspectors to oversee the building of warships, the above defective construction could not occur if the inspection officers in charge were active, honest and intelligent. As this charge is made by a Republican congressman it is undoubtedly true, for there can be no partisan advantage to be gained by observed. no partisan advantage to be gained making it.

lays Judge Leving, and Declares That Hajf the Population is Related to Family of His Victim.

Family of His Victim.

Lynchburg, Va., May 29.—At Lovingston, the county seat of Nelson county. Judge W.-G. Loving, who formerly presided over the same court, was indicted for the murder of Theodore Extes, a son of Sheriff Estes, following the alleged mistreatment of Mise Elitabeth Loving, daughter of the accused. An application for a change of venue was made by the defense on account of local conditions, and this was argued for more than six hours, at the close of which the Coart adjourned until Wednesday morning, when the decision will be handed down.

journed until Wednesday morning, when the decision will be handed down.

Judge W. R. Barksdale, of the Hall-fax circuit court, is presiding in place of Judge Gordon, who asked to be relieved because of personal reasons. There is no doubt but the unwritten law will be invoked, and that the case will command more attention than any case in the Virginia courts in the past decade. There seems to be no doubt but the motion for a change of venue will be granted, and it is believed the case will be sent to this city for trial.

It is alleged that there were only 20 families living at the county seat, and that one half of them were connected with the Estes; that there are only two hotels in which the jury could be kept, both operated by bitter pactisens of the Estes family, and that it would be impossible to lock a jury up there without it being exposed to aubthe. Influences against him. He believes he is innocent and would be acquitted upon a fair and full investigation, and to obtain this was the object of the application for a change of venue.

A number of other affidavits were read and filed sea a portion of the record substantisting that of Judge Loving and showing that efforts have been made to have witnesses for the defense change statements that would be hopeful to the defense. The application of the southern Rail was readily granted by Judge Barksdale, and the surely in penalty of $10,000 was furnished by Judge Barksdale, and the surely in penalty of $10,000 was furnished by Judge John D. Horsley, of this city, a prominent attorney at law and division council for the Southern Railway Co.

TORPEDO BLOWS CAR FROM RAILS

Two Badly and a Score of Others Slightly injured.

A rumor, which found considerable credence, was that the torpedo was planted with the original design of blowing prospective, passengers on the gambling beat City of Traverse, whose landing place is about a block away, the theory advanced being that it was planted either by religious fanaties or by rivale of the City of Traverse crowd.

Schooner Sunk By Lightning.
Pensacola, Fla., May 29.—Information has just reached here from the navy yard of the sinking there early Monday during an electrical storm of the schooner William Smith, bound from Key West to Pensacola. The vessel was struck by lightning, which threw one of the masts to inde deck, tore the clothing off a member of the crew as he was hurling a box of dynamite over board, and, passing down an open hatch, spilnlered the bottom of the vessel. The schooner sank at once, the crew, escaping in lifeboats. The Smith was loaded with wrecking apparatus, including the box of dynamite.

Great Cricketer's Simple Tribute to His Own Worth.

In 1885 there was a great celebration in London in honor of Dr. Samuel Johnson, and among those in attendance was the Australian "crack" cricketer, Bonner, then at the height of his fame.

As one of the guests, says the compler of the recently published "Letters" of the late Dr. George Birkbeck Hill, Bonner's health was proposed. His response was noteworthy.

"After seeing the way in which Dr. Johnson's memory is revered," he said, with great simplicity, "I am not sure that I would not rather have been auch a man than have gained my own greatest triumphis" in cricket."—

"There is no place filled by man," remarked Mrs. Strongmind, "that woman cannot fill."

"It wouldn't he so bad," rejoined her husband, "if she would only let it go at that. I saw one to-day who was filling two men's places,"

"Where?" queried Mrs. S.
"In a street car," answered the wretch as he made a hurried exit from the room.

Hon. M. F. Sharp Makes a Good Speech in Burlington Last Monday.—A Local Or-ganized.—Appoint-ments, Etc.

Mr. M. F. Sharp, of Ohio county, this State, and assistant State organizer, addressed a small and dience of farmers in the circuit court room, last Monday afternoon, while a large number of farmers remained on the street, and wondered "what's that feller saying up stairs." Mr. Sharp spoke in the interest of the American Society of Equity, and being a farmer and tobacco grower in the "dark district," where the Equity principles have been given a severe and thorough test, the message he bears is of peculiar interest to the growers in the burley district where relief from low prices is being sought throught the Society of Equity. The speech was not the least radical, but, on the contrary was entirely along lines that are reasonable and which have been proven gracticable in the "dark district," and harder fight than that so the speaker excellent attention, and were well pleased with the mand were well pleased with the mand were well pleased with the mand were well pleased with the mander in which he handled his subject, and there is no question but what Mr. Sharp's effort, last Monday, will add much strength in this county to the organization in hehalf of which, he assessed in the speaker excellent attention, and were well pleased with the mander in which he handled his subject, and there is no question but what Mr. Sharp's effort, last Monday, will add much strength in this county to the organization in hehalf of which, he assessed in the speaker excellent attention, and were well pleased with the mander of the speaker excellent attention, and were well pleased with the mander of the Burley proposes to and would protect its members from the impositions of the speaker impressed it upon his heart of the Burley proposes to and would protect its members from the impositions of the speaker excellent attention, and were well pleased with his mander to the Burley proposes to any the proposes to any the proposes to any the proposes to any the proposes of the speaker excellent attention, and were well pleased with the mand

The month of May went out with but a small per centage of the tobacco crop transplanted. Perhaps a large majority of growers set none, and a very small number finished. Plants are small and not plentiful, a good season from now on would bring them out wonderfully. Taking it as a whole the prospect is not good for a full crop this year.

Burlingtonites spent Decoration day in various ways. Some tried their skill at target shooting, some hied themselves to the wilds of Gunpowder creek to make trouble with the finny inhabitants thereof, while some of the base ball enthustasts, fans or cranks, went to Erlanger to see the contest between the All Kentuckians and the local team.

The farmers along the route of the proposed pike from Burlington to Waterloo, have not been talking pike much for the last month or two. Probably the effort to build the road will take on new life so soon as the crops get out of the way. If the road is not built now it will be several generations before a pike through that section of the county will be constructed.

The following remarkable statement is clipped from "The Modern Grocer" of May 18, 1907:

"In a recent issue of a Mii waukee publication styled The Cigar Manufacturer, there appeared the following dispatch under a Washing ton date line. Copies of the publication in which it appeared have been in big demand and requests for them have come from members of the trade in all sections of the United States, eave Tobacco. The dispatch reads as follows:

"Washington, D. C.—The President called his cabinet together this afternoon to consider trust prosecution by the government. The government will begin proceedings at once against the Tobacco Trust. The food department some time ago analyzed several brands of tobacco.

"The kinds known as Lucky Strike and English Curve Cut were found to contain 40 per cent. tobacco and 60 per cent. fine cut brown paper. Bull Durham contains no tobacco, but is 100 per cent finely chopped brown paper seaked in tohacco stems, juice and refuse. Duk's mixture is only 10 per cent tobacco. The "tobacco matit's is wrongly named. It should be known as "the straw board habit."

If the government can compel the trust to use tobacco or to properly label the flavored paper, it will greatly increase the demand for tobacco and thus be another strong aid to the farmers.—Cynthiana Log Cabin.

Those who are making an effort to secure money for the construction of a bridge to span Woolper creek at Platteburg are very much encouraged over the prospects of success. It will take a considerable sum of money to pay for such a bridge as they are determined, to have, and those directly interested are subscribing liberally and are boosting the effort all the time. With a good bridge at Plattsburg that section of the county will have an outlet that can be used at any season of the year, and secure to the citizens a rural mail service for all time to come, a convenience which they value very highly. If the creek is not bridged at Plattaburg Uncle Sam may take a notion to withdraw the rural mail that goes that way, on account of the bad condition of the road, and without this service the people along the route cannot now be satisfied. The enterprise and public spirit being shown by the people of the Plattsburg neighborhood are commendable, and worthy of communities much more able to undertake such a work, to some of which it should be a good example.

Romance in Business.

If a young man does not find romance in his business, it. is not the fault of the business, but the fault of the business, but the fault of the young man, declares Andrew Carnegie, in System. Consider the wonders, the mysteries, connected with the recent developments in that most spiritual of all lagents—electricity, with its unknown, and, perhaps, even unquessed powers. He must indeed be a dull and prosaic young man who, being connected with electricity in any of its forms, is not lifted from the young man, declares Andrew Carnegie, in System. It is only a few years since this furniture went out of fashion, and even at that time black walnut wood was growing scarce and costly so that anyone with foresight might have known that the bedsteads, bureaus and tables that were discarded so gladly and for so little money would in time increase in value. However, those who practically gave this furniture away in their anxiety to get rid of it, says the Indianapolis Star, need not mourn for, fashionable or need not mourn for, fashionable or not, the fact remains that its effect is gloomy and unless especial care is taken to offset its dark and somber look it is depressing to the spirits of those who must live with it.

Waste or Scientific Thought.

Word comes from Paris that a scientiat over there has an invention that will make a detailed record of a man's thoughts. This is interesting, but it will never be popular, declares Cleveland Plain Dealer. Few men think thoughts that they would care to preserve, more especially if taken unawares by a prowler with a snapshot think recorder. Of course, it might be possible to train the mind to sit for a mental picture, as it were, but there are few men who could look pleasant while doing it. No man would feel safe as long as he thought it was in the neighborhood. No, the Frenchman would do humanity a much greater and far more satisfying service by perfecting a new can opener or an original cough cure.

New York, June 3.—Four men lost their fives and the fifth auffared an experience such as few men have lived through in the wreck of the sloop Belle of Brooklyn, off Norwalk, Ct., in the gale Sunday. Edward Auth, of Saratoga seeme, Brooklyn, John towner of the vessel, with his brother Jacob, sw his companions, including his brother and brother-in-law, slip one by one from the bottom of the overturned sloop, and with a word of farewell sink below the turbulent waves never to abpear again.

—After Behavet Auth had isabed himself to the stern of the wrecked craft with a short rope, he became unconscious from exposure and sank back to meet the fate of the others. The rope held him floating on the surface with his face just out of the water, and hours later, almost as a corpse, he was picked up by the tug Wyoming and taken to Now Havon.

It was not until Auth gave a slight sign that a flickering spark of life remained in his body that he was taken into the warmth of the tug's engine room, and then through vigorous treatment and the administration of powerful stimulants he was kept alive until the boat had won its race with death to the herbor and he was sent to a hospital.

Another naval vessel has salled ber last voyage and is now awaiting the orders of the government as to what shall be done with her, says the New York Post. She is the lof frigste Saratogs, which, since 1889, has been used by the Pennsylvania naultical school and is now tied up at the League Island yard. An investigation was recently made to find how much repairing would be necessary to make her a safe seagoing vessel and some parts of her were found to be beyond repair. The shape of the bow of the Saratoga has been the main cause, the officials say, of her wrenched and crumbled condition. It does not cut the waves, but rather breasts them. Early this year, when Commander Charles N. Atwater, retired, superintendent of the school, and 30 students were sailing the old frigate shout 200 miles north of the Bermuda islands, they oncountered a heavy storm and every wave seemed to nearly tear the ship apart. They decided to return to League Island for repairs and there it was found that her bow had been wrenched three inches out of plumb. The Saratoga was the first of a number-of sloops-of-war-built-in the old navy yard at Kittery, Me, in 1842, and was equipped with four guns. The following year Commodore Perry holsted in February, 1847, Admiral Farraguit took command of her while he was a captain. For a fear the vessel was on blockade duty off the coast of Mexico and then returned north. She was in Commodore Perry's fleet when that officer went to Japan in 1852 to open up the ports of that country to American commerce.

Medicine of Bamboo Sap.
In India the ssp of the female bamboo tree is used for medicinal purposes. "Tabasheer," or "banslochan;" is sold in all Indian basars, as it has been known from the earliest times as a medicinal agent. It is also known in Borneo, and was an article of commerce with early Arab traders of the east. Its properties are said to be strengthening, tonic and cooling. It has been analyzed and has been shown to consist almost entirely of silica, with traces of lime and potash. From its remarkable occurrence in the hollows of hamboos the eastern mind has long associated it with miraculous powers.

A STORY OF THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES

"The word of the Lord was precious in those days."—Not to the peeple of Israel, but to God. Spiritual life was at such a low ebb in the nation that the precious things of God wars withheld because God could not give what the people ware not ready to receive. God never wastes his reveiation. He never wastes his reveiation. He never wastes his reveiation. He never casts his pearls before swine. Sad, is it not, to think that there is only too often a condition of life and heart which abuta tight the windows of heaven and prevents the Divine biassing from descending? The word of the Lord IS precious—how precious wa shall not fully realize until we come into his oppresence and the full knowledge of eternity. What poverty of soul is that which feels no desire for the Divine message! What fatal deadness to know not or care not for God's word!

"Speak: for thy servant heardth."—What if with every whispering of the Divine voice in our souls there would be the quick, glad, eager response of Samuel? Many, many times a day come the gentle promptings to think of God and to obey his will, but as often they go unheeded, or with the promise to listen when a more convenient season has come. But man's convenience is not the time of God's revelation. God does not deal in futures. It is a present relationship which in him was a more convenient season has come. #### THE STORY.

Can it be mother?" he asked himself, and the first impulse was to rush of down the pathway to meet the approaching company, but he checked himself, and remembering his duties in the temple, he turried on and was soon been gelebration of the Passover feast, for not only was he to have a part in the celebration but he knew his mother would come. It had been along year to the young boy. His brave little heart had found comfort in the heart had found comfort in the thought that he belonged to the Lord and that he was in the temple to serve him, but at times there was the hungering in his heart for the love and comfort which only a mother knows how to bestow. But she had faithfully prepared him for the separation, for from his earliest recollection she had filled his heart and thought with the place he was to take in the term had come that he was to go up with her to Shiloh, a childish sense of the dignity and importance made him brave and willing to remain behind while his mother returned home. As she had embraced him and pressed a warm, tender kiss upon his brow at a rarting she had said:

"Remember, son; against another year I will come hither to see thee, see how much of good thou canst have to tell me concerning thy service left undone?" and no wand I must go "when the thought of the words, and they had come left he words, and they had come left to find this clear the long that he was had the was hus to fill the fill sappointment between the little duty fell in the left he words, and they had come left to find that she had brought him a little coat, the long that he was had the little from the long of the words of the was the sellist to find that she had brought him a little coat, the long that he was had the long the plane. warm, tender kiss upon his brow at parting she had said:

"Remember, son, against another year I will come hither to see thee. See how much of good hou canst have to tell me concerning thy service in the Lord's house."

He had often thought of the words, and they had comforted him in the lonely hours and encouraged him when his heart had grown faint and wearly with the monotonous routine of the simple daily tasks. He had been brave and steadfast and so apt and faithful a student had he proved that at last he had been included among those who played upon the musical instruments in the temple service, and his first thought had been of his motion and how proud and pleased she would be on her return at the time of the feast now near at hand to find him filling such a place.

So impatiently he had counted the days until the first day of the feast.

"And I'll try and be as faithful as "And I'll try and be as faithful as Muses was and learn all I ears so as to be fitted for God's service," he had thought to himself with a wisdom far beyond his years. And often since that first definite experience in the temple this thought had come to him to quicken him in his studies and duttes. Each day he had had his task to do and his lessons to learn, and eagerly he listened as the aged priest. Ell had gone over the history of israel; and had told of God's dealings with israel. He had been deeply interested in those parts of the atories where it was told that God had spoken to bis people and their leaders, and had asked Ell, with childish eagerness:

ness:
"Does God speak to you?"
And then when the aged priest had hesitated in evident confusion and embarrasment, he had followed up his first question with:

his first question with:

"How can we hear God speak?"
But he had had no satisfactory response from Ell, and this was one of the questions which he was anxlous to ask his mother when she should come.

Then there were some things about the temple service which he knew his mother could explain to him as had not been explained to him by Ell or his sons. Nay, Samuel had early learned that it was quite useless to ply the latter with questions. In fact he had fet in his childish heart an aversion for Hophni and Phinehae which had led him to avoid them all he could. Here was something else when had led him to avoid them all he could. Here was something else he wanted to ask his mother:

How it was that it they were serv.

which had ied him to avoid them all he could. Here was something else he wanted to ask his mother:

How it was that if they were serv ants of the Lord they should take the best of the ascriftees for themselves, as he had seen them do repeatedly when the people had come to make their offerings to the Lord.

These were some of the things which were troubling his tender heart, and there was the brighter-side, as he thought of the part he was taking in the temple service and bow his mother would feel proud of her boy as abo and his manny the muelclans doing his part to make a joyful noise unto the Lord. In this way his mind kept busy while he waited for the breaking of the dawn, and so absorbed did he become in his meditations that the sun was all but bursting above the horizon when he aroused himself, "I shall be late," he exclaimed, has tening towards the gate of the temple court. But what is that?" he added, noting the dust in the distance and moving figures. "Who can be coming so early to the celebration? Can it be mother?" he asked himself, and remembering his duties in the temple, he burried on and was soon busy extinguishing the lights and performing-the duties preparatory to the services of the day. Already be himself, and remembering his duties in the temple, he waited for the chance to get away to find his mother.

Now, the ast task was completed and the would be able to get away, but yust as he was passing out of the outer court one of the Levies summoned him and requested him that he find Eli.

A look of disappolitiment sweet over his face, and he was just on the point of saying: "My tasks are all done of the care of the sacrifices of saying: "My tasks are all done of the care of the care of the sacrifices of the sacrifices of saying: "My tasks are all done of the care of the care of the sacrifices of the sacrifices of the sacrifices of saying: "My tasks are all done of saying: "My tasks are all done of the care of the care of saying: "My tasks are all done of the care of the care of the care of saying:

"Not at all. That's to be the regular stype of the Record in the future. The increase in business warrants it. The campaign of advertising being conducted by the merchants forced me to increase the size or encroach upon my reading matter columns, and so I increased. Then, too, my subscription list is growing. People who never took the paper before say they want it now if for nothing more than to keep posted on the prices the merchants are quoting. Business in the Record office to booming all sround. I have had to advertise for two more job printers, and have just ordered a new printing press. By the way, is that horse you offered me some time ago still on the Lexington, Ky.—Coincident with the anniversary of the funeral of her father, James W. Carter, a horsemen. Lillian Carter, his prestly 18-year-old daughter, shot herself socidentally, it is said, in the right temple and died instantly. The affair occurred at the home of the girl's mother, Mrs. Leon Carter, a sister of Mrs. F. B. Ryan, of Central avenue, Cincinnati.

Reports of numerous abouse robberles here had caused the girl's sister, Edna Carter, to purchase a revolver two days ago, and both young women had been practicing with it. The dead girl and her sister had been talking on the front porch, and Lillian golds into the parlor, saw the revolver on a mantel. Picking it up, she was examining it when it was discharged. She was not despondent, having secured a position.

The girl's father trained for Ed Corrigan and was training for the late Capt. S. S. Brown when found dead in bed in New York city a year ago.

CRAZED WITH GRIEF,

Former Kentuckian Committed Sulcide Upon His Wife's Grave.

Upon His Wife's Grave.

Paris, Ky.—Crazed with grief following the death of his wife, Dr. James Kirtley Jameson, aged 27 years, formerly of this city, committed suicide at Waukesha, Wis., by abooting himself through the head while lying arross her grave. His ether, Dr. J. W. Jameson, received a telegram while he was at the supper table, notifying him of the suicide. Dr. Jameson married Miss Ethel Gibbon, of Waukesha, three years ago, and they lived in Chicago until recently, when she died of appendicitis. He hast visited his pacents May 10, and at that time he was so despondent that they endeswored to get him to remain at home, but said he would return to Chicago to be as near the grave of his wife as possible.

With the Crime.

Owingsville, Ky.—When Sarah Baker, 18, of Colorado, attended a circus here, she heard a report that caused her to go directly to the home of Wm. Jones as soon as the performance was over. A violent quarrel followed, and the wife of Jones ran for belp. When she returned with her husband's mother, Miss Baker was dead on the floor, her throat cnt from ear to ear. She was practically headless. Jones had fied. Near the body lay his razor, covered with the woman's blood. The police have not captured him. A brother of Jones was hanged for murder here a few years ago. The trall of the finglitive is being followed by bloodbounds.

Judge Cantrill Resigns.

Judge Cantrill Resigns, Frankfort, Ky.—The resignation of Judge Cantrill as judge of the Kentucky court of appeals, which has been expected for weeks, came to the state executive department and was at once accepted by the governor.
Judge Cantrill urged that Gov. Beckham appoint Commissioner Carroll, of Henry county, judge to succeed him, and Carroll was mamed. He qualified immediately and went upon the bench of the court.

Is Still Drinking.

Lexington, Ky.—J. D. Dickey, of Moorefield, fs under arrest here on the charge of desertion from the United States army, About a year ago he enlisted in the army, he says, while drunk. Last August he is alleged to have deserted from Ft. Leavenworth while drunk, and he was drinking when arrested.

Burley Company Quits.

Lexington, Ky.—At a meeting of the board of directors of the Ohio and Kentucky Burley Tobacco Co., which met here, the board dissolved the organiza tion. Nine members of the board were present, and they decided that 20 per cent. on the dollar would be paid to the subscribers of the stock in the company.

Millions More.
Frankfort, Ky.—The state board of equalization adjourned sine die, but the result of its work will not be known for several days. It is certain, however, that, while the assessment has been raised in a few counties, it will be many millions more than last year.

KENTUCKY SOLDIERS

at Jamestown, Va.

Frankfort. Ky.—The Kentneky setdiers may hold their annual encampment at the Jamestown exposition afer all, but it will depend upon the vote and monetarry sacrifice of the soldiers themselves. A conference was held here, at which Coioneis W. B. Haideman, Jouett Henry and Embry Allen.
Generals Lawrence and Roger Williams and Gov. Beckham were present.
It was found that the military fund was not large enough by $10,000 to defray the expense of an encampment at Jamestown, but the plan of allowing the soldlers to draw only half pay on the trip was suggested, the other half to be used to make up the necessary $10,000. In other words, the state guard can hold this annual encampment in Kentucky and receive only half pay. The coioneis will submit the question to a vote of the various companies, and it seems to be a foregone conclusion that they will vote unanimously-for Jamestown and half pay.

ls Involved.

Louisville, Ky—Charles J. Levering, a saloonkeeper, and formerly a constable, was arrested. His wife died last August, and the grand jury is making an investigation, it is claimed. After her death Levering produced a statement purporting to have been written by his wife, in which she bequeathed all of her property, valued at $20,000, to him. The writing of the botte was so dissimilar to that of Mrs. Levering's helra-stale was up-held. The inquest held after the woman's death failed to develop any of the facts as at present brought out.

the Dead Employe.

Frankfort, Ky.—The case of William Rogers, administrator, against the Covington Elevated Rallway and Transfer and Bridge Co., from Kenton, was affirmed. Rogers, an employe of the road, while fighting a man named Dawn, fell across the track, clinched with Dawn, in front of an oncoming train and was killed. The suit for damages resulted in a victory for the railroad company, and the victory is upheld by the court of appeals.

Because: You examine your purchase and are assured of satisfaction before investing your money.

Hecause: You home merchant is always ready and willing to make right any error or any defective article purchased of him.

Because: When you are sick or for any reason it is necessary for you to ask for credit, you can go to the local merchant. Could you ask it of a mail order house?

Because: If a merchant is willing to extend you credit, you should give him the benefit of your cash trade.

Because: Your home merchant pays local taxes and exerts every effort to build and better your market, thus facreaing both the value of your property.

Because: The mail order merchant does not lighten your taxes or in any way hold the value of your property.

Have you any fear of a final indement day?—'No; because each day we in it is strict accord with the infinite and eternal cause. "We know that we can not plange or alter the course of yearle by prayer or by the sacrifice of oxen or lambs, or by any other device. We moral men know that the new world of science in which we are now living is far better than the old world of theology in which our fathers lived, and because of this we are trying to break the chains of bondage from the brutal and benighted past. We seek to drive the fear of death from the earth, and to teach our fellowman that living or dead, he is forever in the embrace of the infinite and eternal cause. We moral men long to see the day when the press and the pulpit of America will teach the science of morality, instead of the mysteries of religion, and thus hasten the day when the highest type of man will overspread the earth and fill the river of life with joy and gladnese."

Roomly, I bad an interview with the three moral men of our little burg. The first question I put to them was, "What is a moral man?" The only true answer to that question is that a moral man is the last and the highest product of evolution, and sooner or later we are destined to rule the earth. We know that love is the only real religion and that happiness is the only good. We hate hypocristy. We all three speak the truth, and pay our debts. We know that life is moomplete without a home, and hence we marry except, Jack, as he will be only real religion. They said "It is free from life of the practice of goodness and kindness is the only true and trational religion. We are wasting no time, nor energy in combatting a theological devil, but are constantly fighting the devil of greed has made a hell on earth, and destroyed the peace of happiness of the human race."

before witnessed in the bistory of Japan's relations with the 'Inited States.

It is thought by influential Japanese that the quicker the facis regarding the negotiations now in progress here and in Washington are published the better it will be for all-concerned, as a stage has now been reached when it may prove dangerous to keep the people in suspense or ignorance of what is being done.

An experienced diplomat, who was a protege of Marquis Ito and is a prominent figure in national affairs, said;

"America is the last country with which I expected complications with Japan. Traditional friendship of the two nations uniformly maintained by the government at Washington make me almost hesitate to believe that an anti-Japanese sentiment exists in Uncle Sam's territory, though the unfortunate occurrences stand unasselicable.

"But hefore forming a final index."

Uncle Sam's territory, thougn any unfortunate occurrences stand unassail able.

"But before forming a final judgement in the present instance it is absolutely necessary to bear in mind that as in America the autonomy of the various states is jestiously guarded and the slightest infringement or interference by the national authorities is deeply resented.

"Consequently the federal government is in a most delicate position." Fortunately, the present chief executive of the United States is a wonderful personality. Judging by his speeches and writings, he might be called the incarnation of the principles of Bushido. There is no doubt that he is resolute enough to cut this Gordin knot.

Then she feil on the floor, unconscious. Frank, the boy, screamed and looked at his grandmother in horror. The woman bent over-the child. The poison had made her very sick. She choked and there was a green stain on her lips. The grandmother, once a nurse and knowing that instant action was necessery, ran for household remedies. As she did so Heien came up the stairs. With her the poison had had longer to act. She could scarcely walk. Her face, too, was ashen. And in her eyes was the fear which had come to Marguerite. Death, actually, was not what her perverted fancy had painted it. For a moment at the head of the stairs she gazed at the boy and at the saged woman. Then she wavered and attently dropped to the floor. Mrs Curtis applied antidotes and a doctor was called.

Administering what remedies he had with him, he ran to a telephone and called an ambulance. In this both children were hurried to the hospital-Later Marguerite died, and then her sister followed.

New York, June 10.—Running 40 miles an hour along a dark stretch of the ocean parkway near Coney Island, an automobile with seven race-track men aboard struck the back of a Victoria carrying two men and two young women, when all hands were gayly returning to the city after a merry night at the shore.

Under the motor car, which turned a complete somersault, one man was crushed to death and another fatally injured. The remaining five, tossed in all directions, were maimed and cut. Of the Victoria party every one likewise was hurled into the road and hurt. The women, whose names were kept secret, had to be carried into a near-by house and worked over for an hour before they were revived. They are said to be prominent sociality, one being described as the fiancee of Herbert Payne Drinkwater, who engaged the Victoria, and who is a wealthy English mining engineer and a relative of the nobility.

It explains why Dr. Williams! Pink Pills for Pale People are also for nervous people.

It is because of the intimate relation between the red corpuscles in the blood and the health of the nerve. The nervous system receives its nourishment through the blood. Debate Within the Party Must Settle its Future Position — Maryland Statesman Sees Revival of Federalism.

Fadaralism.

The magazine debate between Mr. Bryan and Senator Beveridge on the constitutional question of the reacred rights of the states and incidentally of the Beveridge bill to regulate labor in factories, known as the child labor bill, has been generally read. To Democrate the discussion is of transcendent interest, for it fore-shadows a much more important debate within the Democratte party on the issues of states rights and home rule. The first, installment comes from Senator Rayner of Maryland in the Baitlmore Sun of May 13, in which he sumarizzes the policies advocated by Mr. Bryan as follows:

"First—Ultimate ownership by the sovernment of all the interstate railroads of the United States."

"Scond—The initiative and referending."

"Scoond—The initiative and referen-dum.
"Third—Congress to have the right to arbitrarily fix the total product of all interstate corporations, quasi-pub-lic and privats, and to destroy their business if they transgress the con-scressional limit.

sressional limit.

Fourth—The supreme power of congress to prescribe the terms upon which all interstate commerce shall be conducted, and whenever congress which, of course, means the dominant partly conceives it to be against public policy, it shall have the right absolutely to prohibit commercial intercourse between the states upon the interdicted article (as is fully exemplified in the provisions of the child labor bill).

"My own deliberate judgment is that emplified in the provisions of the child labor bill).

My own deliberate judgment is that if we embody these doctrines in a Democratic platform the next step that will be necessary to take will be to change the name of Jederalist, or take one of the party and revive the name of Jederalist, or take some other title suitable to the occasion; and then, after we have done this, the final step will be, with our leader. Leafe van, in solenn procession to accompany the remains of Democracy. to their resting piece; and when, we are engaged in performing the last, and rice and obsequies, and will be a seen and the commemorating her departed virtues, do not let us forget to recourf the tragic manner of her death, so that posterily shall know that in the hour of her brightest hope and most alluring prospecting, determined to end her rest historic conver, the threw her self-upon the convertible of the self-upon the self-upo was centralization, and died of a selfinflicted wound."

Democratic voters will have to decide these Issues before they electand instruct delegates to the next nainneal convention, and to do so must investigate the arguments on both iddes to arrive at a just conclusion.

Mr. Bryan has so clearly stated his case that it is not necessary to repeat it. Senator-Rayner's summary has led the Baltimore Sun to say:

"The discussion of all these theories of government: the suggestion of Secretury Root that the constitution be changed by construction so as to deprive the states of their reserved, rights; the Reverlige bill and Mr.
Bryan's doctrines—all these things have tended to direct public attention to questions of policy and constitution at law which have been formant almost during this generation. Such a massicity exposition as that of Sentor-Hayner, by so profound a student of the constitution as he to bring the people to the old much to bring the people to the old paths."

Republican Factions Fighting.

Ross Cox of Cincinnati, whose peculiar political practices led to his retirement two years ago by en aroused people, seems to be again in the Republican saddle and is now taking a hand in the Republican national game of politics. The time was when "Coxey old boy," was quite satisfied to boss the grafting Republicans of Cincinnati both to we aim to be the great national peacemaker between the Roosevelt and Foraker factions in Ohio. The Coxey programme is to give all the leaders a nomination and save the Republican party. That, of course, includes making Coxey boss of Cincinnati again. Any Republican can piay in the Coxey game? If he has the wherewith to buy the chips and will add Coxey in regating his lost supremacy as boss. This and other startling political events in Ohio would indicate that the president and Secretary Taft have made a treaty of peace with Boss Cox for offensive and defensive political purposes. Senator Foraker, however, does not propose to sit into the political game with the cards stacked by his enemies and although Republican leaders have a way of getting Sogether, so as to control the spoils, no such deal have been complished and will not be if Scnator Foraker however, does not propose to sit into the political game with the cards stacked by his enemies and although Republican leaders have a way of getting Sogether, so as to control the spoils, no such deal have been complished and will not be if Scnator Foraker and Dick are not consulted and provided for. Hence there is still blood on the Republican moon.

Harriman Corruption.

The Wall Street Journal says that the prevident has been urged "not to proceed further sgainst Harriman, on the ground that such action would tend to disturb the markets and thus injure prosperity."

That was the argument urged to stop the laying bare of insurance corruption. The revelations were not stoped. Prosperity did not suffer. Is Harriman orruption more sacred than insurance corruption?

FEW VOTES NEEDED.

Secretary Root, who is undoubtedly the ablest member of President Roosereit's cabinet, said in one of his speeakes: "When you step in to change a custom you cannot change it by peacemeal; you have to jar seemething." That fact is doubties the reason that the proposition of Mr. Root to change our present tariff law to include maximum and minimum rates of duty has been received by the standpatters with such ominous silence. Special interests that are protected by the tariff want no change and all the monopolists ask is rest and peace. Even just talking of changing the tariff disturbs them, for it is extremely unpleasant to have the light of publicity turned upon their transactions.

If Secretary Root had proposed to leave the present tariff duties as the minimum tax and then add 25 per cent. to those duties as the maximum tax, he would have found more favor with the standpatters. But to reduce the present duties by 25 per cent. as the minimum tax and then add 25 per cent. The standpatters will be about the standpatters. But to reduce the present duties by 25 per cent. as the minimum tax and then add 25 per cent. The standpatters will be about the standpatters. But to reduce the present duties by 25 per cent. as the minimum tax and then add 25 per cent. The standpatters will be about the standpatters. But to reduce the present duties by 25 per cent. as the minimum tax jars upon the nerves of those who are protected by the tariff, who can only view the matter from their own selfabs standpoint. But this very stubbornsess of the pretent tariff protection to the trust becomes more and more apparent to those who are protected wystem will be abolished. You cannot change it by peacemeal and have the structure hang together, for even to remove one of the tariff schedules, such as protects the steel trust has the brian protection of the standpatters and the Standard Oli and other trusts have enough influence to sway more than half the Republican members of both houses of congress. These monopolists with their vasir ramific shift is necessary to overcome the Republican machine and its trust and monopolist allles.

Our Political Trust Magnates.
The Corn Products company, which is the glucose trust and is trying to swallow up the competitors, is said to be controlled by the Standard Oil people. The Glucose Sugar Refining company claims that it is being hounded by Standard Oil, that its shares have been depressed to one-tenth their value. This has been accomplished, is stated in the bill asking that a receiver be appointed, by sales of large quantities of stock on different exchanges in immense amounts and buying it in again at a lower figure. Some days nearly the full amount of the entire stock issue of $80,000,000 was sold, although the sales were false and fraudulent. If these stattments are true, and of course they are sown to in the bill for the receiver, the Rockefelier crowd are, in their efforts to wreck this industrial corporation, even worse than the corrupt tactics comployed by Harriman and his conspirators to wreck the Alton railroad. As the Rockefeliers and Harriman are associated together as the leaders of their section of the frenzied financiers of Well street, it is impossible to escape the conclusion that verything touched by them is tainited, Mr. Harriman was delegate to the last Republican and too and was enthusiastic for the renomination of President Roosevelt, it is further evidence of the ease with which the millions are obtained for campaign funds to corrupt and decive the voters. But it is well to reveneme that something is always expected in return for these millions and the Republican's morthly like the people a square deal?

The Society of Equity has figures to show that over seventy-five per cent of the 1907 tobacco crop has been pledged to the pool. By pledging that crop the farmers are clinching the business and bringing the pool to a success that is annoying to some who are not even interested in tobacco either as preduces, appeculators or consumers. If the farmers can form an organization by which the fixing of the price of their produce is taken out of the hands of the speculators, all ought to be glad of their success.

A primary election will be held in Carroll county in August to mominate a Democratic candidate for State senator, it being Carroll's time to furnish the candidate for State senator, it being Carroll's time to furnish the candidate for State senator, it being Carroll's time to furnish the candidate for the district. The county has there or four candidates who will submit their claims to the primary.

The farmers in this part of the country are facing very discouraging crop conditions. The cold weather and incessant rain, has delayed their work of all kinds, and the early planting of what soever kind has done no good. It takes a great deal to knock the farmer out entirely, but he is surely getting on the raggededge this season.

According to the last school census in this county there has been a big decrease during the last year in the number of children within the school age, which will creat a corresponding falling off in the county's share of the public school found for the year. Boone county schools are being hit hard all along the line, and the only way to meet the reduction in the public money is to supplement the fund by local tax, ation, a measure not generally popular with property owners as a class.

Crowd Sickened by Recital.

The story was told to a tenseneryed, rigid crowd that watched with staring eyes for every move and word of the confessing witness; a crowd that was sickened and weary of its disguisting details long before James H. Hawley, pleading illness of himself. at three oclock in the afternoon, secured adjournment for the day.

James H. Hawley, pleading illness of himself at three o'clock in the afternoon, eccured adjournment for the day.

Orchard retained control of himself almost from the moment he took the stand, and if he suffered much he did not show it. His eyes met those of. Haywood several times and the two gazed fixedly at each other.

There were a few preliminaries as to Horsley's birthplace and resi name and his first days in the North idaho, crossful attempt at the vindicator mine country, and then Hawley led him down to the destruction of the Bunker Hill and Sulfivan mine. Horsley said that W. F. Davis, later the president of the union of the Western Federation of Miners at Crippie Creek, had command of the mohe. He told of the selzure of the train, the theft of the glant powder, the attack upon the mines, and concluding; add: "I lif one of the fuses myself."

young child and wife in Ontario, fee-ing to British Columbia with Hattle Simpson, the wife of another man, and committing bigamy by marrying a third woman at Cripple Creek.

The defense fought the story with a multiplicity of objections and succeed-ed in heading off an attempt to tell the story of the murder of Arthur Col-lins at Teliuride and in temporarily shutting out the contents of a tele-gram received and a telegram sent by Orchard after his arrest. But for the rest the state managed to get in the story intact.

Orchard's Story Unshaken.

Boise, Idaho—Counsel for William D. Haywood continued their attack on the testimony of Harry Orchard at hoth sessions of the trial-Priday, and centered their strongest assault on the events beginning with the explosion in the Vindicator-mine and entiry with the earlier meetings between the witness and the leaders of the Federation of Miners in Denver. To the extent that traffic with "the other cide" in the war of labor and capital in Colorado was discreditable, they succeeded in discrediting the witness. Orchard stood the test and strainvery well and held tenaciously to the story he related Wednesday and Thursday.

More crimes, great and small, were added to Orchard's record Friday. The Cripple Creek woman with whom he committed bigamy had three sons; Orchard stole high-grade ore from a meas-mate; he stole two cases of powder from the Vindicator mine; he stole powder to make one of the bombs thrown into the Vindicator coal p.ic, and he told a lie.

Orchard Ends Gory Tale.

Boise, Idaho. — Harry Orchard crowned his, admissions of grave or the his admissions of grave testimony against William D. Hay. I wood, he made an expicitly detailed confession of the murder of Frank Stunenberg by an infernal machine that directly opens the way for his own conviction and execution.

He swore that the assassination of Steunenberg was first suggested by Haywood, was jointly plotted by Hay. Wood, Moyer, Pettibone and himself, was financed by Haywood and was set i ecuted by himself after the failure of an attempt in which Jack Simpkins had participated.

Orchard littled the total of his own murdered victims to 13, and detailed the circumstances under which he tried to murder former Gov. Peabody, Judge Goddard, Judge Gabbert, Gen. Sherman Beil, Dave Moffat and Frank Herne. Incidentally, he confessed to a plan to kidnap the child of one of his former associates.

Under cross-examination by the defense Orchard confessed guillt of the sortile and several times during the day level and discredit Orchard confessed with Easterly and Owney Barness and with Easterly and Owney Barness and when the sordid social crimes of deserting his Irresistible Sand Hills.

On the coasts of Pomerania there are large tracts of sand, heaped up by the wind, hundreds of yards in breadth and from 60 to 120 feet high, and these hills, propelied by the wind, move steadily in an easterly direction. The speed at which these great hills travel is from 39 to 56 feet a year. Pline woods, which sometimes come in their line of march, cannot stop them and are completely destroyed. The branches are rotted off by the sand and nothing is left of the trees but the bare stems, which after a few years wither and die

Recorder's

Jamestown Exposition.

They are to be selected by the readers of the Recorder in a Popularity Voting Contest. The two receiving the highest number of votes cast will be taken from Burlington to Jamestown and their transportation, hotel bill and admission to the Exposition paid by the Recorder. The trip will consume at least ten days. The editor and his wife will be the chaperones. The date for the trip will be announced later.

Each dollar paid on subscription, either as a renewal, back subscription or new subscribtion, will entitle the party paying the same to 1,000 votes, and for fractions of a dollar will entitle to votes in the same proportion. The result will be published from week to the same proportion. The result will be published from week to week during the contest.

Each ballot cut from the Recorder will be good for 10 votes, provided it is signed by the party voting and received at this office not later than 10 days after its date.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

A ballot box has been secured and locked, and the keys will remain in the possession of County Clerk B. W. Adams, Atorney Sidney Gaines and Dudley Rouse, who will count and certify the result of each week's ballot, between the hours of 1 and 3 p. m., on Tuesday of each week. Ballots received after 1 p. m. on Tuesday will not enter into the count until the next week. The contest will be conducted in a manner perfectly fair to all parties concerned.

All money paid on subscription since and including April 1, 1907, will be permitted to participate in the contest.

No commission will be allowed to agents on any money for subscriptions or job work, that participates in the contest.

Made for Fat Men.
One of the narrow arches in the gallery of the chapel at Columbia university is not exactly symmetrical, although the defect is not noticeable to the casual observer, says the New York Globe. The reason for the widening of the arch after its original construction had rise in a somewhat humorous—occurrence. One—of—the early visitors was a remarkably fat man, who found himself wedged into the arch when he tried to squeeze through and was extricated with difficulty. The builders, recognizing the possibility of other fat people being numbered among the future visitors, decided to widen the arch, sacrificing symmetry and harmony to practical need, as the pler was so constructed as to bear no loss of width on one of its sides.

Cheapens and improves Coal.

Consul General W. R. Holloway, of Halifax, says that the Canadian commercial agent at Manchester, England, reports an invention at that place for depriving soft coal of its most objectionable feature by abstracting the oils said to produce smoke and calling the resulting article "coalite," which is something like coke in appearance and which can be furnished at one-third the present cost of coal. Flve acres of land near Manchester have heen purchased, and large works will be erected for its production.—United States Consul Reports.

Girls' Schools in France,
An interesting occasion recently was the observance in Paris of the twenty-fitch anniversary of the opening of public schools for girls, which were established in France through the instrumentality of the late Jules Férry. The schools supplement the system instituted for the benefit of boys, and the facts brought out during the exercises of Friday show how wisely the statesmen of the early days of the present French republic laid their plans. Putting girls in the way of attaining an education has led to gratifying results, says Troy Times, not the least of which is the training ability of the government to handle the situation prevals in administrative circles.

Though Gen. Dracheffsky, prefect of police, was nominally in charge, the provisions for public safety were virtually in the hands of Gen. Hazenkampf, the aide to Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch, who returned from Krasnoye Skol to assume command of the combined garrison, including the guard corps, the 37th infantry division, a large force of cavalry, Cossacks and several machine gun detachments. The military was chiefly disposed of in the industrial sections, but a strong force occupied the Taurile palace vicinity. A portion of the Taurile palace vicinity. A portion of the Tatrikux kreginger agartisoned the pelace, while squads of cuirassiers were stationed in the courtyards of the adjoining buildings. Not even dourns officials were allowed to enter the precincts of the palace. A laconic notice was posted on the grates announcing that "former deputies" would receive their salaries upon application to the chancellery. Reports were in circulation during the day that the workingmen were planning a great demonstration in front of the palace, but they did not appear, and only occasional sightseet wisited the building.

Ing. upon the eve of the conference of 1899 and to-day.

In 1899, although less than half as many governments were represented, the hopes of the world were high and there was a vision of disarmament and the banishment of war from among civilized peoples.

Thy delegates entered upon their work with the zeal of men upon a holy mission. Yet three months later this dream faded.

Nothing beyond the adoption of a plous yow remained.

Today, with the conference a war parliament in the fullest acceptation of the term, the delegates meet in a more practical spirit.

Two wars have been founght since 1899 and the military budgets are heavier, but disarmament has not been broached, even, and the prospects of a step toward limitation of armaments are slight.

At the same time, the delegates admit that the public agitation in favor of reduction is stronger than in 1899.

The trouble, they say, lies in the European situation, which is so delicate that no single power is ready to propose a foundal test it jeopardize the extremely useful work of ameliorating the horrors of war, defining the rights and duties of neutrals, perhaps extending the principle of armitments fear that unless it is brought up the whole deem and all into universal ridicule.

At the outset it is seen that the important thing to avoid its discord, and with the purpose of permitting a further exchange of views it has been decided to postpone the second session of the conference until Tuesday.

Some optimists believe that because the difficulties are fully appreciated in advance the result will be more satisfactory.

Upon the single question of publicity the jealousy of the powers has con-advance the result will be more satisfactory.

Upon the single question of publicity the jealousy of the powers has contributed directly to bringing about a view different from 1839.

Then not a single power supported Sweden's motions for publicity.
To-day Germany believes that publicity will prevent her being placed in a false position, and the fact that Germany refuses to advocate secrecy forces her opponents to suport publicity.

His Mate Was Drowned When Both Men-Were Washed Overboard

New York, June 13.—One of those ocean waifs who, at frequent intervals, are lost in their dories white fishing on the Grand Banks off Newfoundland, was brought into this port by the Chinard Ilner. Carmania, still suffering from 14 days of starwation, exposure and hardship white adrift, on the Alantic. He was Louis Vollet, one of the crew of the three-masted French fishing schooner Mimoea, rrom St. Malo, France. His dory mate was drowned when both men were washed overboard by a heavy sea which all most overturned the little boat.

The Mimoea was at anchor on the edge of the Grand Bank, when Vollet and his mate left the schooner on the morning of May 27 to take the fish from his trawi, which was stretched away for several miles from the vessel. Before they-could-return a storn came on, accompanied by dense fog. The fishermen could make no headway against it, and their dory was blown far away. A heavy sea broke abourd and washed, the two men overboard. Vollet scrambled back, but bis mate disappeared.

For six days Vollet substated on these biscuit with which the dory was provisioned and drank the rain water which fell in the boat, but the seventh day the food was exhausted and Vollet faced starvation. Although Vollet was in the pathway of the ocean liners, he was drifting south of it, and for eight days he watched in vain for the approach of a vessel. He kept track of the passage of the days by cutting a notch in the gunwhaie of the dory each night.

When the lookout of the Carmania sighted the craft on Monday last, 14 days after Vollet left the Mimosa, he was feebly trying to scull his dory so the passage of the days by cutting a notch in the ship's hospital and a concert was sure, at which as substantial subscription was taken for his benefit. He will return to France as soon as he is able.

VALUE OF ROADS

flated Stocks and Bonds No ioure of Value-Public Opin-ion Will Force Con-

There would seem to be a fair prospect that all'the interstate railroads of the country will be valued as a basis for settling what are reasonable rates for freight and passengers. The senste would like to defeat such an appraisement, and is taking its usual underground way through procrastination. The committee on interstate commerce commission whether it would be practical for it, in addition to its regular work, to make such a valuation of railroad property as is provided for in the La Foliette bill. The Republican majority of the committee has been holding up the bill for two months with the intention of laying it on the shelf, and this last move will defeat the bill for this season. But the Republican majority of the senate will be forced: to pass this move will defeat the bill for this season. But the Republican majority of the senate will be forced to pass this move will defeat the bill for this season. But the Republican majority of the senate will be forced to pass this move will defeat the bill for this season. But the Republican majority of the senate will be forced to pass this move will defeat the bill for this season. But the Republican majority of the senate will be forced to pass this necessary provision for arriving at facts before real railroad reform can be accomplished and public opinion will be more powerful with these politicians than their friendship for the corporations. So this legislation may be looked for before loss in the capitalization of corporations is a crying evil and cannot be stopped effectually until there is a sound basis for kowing whether further increase is the real value of the real road and will require some definite rule for determining values. The constant increase is the real value of the country is a difficult of the amount of capital that has been invested in time to the real road and their bonds depends upon rolume of bestiness and her rates charged, and if rates are to be determined by what they can earn.

The earning capacity of a railroad depends upon volume o magnates as Harriman are still a public menace.

In a great measure the railroads have their future in their own hands. If they are honestly conducted and the inside grafting is abolished, they will be helping their own future as much as the public interests, but if they persist in "the public be damned" state of mind they will exasperate public opinion-and suffer accordingly.

The whole question resolves itself into, whether the railroads are to run the government, or whether the people shall run the railroads for their own protection, and the answer is as plain as the nose on a man's face.

An Historical Parallel.

The New York World pretends to have reliable information that Thom as Fortune Ryan of Virginia is in the field as a candidate for the presidency. The grounds upon which this information is based are not exposed, but it is incidentally mentioned that, among other elements of his strength, is the strong Catholic following he would undoubtedly command. This is a very slender reed and has never before been pleaded in behalf of any candidate, except in the memorable instance of Chief Justice Roger Brooks Taney, in whose case it proved fatal. Any student of our politics knows that religion is a thing quite apart from party allegiance, and that any pretension of privilege depending apon church influence must inevitably arouse wide resentment. Considered from this point of view, the announcement in the World may be regarded as an attack on Ryan's availability, although his church-connections are from anything revealed in the World acxposure that he is in fact a candidate. If he is in truth a candidate, some more substantial grounds than those given by the World must be found for him to stand upon.

The history-of the efforts of—the trivads and admirers of Chief Justice Hoger-Brooks-Taney in the same field of endeavor in which the World now says Mr. Ryan is active, is commended to the enthusiastic friends of the ambitious Virginian.

CONGRESSIONAL EXTRAVAGANCE

A Two Billion Dollar Congress
dicad-Lavish Expenditure

dioad—Lavish Expenditures.

This congress will go into history as the most extravagant of any of its predecessors. The appropriations will be close to $2,000,000,000. It is almost certain that when the figures are cast up of the appropriations for this session, the amount will exceed $1,000,000,000. The Fifty-first congress, 1899-01, was the first billion-doilar congress, as it appropriated $1,035.650,109, and the people very promptly "turned the rascals out" when the time came to do the voting. What will they do with the Republican party of the Fifty-inth-ongress for doubling that former extravagance? The estimates of the treasury department for the fiscal year ending June. 30,1908, which the present congress is appropriating for, amounted to $890,000. These estimates, as they always are, were considered all that was necessary to run all the departments of the government with liberality, but congress will probably exceed that amount by over $20,000,000.

These figures are startling, and some of the Republican rasders stand aghast at their magnitude, and fearing the work of the produced of particular their magnitude, and reperious the content of the produced of th some of the Republican readers stand aghast at their magnitude, and fearing the wrath of the piundered people, are sounding notes of warning. Never has a congress been more liberal in its treatment of claimants, particularly those asking for private pensions. The bars have been thrown down in this kind of legislation and thousands of private pension and thousands of private pension and thousands of private pension bills have been rushed through both houses in record time. It was said that the new service pension law would make these private pensions nearly unnecessary, but the prediction has been anything but verified. It was found necessary to appropriate $15,000,000 extra to pay the new service pensions, and it is staged that President Roosevelt felt impelled to request the house and senate committees to go slow on those private pension bills now the service pension bill is a isw.

The congress has not only increased its own salaries, but those of thousands of others and every appropriation bill that passes adds to the total. The army bill, the nary bill, the river and harbor bill are all greater than ever before, except during the civil war.

There is perhaps a methou. This was considered that traif revision is impossible, in view of the enormous amount of money necessary to run the government. But this excuse will not prevent the demand for rartfa reform for his extrawagance. They elected a large Republican majority without creen a piedge of economy, and their representatives have virtually "run wild." The Sixtleth congress will but be a repetition of the present one, except as the approach of the national election leads it to be more cautious on account of fear of the people.

CUBAN SCANDALS REVIVED.

Gen. Wood Is Once More in the Lim

Gen. Wood is Once More in the Limelight.

The evil that men do lives after them. When Gen. Leonard Wood was at the head of affairs in Cuba as the representative of the Roosevett administration, he was charged with the worst species of grafting in connection with the Jai Aliai gambling concern. In fact, he was charged with official corruption. He was also charged with exerting his power to enforce the election of Palma to the presidency of the new-republic, and with fraud in that connection.

Now comes the Cuban revolution for the overthrow of Palma; and its principla stock-th-trade is the conspiracy between Wood and Palma, and the election frauds growing out of Palma's ambition.

Now comes also Maj. Rathbone who was director-general of posts under Woods' regime in Cuba, and who was sometime ago convicted of crimes most palpably committed in connection with postal affairs in the Island, and charges most emphatically that Wood was guilty of the same practices for which he was convicted. Rathbone has been for years trying to obtain a congressional investigation, but the friends of Roosevelt, who is Wood's backer, have thwarted his designs, lest the scandal sure to be uncarthed should bring the president into discredit for favoritism towards a man charged with the most odious of crimes—the crimes of bribery, corruption, and official injustice. If the Democrats should win in—the next house of representatives, the Wood case will, no doubt, be carefully investigated in spite of Roosevelt.

Operations of Land Laws.

The public lands of the Tuitted States, should be utilized in similar dastion. Our precent public land law were, passed when there was a vast surplus, of vacant public land. The chief desire was to secure settlers thereon, and comparatively a light attention was paid as to exactly a light attention was applied in the public mind, and land frauds were common and little noted. This was especially true—when a system true was applied to the dryer regions of the greet plains and to the mountains and the Pacific coast. In fiese regions the ayer mell was region of the street plains and to the mountain sand the Pacific coast. In fiese regions the ayer mell was true itself to fraud, and much land passed out of the hands of the government without passing into they hanged remement without passing into they hanged examents.

The inability of the relivoide of the United States to west the demands upon them, has drawn public attention forcibly to the use of our waterways that the is only one of their many uses, and that a planned and orderly development is impossible except by taking faits account all the services that the is only one of their many uses, and that a planned and orderly development is impossible except by taking faits account all the services with the control of the control skill in solving the others will in the end avail us very greatly.

Now as to the matter of taxation. Most great civilized countries have an income tax and an inheritance tax. In my judgment both should be part of our-system of federal taxation—I speak disidently about the income tax peak disidently about the income tax superal country by a five to four vote; and in addition it is a difficult tax to administer in its practical workings, and great care would have to be exerting the superal countries of the superal countries. The superal countries was a compared with the superal countries of the superal countries of all taxes is the tax which bears heavily upon the honest as compared with the ated income tax of the proper type would be a desirable perannent feature of federal taxation, and I still hope that one may be devised which the supreme countries linheritance Tax.

In my judgment, however, the inheritance tax is both a far better method of taxation, and far more important of the country bear in more important of the country bear in proportion to their size a constantly increasing burden of taxation. These fortunes exist the owners by the public. They are a constant source of care and anxiety to the public and it is eminently just the owners by the public. Distinction.

Dr. D. L. Parker, writing in the Medical Record, tells us that baldheaded Record, tells us that baldheadedness can be cured by deep breathing. We hope, however, that this is not true, for we would hate to be about the seen and any way of growing hair on bald pates introduced. The human race would lose much of its venerable digarity if bald heads are to be abotished.

We nayer fail to have a carefully selected baldheaded editor on our staff, says the Pathfulder: we keep him in the sanctum sanctorum to show to visitors as "the" editor, and no one who sees his beautiful polished poli could fail to be suitably impressed with him, for he looks as if he really knew everything an editor is expected to know. When congress is a session we send him to the capito with instructions to sit constantly in the press gallery with his hat off, to look as wise as possible, and on no account to give himself away by expension and on the subsection of the Pathfunder has a subsection of the Pathfunder has a when they are subsection with the subsection without delay. In the same way we see to it that our bald-headed editor is always in older important gatherings, and other important gatherings, and we even send him to educational coventions and the like where he never falls to do good work just by enable, ing himself and keeping silent. Now what better advertising could you think of? How inconsequential beatdeour editor do the measley little while personal personal way he man so far.

We attribute a large part of the success of the Pathfinder to this policy of being represented by a man so impressive. And what would our editor be if the were not for his baildnead? From time to time, after reading the seductive "cure-for-baild-heads" advertisements that are so common, he gets a notion that he would like to grow a little hair. Once we even caught him fubbing some sort of fertilizer on his scalp, but we threw the bottle out of the window and gave him to understand that if he ever dared so much as even cast a shy glance at a hair-restorer ad. his job would be gone. He now resilizes where his bread is buttered and seems reconciled to his situation. He ought to be highly contented, for he has no work to do and he draws the highest salary of the establishment. There is no doubt that he owes his good berth to his baid head; he ought never to forget this, but nevertheless we shall take good care that no temptations in the way of announcements of new cures for hair-lessness are placed in his way.

To Make a Razor Strop.

Razor strops are prepared from strips of linoleum of the usual length and width, let for 20 hours in a one-eighth to one fourth per cent solution of hartshorn sait, to which 1½ per cent of alum has previously been added, at the ordinary temperature. The strips are then dried at the normal temperature, rubbed with esspand polished with pumies stone.

They are finally fastened in the usual manner to wooden handles. Strops made in this way will, give a smooth, sharp edge to the razor.—Scientific American.

"Samuel, thy father, shall hear of this, for surely he did not appoint thee to pervert judgment in larael!"

And without pausing to hear whether any reply were made the elders passed down along the pathway and soon disappeared around the turn in the road which led back to the northern country. They had come in response to the many complaints which people were constantly making against. Joel and Ablah, the two sons of Samuel, whom the latter had appointed as judges over the nation and that the cause of justice was being perverted by the use of money. The elders had been reluctant from the first to believe the reports brought to their ears, but as time went on and the complaints grew louder and more numerous they were forced to give the matter consideration, and had at last decided to go in a hody to Beersheb and place the charges directly great the matter consideration, and had at last decided to go in a hody to Beersheb and place the charges directly with the sand or gravel and ving in consequence. GOOD IDEA FOR MATCHES.

"Mexico may be behind us in some things, but she has us lashed to the wheel when it comes to making matches," said a man just in from the land of the Montezumss as he handed out a wax lucifer with a head on each end.

"I saw nothing but double ended matches while I was away, and I can tell you that they save one's record with the Recording Angel. If you dig down in your pocket and find one match the chances are that you are sure of a light, because if one end goes out the other is left. These old time matches, just revived, that splut ter hrilliant sparks may be all right when it comes to pleasing the haby, but the fellow who puts on the market a double ended match will find a ready demand."

His Idea of a Good Time.

The retired contractor sighed as he got into his dress suit and thought of the elaborate dinner and the opera that were to come.

"Some day," he said, "I'll git real desp'rit, an' then do you know what I'll do?"

"Somehine to the beautiful and the said."

I'll do?"

"Something terrible, no doubt," replied his ambituous wite.
"I suppose it wouldn't look well in print," he admitted, 'but I can't help that. What I'll do will be to throw away these high-pried cigars, put on some old, clothes, go out an' come in by the back way an' smoke a quarter pound of cutup chewin't obacco in a cob pipe while I'm talk'nt things over with the coachman in the barn."—The Bohemian.

Text Somewhat Apropes.

The Rev. J. B. Hammill, the eloquent preacher of the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, was preaching at Sasyville, L. I., from the text 'Look well to your foundations." After repeating the text he leaned heavily on the pupilit desk, which gave way and plunged over the sitar rail, nearly hittung the isymen in the front seat and scattering the Bible and the preacher's notes among the holders of the pews. The aged preacher barely escaped a tumble over, the latra with the heavy desk.

HE ALSO WAS A COLLECTOR.

Cleveland Artist Came Back with Counter Proposition.

A local newspaper artist got a letter one day from a man over in Indiana who said he was making a collection of sketches, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer. If have drawings from well known newspaper artists in nearly every state in the indiana man wrote, "but I have none from Ohio. I have seen some of your work and I think it is good. If you will send me some little sketch for my collection I shall have it framed."

The artist noticed from the letterhead that the Indiana man was connected with a bank in one of the small towns in the state of literature. That gave him a hunch, and he wrote back as follows:

"I am making a collection of ten dollar-bills. I haven't secured specimens from every state in the union, but I have several tens and a few twenties, and I am particularly anxious to have a ten dollar bill from Indiana. I notice that you are employed in a place where ten dollar hills are kept, and if you send me one for my collection I shall be glad to have it framed."

[Danbury News.]
The year 1818 was known throughout the United Mates and Europe as the coldest ever experienced by any person then living. There are persons in Northern New York who have been in the habit of keeping diaries for years, and it is from the pages of an old diary begun in 1810, and kept up unbroken until 1840, that the following information regarding this year without a summer, has been taken:

January was so mild that most persons allowed their fires to go out and did not burn wood except for cooking. There were a few cold days, but they were very few. Most them the air was warm and springlike. February was not cold. Some days were colder than any in January, but the weather was about the same. March, from the 1st to the 6th, was inclined to be windy. It came in like a small ion and went out like a very innocent sheep. April came in warm, but as the days grew longer the air became colder, and by the first of May there was a temperature like that of winter, with plenty of snow and ice. In May the young buds were frozen dead, ice formed half an inch thick on ponds and rivers, corn was killed, and the cornfields were planted again and again, until it became too late to raise a crop. By the last of May arrived in 1816 everything had been killed by the cold.

June was the coldest month of roses ever experienced in this latitude. Frost and ice were as common as buttercups usually are. Almost every green thing was killed, all fruit was destroyed. Snow fell ten inches deep in Vermont. There was a seven-inch fall in the interior of New York State, and the same in Massachusetts. There were only a few moderately warm days. Everybody looked, longed, and waited for warm weather, but warm weather did not come.

It was also dry, very little rain fell. All summer long the wind blow steadily from the north in blasts, laden with snow and ice. Mothers knil socks of double thick mess for their children, and made thick mittens. Planting and shivering were done together, and the farmers who worked out their taxes on the country roads wore overcasts and mittens.

Where the home life is ideal, there is found genuine particitism which is always commensurate with the enlightenment and the domestic happiness of the people. How important is then that every safeguard be thrown about the home, which is the hotbed where are produced for development all the strength that is necessary for the perpetuation of a government and the maintenance of a nation's greatness.

The student who will study into conditions of the countries that are continually weeked by internal turnoil, such as Russia and the Central American republics, will discover the continually wrecked by internal turmoil such as Russia and the Central homes are far from 'detal-homes, andthat there is an absence of the love of country that should be found in the hearts of its citizens. There is a duty that involves upon all, and which is due to the generations growing and to come. The duty is to surround the home with such environments as will make it attractive and develop in the growing youth the highest qualities of manhood and womanhood. Where the people are oppressed by monarchy and feudalism there is no incentive to develop the highest state of home life.

In America where all are upon an equal plane, and opportunities are open to every citizen, and where the people are secure in their rights to Education is all important and no other country in the world offers to all such glorious advantages to receive enlightenment as does the United States. It is important that the home be located near good schools. Good schools are generally found where there are good homes and good towns. The quality of citizenship of a community can generally he gaged by the standard of its educational institutions. It is important to the home builder that the town wherein he is located or which he may reside near, be a progressive place. And the better that this town be, the better will be its educational facilities for the youth. It is essential to the greatest good of a community that it be realized by all residing within it that the more wealthy it can be made, the greater will be its advantages both as to education and otherwise. It sums more wealthy it can be made, the sreater will be its advantages both as to education and otherwise. By support to home institutions the home is made better in every way. Patriotic citizens will make it their first aim to be loyal to their own home interests and then their state and nation. One who is loyal to home is generally faithful in the performance of all the duties that good citizenship implies.

Who Makes the Town?

The editor of the paper at Coyie.
Okla, asks in large letters, "Who makes the town?" To make a town requires the work of many people. It is surely not the man who earns his wages in the town and then spends his earnings elsewhere; not the farmer-or who sells his produce to the homomerchant and then takes the money to the express or post office and sends it to the Chicago mail order house for the goods he needs; nor the minister who is paid for preaching by the business interests of the place, and spends his spare-time in working up grocery clubs for an outside concern.
No, brother, these men do not make towns.

Gov. Folk on Home Trade.

"We are proud of our splendid cities and we want them to increase in wealth and population and we also want our country town to grow. We wish the city merchants to build up but we also desire the country merchants to prosper. I do not betieve in the mail order citizen. If a place is good enough for a man to live in and make his money in, it is good enough for him to spend his money is."

Killing the Small Towns.

It is impossible to build up towns without there being business to employ the people who reside in them. The unit order system of doing business is killing off the small town, and as a result the farmers residing near them suffer by having a poor market, and poor schools and other blessings of the kind that go with the live town. Not slone this but farm values are best down.

NO TIME FOR STUDY.

People Who Are Either Too Busy of Too Indolent for Self-Improvement.

That person who takes no interest in affairs of his fellow men, who faits to keep himself informed as to what is transpiring around him, is far from being either progressive or well-informed. These days when papers and magazines are so plentiful and so cheap, there is little excuse for the average person not keeping closely is touch with events, and particularly touch with events, and particularly keeping enlightened as to what is franspiring that may affect his own individual interests.

One of the great beauties, and an extraordinary privilege of our American form of government, is the right of ever citizen to take a part in public affairs and particularly in governmental transactions. How many follow party leaders, perhaps blindly, and too late find that they made errors through not having understood the situation? How many who are negligent in the study of measures that are brought up for consideration both by state and national legislative bodies, and too late find that unwise laws were enacted that directly oppressed certain classes to the advantage of others? How many people are, gathreed in by alluring promises made in the finely printed literature sent broadcast through the country for the purpose of exploitation of traudulent stock companies, Just through not keeping informed as to the means and methods employed by schemers to cutrap the unwary? It is conservatively estimated that sech year more than $50,000,000, are taken from the earnings of the people fust through the operations of fraudulent mining, oil, insurance and like coacerns. It would be impossible for the promoters of such frauds to exist were the people careful readers of the mewspapers and the magazines, the pages of which are filled with accommon to the doings of get-rich-quick' schemes.

These days there is every opportunity-for-self-improvement. Rural deliveries carry papers to the most venture for such proposition and diverse them, there would be less ansafor complaint on the part of those who perchance get their. "In gere bilistered

Importance of Good Roads.

The town that has good roads leading to it is blessed. Surely-there is no more disagreeable thing, nor anything more adverse to the business interests of a place than impassable boggy roads. There is a little excuse in the well settled community for poor roads. It may in the beginning be somewhat expensive to put the roads in order, but in the end it will prove that the sawing in wear and tear on wagons and horses will well repay all the additional expense. And to the town good roads are almost vital. The average farzor- would rether. The work of the control of

If it will only unite upon essentials; if it will only stand by the old ritual and not attempt to alter it to suit every economic clique or mongrel denomination that is willing to array itself under its banners; if it will only abandon the worship of temporary idiois that are broken into fragments with the close of every campaign, and return to the worship of those cardinal principles that will remain immutable so long as the republic lasts, regardless of the fact whether parties discard them or not—then I believe that our mission is by no means ended, but that, emerging from the apathy and lethargy that now envelopes us, we shall be recalled to life to resume the activities of our normal existence and to the accomplishment of our historic destiny."

The Chattanooga, Tennessee, Times is authority for the statement that: "Texas wants Senator Culberson nominated for president by the Democratic convention." Doubtless there is a very strong feeling in Texas for the nomination of Senator Culberson, but whether it is widespread enough to insure him the support of the delegates from other states that will not be clocted for a year to come, is a debatable question. In these stirring times a month often upsets political calculations, and the events of a year may entirely change the mind of Democrats as to the policy of nominating a candidate that may now appear to be desirable. Senator Culberson is well fitted to fill any position, and if the Democracy should select him as their candidate there would be no doubt of his ability and his honesty of purpose in carrying forward the people's will. But in case there is a general demand from the southern states to name the candidate, nearly every state will present a favorite sor, all of whom are also entitled to consideration, and the question will be who is the most available and who cap best units the party in the doubtful states?

There is one feature of the abnormal rise in the price of wheat that it is necessary for the members of the party. The message is from Sonator Isidor Rayner, who represents Maryland in the United States senate. As Maryland is one of the states that it is necessary for the Democratic to carry to win the next election of the message of advice from a course the party should pursue is the more worthy of attention.

"Off course," said Senator Rayner, who as new issue arises the Democratic party must take its stand upon one side or the other, and as new issues develop parties must enlige and expand. No one desires to restrict the Democratic party wither to a dead is sue-or-simply to those that existed as they have any released to the period of the charge. After suggesting a platform upon which all Democratic ould unite Seniator Rayner closed by saying: "It we advocate principles that are not Democratic and be again defeated at the polis, then it looks to me as if the hour of disintegration was at hand, because the only thing that has kept us alive through all the strange vicinstitudes of our fortung is the fact that we have never yet, upon all the pages of history, sounded a final retreat. There certainly should be a square deal for the farmers and planters whose profits are precarious and subject to all the vicinstude of heat and cold, draught and food, and can least withstand the rapacity of corporations which charge all the traffic will bear. For the past year the price of wheat, cotton and some other agricultural products has been below the cost of production, considering that on an average all the farmer buys has advanced in price over 50 per cent, mainly because the tariff protects the trusts from competition. Such monopoly the Republican leaders detend, and are repaid by enormous campaign contributions by the trusts and corporations for perpetuating themselves in power.

As long as these Republican policies are allowed to continue, it is prepose, terous to say the people are getting a square deal.

BERMONETTE.

SERMONETTE.

"A choice young man and a goodly,"—This is our first introduction to the young man who afterward became king and around whom some of the most tragic and and incidents of the Bible center. How large he looms up as he ateps out into prominence and power, and how small he becomes as the fatal weeknesses in his character are revealed by the willfulness and pride that plungs him to failure. After all one is not bigger than the character which he possesses. It is not the external appearance, but the inner qualities of heart and mind which determine one's fitness for the glace of prominence and power.

Saul could not stand prosperity and promotion. It is so with many a man. They are choice and goodly in the small place, but their moral qualities do not expand with the enlarged aphere to which often fortune crayand with the enlarged aphere to which often fortune or favor brings them, and as a result pride and the sense of a self-importance leads to the misstep which results in ultimate failure.

"A band of men whose hearts do had to under the failure.

"A band of men whose hearts do had to under the favor of God and man, and now a following for that leader. New responsibilities, and new resources of strength and power for their fulfillment. Although God had not wanted to give them a king, desiring to hold that relationship and the people himself,—he was ready to encourage—and help the newly-chosen king, and so his split touched the hearts of some choice men of the kingdom and filed them with a desire to consecrate their livea in service to the newly-chosen king. One can estimate what this who can estimate what this who had the hearts when in whom he could put his trust, because God had touched their hearts. Here were men in sympathy with him in the difficulties and perplexities of his exalted office, because God had touched for that which was right. To say of any man that God cannot touch the hearts of a god many men, much as a courate index to his character. God cannot touch the hearts of a god many men, much as desires to do so. Business, curate Index to his character. God cannot touch the hearts of a good many men, much as he delires to do so. Business, worldly ambition, self-seeking, love of pleasure, etc., prove Impregnable barriers against the touch of the finger of God. God seeks to touch the heart of every man, and except the Divine Impress la received qualities are lacking which can best fit one for the discharge of the duties of Ilfe. In direct contrast to this band of men we find there were the children of Bellal, or naughty men, who relating the work of God in their hearts gave themselves up to wicked opposition to the new king. It is always so. The forces of evil are always on hand to withstand the good. We stand with one or the other.

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

I've the prophet has yielded to the demands of the people and had promised that in due time after he had communed with the Lord the desire for a king would be granted. Thus assured the elders had returned home, and great reddeling had followed.

In Glbeah, of the tribe of Benjamin, as in the other towns and cities of the country, there was great jubilation. Everything else was forgotien for the moment as the people gave themselves up to the merrymaking. They were like children with a new toy. They found the prospect of a king like unto the nations about full of bright contemplation. The chief were of the village gathered in the court of the assembly in the gate of the city and discussed the outlook, vieling with each other in picturing the future of the kingdom and speculating on who might be chosen king from among the 12-tribes, while the rest of the people of the village gathered round to listen to the conversation.

So reat was the interest and excitement that servants at work in the fields and those watching their flocks left their tasks and folined the company at the gate. Among the latter was one of the servants of Kish, a wealthy land owner of the village, who had much substance and flocks and herds. That morning he had been sent out with the herd of assess the sent out with the herd of assets in the field and slipped in to learn what it was all about. With the learn what it was all about. W as he had intended to remain but a moment and get back to his asses before they had wandered away, everything but the thought of a king was driven from his mind, and he remained to share in the talk and the merry-making.

Late in the afternoon when at last he thought of the asses which he had been set to watch and had hastened out im search of them, he could find no trace of the animals whatever, and shame-facedly sought out his employer Kish, and told him the asses were lost.

shame-facedly sought out and ployer Kish, and told him the asses were lost.

"Let me go in search of them," urged Saul, who overheard the conversation, stepping to his father's 142.

versation, stepping to his father's side.

The father looked up at the towering figure at his side, while a relieved look chased away the angry slush from his face.

"Go, then, quickly, my son." Kish replied eagerly. "Take the servant here with thee that he may tell thee where he left the asses and may add thee in the search."

And the eyes of the father followed him in loving pride as he started off in response to his urgent words. There was not another man in all the tribe of Benjamin, and as far as he knew in all Israel, who was as he knew in all Israel, who was as he knew in all Israel, who was not another man. He had come to be right hand help in management of all the affairs of the estate, and when, he had proposed going after the valuable herd of asses which had strayed the father fold a load of anxiety taken from his mind, for he knew that Saul would, search long, and far until they were found.

And as for Saul, all day long there had been an unrest within hisbreast, an eager desire to go some place, to do something, and he welcomed this opportunity of getting out and away. It had come as he had mingied with the crowd and had heard the taik concerning the mew king which was to be chosen. He wanted to hear more about the matter. And as he started off his mind was filled more with these thoughts than with the matter of the lost asses.

Little did he realize the momentous events which were to transpire before he again returned home to Gibeah. And while Saul and the servant continued their search through the country, strange events were shaping themselves in the city where the prophet Samuel dwelt. During the days which had passed since he had dismissed the elders with the promise that he would give them a king he had been burdened by the thought as to how the promise searchine and feast which was to be celebrated by the people on the following day, the Lord spoke to him, saying that on the morrow he would send film a man out of the land of Benjamin whom he should anoint as capitain over his people.

give certain of the chief of the people.

"That is for one who shall come as special guest to the feast."

"But there are none others in the place whom thou canst invite," replied the servant, wonderingly.

"But the place will be filled," war the quiet response of the prophet as he turned and went away.

The sacrifice had been performed and the guests had assembled for the feast and all are contemplating in wonder the vacant seat at the right hand of the prophet. Are they not all present that have been bldden? Then who is there to occupy the vacant seat? And the prophet! What causeth his delay? And while they walt they talk concerning the matter.

"One of the servants says that the prophet of the property of the servants says that the matter.

"One of the servants says that the prophet has this moment gone down to the gate of the city," whispered one.

"One of the servants says that the prophet has this moment gone down to the gate of the city," whispered one.

""(an it be that he has invited eneron abroad?" queried another.

Thus the buzz of conversation kept up until at last footsteps were heard and there entered the prophet accompanied by a tall stranger, upon whom all eyes centered with growing interest.

"What a magnificent physique," thought one. "What a goodly face," was the thought of still another. "What a leader he would make," exclaimed another under his breath. And while thus the company was busy with its thoughts, Samuel led his guest to the chief seat, and commanded the cook, saying:

"Bring in the extra portion which I gave thee, and which I told thee to set by against the time I should call for it."

In this unusual way did Samuel introduce the young Saul to some of the chief men of the nation. The feast continued with a strange spirit of expectancy pervading it, but no man asket: "What meante the presence of this man?" But all were thinking deeply, and when the company bring deeply, and when the company bring deeply, and when the company bring deeply and when strong the came of the young man Saul'r-ws. upon everyone's So the days passed until the day.

to Cow Punchers.

Over in the Saimon river meadows country, in Idaho, ranged a wild and woolly bunch of long-halred cow punchers, whose knowledge of the world was confined mainly to trips after cattle into surrounding countles. Into this reckless but verdant community there came the smooth-tongued representative of a wild west show, who hired several riders at a high salary to do a hair-raising act, the chief refature being that they should appuar to be thrown from their horses and dragged by the foot.

After they had practiced in a corral for a while one of them loosened himself and rising from the dirt, dishoveled and dazed, inquired:

"Say, mister, ain't this ruther dangerous? We might git killed."

"That's all right," chirped the show's representative cheerfully. "Your salary will go on just the same."—Lippincott's Magazine.

He could not sleep day or night, and a light dress is all be could wear. It called one of our best doctors to treat him, but he seemed to get worse. He suffered so terribly that my husband said he believed he would have to die. I had almost given up hope when a lady friend told me to try the Cutcura Remedies. I used the Cutcura Song and applied the Cutcura Song and applied the Cutcura Song and applied the Cutcura Cintment and he at once fell late a sleep, and he slept with ease for the first time since two months. After three applications the sores began to dry up, and in just two weeks from the day I commenced to use the Cutcura Remedies my baby was entirely well. The treatment only cost me 75c, and I would have gladiy paid $100 if I could not have got it cheaper. I feel safe in saying that the Cuttura Ramedies saved his life. He is now a boy of fire. At the death of a much-loved pastor some years ago the vestry of a prominent New York church resolved to place a tablet to his memory in the vestitule of the church, tells Harper's Weekly. In due time the tablet appeared in its place, where it still remains. It has caused not a few smiles; for, after reclding a list of the former pastor's virtues and labors. It closes with the quotation: "Now the people of God have rest."

Selection of Food One of the Most Important Acts in Life.

A Mass, doctor pays: "Our health and physical and mental happiness are so largely under our personal control that the proper selection of food should be, and is one of the most important acts in life.

"On this subject, I may say that I know of no food equal in digestibility, and more powerful in point of nutriment, than the modern Grape-Nuts, four heaping teaspoons of which is sufficient for the cereal part of a meal, and experience demonstrates that the user is perfectly nourlabed from one meal to another.
"I am convinced that the extensive and general use of high class foods of this character would increase the term of 'musan life, add to the sum took happiness and very considerably improve soclety in general. I am free to mention the food, for I personally know of its value."

Grape-Nuts food can be used by babbs in arms, or adults, it is ready cooked, can be served instantly, either cold with cream, or with hot water or hot milk poured over. All sorta of puddings and fancy dishes can be made with Grape-Nuts. The food is concentrated and very economical, for four heaping teaspoons are sufficient for the cereal part of a meal, Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in phys.

"When universal peace is finally established," said Alfred H. Love, the president of the Universal Peace union, in an interview in Philadelphia, "then many a man who now ridicules the peace movement will claim to have been its lifelong champion. It is always so. We thump and kick a poor, weak, struggling movement at its inception, and when it has succeeded and no longer needs our help, we give it the most solicitous support. There was once a young lady whose betrothed, a very poor young man, was about to set out for South America to seek his fortune in the rubber trade. As he took his leave of her the night before his departure, he said, tremulously: 'And you swear to be true to me, frene?' Yes, Heber,' cried the strit, 'yes-'if you're successful.'"

For many, many years ordinary cotton sewing thread has retailed at 5c a spool. The retailer's profit was slight. Now the price has been advanced by the manufacturers to over five cents to the retailers, who will have to sell it at 6 cents per spool at least to make a profit. This looks like a small advance; but in the aggregate it amounts to an immense sum, owing to the universal use of sewing thread.

"Mr. Hamilton has been suffering from depredations of crows. They pulled up about four acres of corn for him. His son concluded to take to shooting them. He took out the old muzzle-loader, but upon examination found he was without shot, but he found some tacks and loaded the gun. A goodly number of crows were in a wildcherry tree, and, after he had fired, to his astonishment they did not fall. But they rose as one crow and took the tree up with them.—As they went up and up, the people all ran out to see the tree go over. It was taken for a balloon. The fact was that the tacks nailed the crows to the tree so securely they pulled the tree up by the roots."

Eye Defects are not Diseases.

A defect of the eye is an imperfection in the structure of the eye ball and not a disease. By neglect and abuse it may lead to disease and often does. Glasses properly fitted are the only remedy that will overcome all defects and give permanent relief. If you have any defects of vision e the most satisfactory glasses you ever used.

King Alfonso as a Father.

According to the old saying, a babe in the house is a wellspring of pleasure, and no doubt the saying is true in most cases. Yet you never can call. Something appears to depend on the station in life which the babe is assigned to fill. That the young king of Spain is a happy papa since the heir to the throne arrived cannot be doubted. Yet there are ample indications that the proud father is deeply impressed with the responsibility of bringing up the infant in proper fashion. The story goes that among the many articles provided to amuse and instruct the child is a large installment of English juvenile literature, provided out of thoughtful compliment to the nationality of the charming mother. But here is where Alfonso draws the line. He is said to have overhauled the books, and finding that they were filled with English nursery rymes and with pictures by English artists he steply remarked. "These they were filled with English nursery rhymes and with pictures by English artists he sternly remarked: "These are curious pictures for the future king of Spain to be reared on. I would rather—the—pictures were of Spanish soldiers." But a compromise has been effected by having the various blank pages in the books decorated with drawings of Spanish soldiers and historical incidents by Spanish artists. If the king wants to make a real "terror" of the boy, remarks Troy Times, why not supply him with the colored Sunday pictorial supplements of some American yellow journals?

Headstones for Dead Soldiers.

Headstones for Dead Soldiers.

Another impressive proof of the growing solidarily of the country—is furnished by the announcement that the war department will buy headstones and mark the graves of captured confederate soldiers and sallors who died while held in hospitals and prisons. The fact that the order to be given will call for 20,000 such head-rones indicates the magnitude of the undertaking, and also emphasizes anew the extent of the sacrifice made during the civil war, says Troy Times. To the hundreds of thousands of union soldiers and saliors who gave up their lives must be added an equal if not greater number from the south who periabed in defense of the confederacy. erisbed in defense of the confederacy, But it is all over, and a kindly government, reflecting the temper of the people from whom it derives its pow-ers, recalling that those who fought in gray as well as those in blue were Americans and that their valor gave them fame which is a common beri-tage, takes this method of showing ap-preciation.

Foundation of Good Citizenship

Foundation of Good Citizenship.

Underlying all other needs is the cultivation of individual strength of character, of self-respect, and of the sense of personal honor. You do not make a man a better man by putting him in the employ of the state. Nor is the fellow who criticises everybody else, but is quietly looking out for a chance to get a little graft himself, the sort of man who will improve the sort of man who will improve the public service. The employer, says Gov. Hughes, in Lealies, who will oppress his men and treat them unfairly will oppress the people if he gets a chance. And the employe who will cheat his employer, or the representative of a union who will betray it for his own advantage, will cheat and betray the public if he is put in office. The man who thinks the first object in life is to serve-himself, and who thinks that the American idea is "every man for himself and the devil take the hindmost," will never be a faithful servant for the people. take the hindmost," will is

Crime, But Insisted That He Was Innocent.

Avondale, Pa., June 22.—The body of little Mary Newilu was found buried in the yard of her stepfather's bome, two miles from this place. Irwin A. Lewis, the stepfather, is under arread accused of the murder of the 5-year-old child.—The ebild had been strangled to death with a piece of tarred rope such as is used by farmers in tying wheat. This had been doubly knotted and was sunk into the flesh of the little girl's neck when her body was found. Over her head a buriap bag had been drawn. The accused man, compelled to stand beside the grave in which he is accused of having buried the child, stood the ordeal without flinching, although he completely broke down when District Attorney Maceleer accused him of the crime.

Near one of the little girl's hands apparently clutched tightly in her hand up to the last, and the fact that it lay in the grave beside her is taken as proof that the child was murdered beside the hole ber murderer had dug in the yard-of his home, or perhaps had been placed in the hole before she was quite dead and while she still had strength to hold the plaything.

When Mr. Maceleer, everal hours before, was informed by two members of the scarching party that the little tirl's body had been found, he turned upon the stepfather and accused bim of the crime.

"Oh, no; my God, no! I didn't do it!"

George Timanus, a local constable, placed Lawis under arrest, and, taking, him in a wagon, led the way at a smart gallop to the scene of the crime, the pretty little farm house of Irwin Lewis, which lies a quarter of a mile across fields from his father's house. There Lewis was again confronted with the ferce accusations of the district attorney, who, from the first, scented murder in the "kidnaping" case, which the stepfather of the child had so carnestly advocated as the cause of the little girl's disappearance last Sunday afternoon.

TOOK HIS OWN LIFE

As the Culmination of a Series of Domeatic Difficulties.

Madison, Ill., June 22.—Berjamin Walters, a local merchant, committed suicide as the culmination of a series of domestic difficulties, the climax being the act of his wife in disoharging the family cook. Mrs. Amanda Delaplain, the cook, says that 20 minutes before Walters shot himself he begged her to disregard his wife's authority and retain her position in his household. Overhearing a quarrel between Mr. and Mrs. Walters, she reconsidered her intention to yield to Mr. Walter's request, packed her belongings and left the place.

Thinks They Took Their Lives.

Chicago, June 22.—The body of Emma Pordius, 10, was taken from lake in Lincoln park, and her elder sister. Clara, 12, is missing. The parents of the children think one of the girls fell into the water and that the other was drowned in a heroic effort to save her sister. Mrs. Patrick Ponitus, grandmother of the girls told the police that she believed they had committed suicide because, as she thought, they had been ill-treated.

Kidnapers Sentenced.

New York, June 22.—"It were far better for parents to know that their children were dead than to feel they have fallen into the hands of such criminals as these," said Judge O'Sul Ilvan, of the court of general sessions, in sentencing ignancio De Leonardo and Pietro Pamplinella to serve 14 years and 10 months in Sing Sing prison for the abduction of little Salvatore Slatts from his home last January.

REVOLT IS LIKELY TO INCREASE.

Report is Current That Leader of Disturbing Element is On His Way to Paris.

Paris, June 21.—The rebellious excesses and rioting in the Midi are causing the greatest excitement and apprehension in Paris. All afternoon newspapers issued editions every hear, which wore snatched from the hands of the venders by the eager public.
The general impression here seems to be that the situation is even worse than had been supposed, and that the revoit is likely to increase, especially in view of the somewhat volent dispositions of the inhabitants of the southern provinces.
As the news spreads it is thought that further disturbances will take place. The outbreaks in Narbonne, Perpignan, Montpelier and other places are regarded of ominous character.

Government Put On its Defense.

The government was put on its defense in the chamber of deputies when it was asked to jussify the repressive measures adopted against the rebellious wine growers of the south, but after subjecting Premeter Clemenceau to a hot fire, the deputies decided to postpone a formal interpellation on the subject, on which the fate of the ministry hangs.

Seldom has the chamber been so full of excited deputies. The absence of reliable news made them nervous, and immediately after the session was opened there were noisy demands for full information. Clemenceau was willing to answer questions, but had little to impart beyond what was already known.

After confirming the reports of the sangulanry fight at Narbonne and Montipeller, for which he blemed the lean guinary fight at Narbonne and Montipeller, for which he blemed the local roughs, the premier declared his intention to repet the attacks on public brildings until driven from his post-by the chamber. He added that his orders to the troops were not to fire except as a last resort, but he declared that the use of riflos was necessary to uphold law and the united republic.

Injury from Mosquitoss.

New Jersey has many places ideal in situation and accessibility, and one such place developed rapidly to a certain point and there it stood, halted by the mosquitose that bred in the surrounding margh lands. Country club, golf, tennis and other attractions ecased to attract when attention was necessarily focused on the biting or stinging posts that intruded everywhere, and the tendency was to sell out. But the owners were not-ready to quit without a fight, and an improvement society was formed which consulted with my office and followed my advice. In one year the bulk of the breeding area was drained, mosquitoes bave since been absent almost entirely; one gentlemen, not a large owner, either, told me bis property had increased $50,000 in value, and new settlers began to come in. This year one of the worst breeding areas of the olden day was used as a camping gorund, and 100 new residences are planned for next year.—Prof. John B. Smith, in the Popular Science Monthly.

Must Mission Schools Go?

The intensely national spirit among the Japanese, together with the creation of the new educational system, has largely altered the status and character of the imission rehools. Whatever changes the future brings, it is evident, however, that from the mission schools Japan has received a tremendous educational impulse, a host of trained teachers; and a company of unselfish counsellors. Furthermore, it must be admitted that at the present time great service is being done by the mission schools, which are maintained throughout the ampire by the various denominations in such numbers and variety that space cannot be spared even to mention the service of the service

Student Immorality.

The whole student problem in Japan must be viewed from a moral side. While morals and ethics have a place in the curricula of all higher schools, they have not an equal place in the conduct of the young people whom they are supposed to affect. The minister of education and other national leaders are frankly alarmed over the situation, and they have turned to the Young Men's Christian association for help. The latter with the Young Women's Christian association, is esecting self-supporting dormitorize where many have safe homes. States men who are themselves arrani rationalists declare that the student must have some religious motive for the desired morality.

Even the daily papers are wrestling with the subject of student immorality—at contradiction of the statement made by some leaders that the recent shocking revelations have not caused a ripple of interest in Japan. The immorality has centered largely abdoit the dormitories and student boarding houses, the latter especially. It has been shown that bundreds, if not thousands, or girl students purchase their education at a price that would seem incredible to western ears. For instance, it is admitted that nearly all of the 1,500 Chinese students berea if ord homes to Japanese girl students or pseudo students. The Chinese students—most of whom, by the way have wives at home—are not neces sarily more immoral than the Japanese, but they are possessed of more money. The average expenses of £ Minese student is seven dollars and a half. The average expenses of a Chinese student if Tokio are estimated at a minimum of 30 yen. The expenses of a girl student are less than those of a man. The terrible situation here with respect to school girls its not, as has been carefully explained to me over and over, because Japanese girls do not prize virtue; but because they prize other things, an education, and feality to parents far more. Girls are sent into Tokio from the country to do either.

In all this it is to be remembered that the attitude of the Japanese toward the relation of the sexes it very different from that of the occident. The social evil is licensed (though by no—means—confined—thous holding licenses) and it is common for a parent to sell his daughter into the word employed here; the keeper lends money to the father, to be repaid out of the daughter's earn that the debt is not wiped out until he is ready to let the girl go. The later now the women of the l yide the traille, which is entirely pedestrian.

Two inexpressibly shocking aspects of that night's experience especially impressed me. One was the number of boys and young men, thousands of them in student dress, who openly frequent the Yoshiwara. The crowd was like that which lines the down town streets of an American city on the night of a presidential election. Not only were there myriads of mear on the streets, but women and children also were out enjoying the "life." These would, unabashed, chat with the girls in the cages, and the lattice seemed to have no feelings of disgrace.

An Angio-Saxon does not relish the sight of, human beings displayed in cages. Yet hundreds of these line the streets of the Yoshiwara, each containing from a dozen girls upward. True, the cages are beautifully glidele and lacquered, some of the rear panelbeing real work of art; and the girls are elaborater i ressed in gaudy gowns, each seated before a toilet box where she perfects her painting and powdering in public. The cages are cages, and the poor painted creatures within are human beings, thus offered for public inspection and sale.

One hour in the Yoshiwara is sufficient to turn any white man forever against the lucensing of the social evil. Adjoining the Yoshiwara and a part of it, is the hospital for derellets. Everything is minutely regulated by a special department of the government. The latest official statistics show more than 50,000 (censed prostitutes, there are said to be, according to the latest publication on the subject, "How the Social Evil 18 Regulzted in Japan," no less than 2,000,000, or five per cent of the population of Japan, or ten per cent. of the femile population of all axes!

In the light of the foregolns, it is seen that one of the tremendous tasks undertaken by the missionaries, and especially through the girls achools, it is seen that one of the tremendous tasks undertaken by the missionaries, and especially through the girls achools is the creation of the Augho-Saxon conception of morality in th

THE REORGANIZED NEW YORK

The new Beard of Treatees of the New York Life Insurance Company, choosen by the polleyholders under the Armstrong law, has taken charge of the company as fairs and has begun lie work of reorganization.

In choosing the principal officers of the company, the Board has adhered to the idea that a life insurance company should be managed by life insurance men. The new president is Darwin 2. Kingsley, a college bred man of acod New England stock, who has beer in the company's service in a variety of capacities for a period of nearly twenty years. In the parlance of life insurance, he "began with the rate book" and has advanced step by step up to his present position.

The first vice president of the company is Thomas A. Buckner, who has served the company for more than a quarter of a century,—indeed has never had any other business connection.

Associated with these men are others long trained in the company's great business in Europe, is one of the second vice presidents, and only who has for many years had charge of the company's great business in Europe, is one of the second vice presidents, and only one the law.

The Mules Understood.

A story is told of Senator Knute Ncison, who spent some of his early years in a logging camp. He there discovered the necessity of certain emphatic language in order to make mules move. "All varieties" of tongues were in demand in that campi: Scandinavain, German, Italian—but none of the words used seemed to have the explosive force to adjust the lempe of the mule to the desired pace. Along came a strapping irishman, who used some popular expletives, usually indicated in print by blank, blank or — The mules moved! "There's a language all mules understand," said the Irishman —"and it's not me mother tongue, ayther." - Joe Mitchell Chapple, in National Magazine.

Louisville, Ky.—After a bitter wransie, which lasted for hours in the room of the resolutions committee, the republicans of Kentucky in state convention, adopted a platform commending the administration of President. Roosevelt and his policios, but refused point blank to judores Secretary of War W.—H. Tatt for the presidency. It did, however, commit he republicans of the state to the support of a man for president in sympathy with the president's policies. The delegates voted to accept this as well as the other planks on the platform without a dissenting voice, and immediately afterward nominated Augustus E. In Breathitt County is Predicted By a Kinaman of Judge Hargis.

Louisville, Ky.—According to a wealthy and influential relative of Judge James Hargis, the feud disturbances in Breathfit county will soon be at an end, and he predicts that the county, which for so long has been the seat of troubles bordering on civil war, will become as quiet and peaceful as any in the state. This Kentuckian, who is also a resident of the mountains, predicts that Judge Hargis, who is to be tried shortly at Sandy Hook for the nurder of Dr. Cox, will be accquitted. This will be the last charge to which the judge will have to an swer, and he says Hargis will then leave Bresthitt county forever and will make his home either at Lexington or Winchester, perhaps the former place. He declares that Judge Hargis would have left the county long ago, but he did not desire to leave under free, but that he will "pull up stakes" lust as quickly as he can do so honorably. By leaving the county it is claimed that Judge Hargis will show that the strife, so far as he is concerned, is at an end.

Will Be Made of Kentucky Forest Lands—Slue Grass Fair Aided.

Lexington, Ky.—At a meeting of the state board of agriculture, forestry and immigration, held here, it was decided by the board to enter into a contract with the federal government to make a survey of the forest lands of Kentucky. The cost of this survey has been fixed at $5,000 and one-half of the cost will be paid by the government and the other half by the state. The object is to secure a map of Kentucky giving the area and distribution of the timber lands, the types of timber in the forest, the estimate of the amount of timber in the state, a study of the methods of logging, a study for the prevention of forest fires and the hest markets and commercial value of the timber. Those attending the meeting, were Hubert Vreeland, commissioner of sgriculture; Senator J. W. Newman, of Woodford county; Prof. M. A. Scovell, of the state experiment station; Desha-Breckennidge, of Lexington, and J. C. C. Mayo, of Johnson county.

The matter of selecting suftable immigrants for Kentucky will be placed at the immigrant receiving station. In New York.

The board donated $500 to the Bitte Grass Fair association.

the Quantity is Less.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Farmers of this county are literally gloating over the rich prospect of the wheat crop, the Reports from the country indicate that the utiling of which will begin right away the over 75 per cent. of the average but that the quality will be better than usual and none is expected to grade below No. 2. The cold weather which prevailed until so late caused the wheat to look very sickly, and serious apprehension was felt that many fields would not be worth the harvesting, but the sunshine brought if out, and none of it will be look. Many fields were overrum with army worms, but instead of this injuring the yield it really helped, for the worms ate the leaves of the stakes without attacking the head, and the strength which would have gone to the leaves all went to the head, thus causing it to fill out more fully and the grains to be larger and fatter.

When the commuter on the C. N. O. & T. P. R. reached Walton at R. p. m., last Saturday, a stranger who boarded the train at Ludlow with a ticket for Walton, complained to conductor Schrumm that someone had stolen his jug of whisky. The conductor told him that his ticket only called for Walton, and to get off and look for his jug. When the fellow get off the train he met a colored man named Ed Long, whom he at once accused with the thet of his whisky. Long told him that he had not seen his whisky. The stranger, who was considerably under the influence of liquor, passed on. In a few minutes he returned with his jug which had been in possession of a friend all the while, but his thirst-for blood still raged. Setting his jug down he drew his pistol and fired three shots at Jong, one entering his body near the navel, one striking him in the arm, the trind missing him. Several persons witnessed the tragedy, but were so taken off their leet by it that on effort was made to arrest the murderer, although he remained at the same of the mirder for several minutes. It being evident thatthe unfortunate negro was dangerously strounded arrengements were perfected to convey him across to the L. & N. depot, a distance of 300 or 400 yards, where a train would arrive in a few minutes on which the wounded man could have been sent to a hospital in the city, but he expired before the depot, was reached. A very obnoxious and troublesome weed is rapidly securing a foothold in Bourbon and adjoining, counties that is very annoying to farmers and promises to give much trouble in its extermination. Just how it gained its introduction is unknown, but it is thought that it came into existence through the importation of clover and other grass seeds. It is of tropical origin and is a species of Sorrell (Begonia Scandens) allied with the dock family (Rumex Acetosa). The objectionable weed grows about ten inches high, the main stem producing an abundant supply of smalls seed, as minute perhaps as tobacco or mustard seeds and has a long top root with a cluster of smaller roots, and close above the top root grows a cluster of short branches in the form of diminutive grass blades, approaching in color and size the finer blades of timothy (Phleum pratense).

The plant is not only a pest to the farmer, but its presence is destructive to all other vegetation, which fails of a luxurious growth wherever the weed is noted. Being acid in its taste and probably to some extent poisonous stock of all kinds avoid it, refuse to eat it and its spear of possible usefulness is doubted and undiscovered. It does not seem to be affected by drouth and is usually found more frequently in clover and timothy meadows and in fields recently sown to bluegrass. It has never been observed in great quantities in bluegrass, but its steady spread is becoming alarming and farmers are perplexed as to the best methods of extermination.

Farmers who have had expereience with the weed are invited to give their methods of extermination.

Ed Fishback, of Pine Grove, Ky., and D. C. Lisle, of Bourbon county, have had considerable experience with the weed and say the most successful method of combatting its spread is to sprinkle sait liberally on the ground where it has gained a foothold, or by covering it with extra and burning the straw.—Kentuckian Citizen.

The New Indian.

A new series of Indian portraits is needed. The "noble red man" of Fenimore Cooper and of Catlin, the fierce figure in war-paint and feathers, lost his romantic interes, when he was confined to a reservation and ted on rations. Now the stall-fed reservation dweller has heen supplanted in turn by the new man, Indian only in blod and traditions, who is sappling up to take his place in the life of the west. The pictures that are to represent the new Indians will include a short-haired, dark-faced man, dressed in black slouch hat, diagy white cot, ton shirt, blue overalls, and hohanfed shoes. He may be a Klowa farmer who gathered 600 hushels of corn from 20 acres of cultivated land last year, or one of the 331 Pine Ridge indians who put up 6,700 tons of hay to dians who put up 6,700 tons of hay to carry their stock through the winter. Or he may be Plenty Buffalo, who has Or he may be Plenty Buffalo, who has worked with team and scraper on the Huntley trigation project in Montana for six months: or Bert Fredericks, the Hopi night foreinan on the tunnel at the Zuni dam in Arizona. The plotures will also depict the Indian woman as mistress of a prairie cabin, feeding the chickens or carrying food to the culves and pigs. They will include a group of children, dressed very like white children, trotting off to day school at eight o'clock will their noon school at eight o'clock with their noon lunches in packages under their arms. A big canvas to hang heside the old vainting of the war dance, says Everybody's, will show 2,000 Sioux at ending a convocation of the Episcopal thurch at White Swan, S. D., and lis-enting to addresses from Bishop Hare, or from their own clergyman, Amos coss, a full-blood.

The Personality of Labor.

The notion is quite too prevalent that the workingman is primarily an "economic problem;" that he ought to realize this and conduct himself with mechanical regularity and impersonal uniformity as a fractional unit of labor power. We shall never make any headway under that doctrine. The workingman is first of all a human being. The purchase of his labor is only in a limited sense to be compared only in a limited sense to be compared to the purchase of a commodity and cannot be treated in the same way. As Dr. Abhot has suggested, in the sale of sugar or flour the personal relation of mutual confidence need enter only once, at the time of the exchange; but where you are buying labor the laborer goes with the labor, and the personal relation of confidence and responsibility must be there all the time, from day to day and week to week, or somebody is cheated. Therefore, whetever method of getting along together is adopted, easy Hayes Robbins in Atlantic, it must count with personal qualities as an essential part of the relation.

This looks like anti-Osierism. Chief Chemist Wiley of the department of griculture at Washington, addressing the graduating class of a scientific school at Cleveland, said jocularly that he belongs to a horizontal achool at Civeland, said jocularly that he helongs to a hundred-year citib, any member of which who dies before completing the century will be expelled in disgrace. Speaking more seriously, he said: "The present generation is going to live much longer than the one which came before, he cause it knows more about the laws of diet, hysiene and surgery. It is a rank disgrace for any man to die, except of old ase." And Dr. Wiley thinks that, is view of the good prospects of long life as a result of proper care and understanding of the rules of health, it will pay a man to spend a long time, even 20 years or more, in the schooling which shall fit him for his work. From which it is to be inferred that learning how to live is one of the essentials to long life.

James Rudolph Garfield, secretary of the interior, was standing by the side of his father in the Pennsylvania ratirosd station in Washington on that fateful day in July, 1881, when the assassin's bullet for the second time dealt death to a president of the United States. The secretary was then only 17 years old—just the age when the average mind is most succeptible to impressions. Close friends say that the horror of that hideous tracedy has never fully left Mr. Garnfield's mind, and some of them believe that its effects account for the half-sad expression that always interest in the secretary was gers in his face, even when he amiles applicable.

A member of the French chambe A member of the French chamber of deputies, who was portraying to his constituents the iniquities of that body, said that "the corruption is so year, so general and insidious that even I have not been wholly able to escape contamination." BROKEN RAIL

Caused the Wreck of the Frisco Can-non Ball.

Fayetteville, Ark., July 1.—The Frisco's fast south hound Cannon Ball train, in charge of Conductor Haffer and Engineer Stevenson, was wrecked dive miles from here as the result of a washout. A heavy freight had passed over the track after the storm, breaking a section from the rail two feet in length. This was not noticed by the crew and no warning was left. Engineer Stevenson was but a few feet from the trouble when he saw it was too late to stop the train. He opened the throttle wide, with the hope of running over the gap. This saved many lives, as he passed safely over with his engine, bagagas car, smoker and chair car, these cars keeping the track when the heavy Pulimans refused to follow. The dining car and two sleepers turned over. Most of the damage was done in the dining car. The lipuries were confined almost entirely to cuts and pruises. R. Weems, of Van Buren, Ark., was more seriously injuried than any one else, but will live.

For Hardening Drill.

Hardening an ordinary drill in sulphuric acid, at are the English Mechanic, makes an edge that will cut tempered steel or facilitate cutting hard rock. The acid should be poured into a fint-bottomed vessel to a depth of about one-eighth of an inch. The point of the drill is heated to a duli therry red, and dipped in the acid to that depth. This makes the point extremely hard, while the remainder remains soft. If the point breaks, reharden, but with a little less acid in the vessel.

CANNON CRACKERS

Let him go. It is a part of a boy's education.

It does seem to the small boy that he should have one day to spend un-hampered by rules and regulations.

What does your boy care if you did only have one bunch of firecrackers for the entire Fourth when you were a boy? He knows that the world was slow and sleepy then anyway.

One reason why this country has a population of nearly 80,000,000 is that so many glorious Fourths have been rainy.

A Chinaman invented the firecrack er, but it was some other fool who made the first toy pistel.

If there had been cannon crackers when George Washington was a little boy, this country might never have had a father.

As usual, we start in the day after determined to have a same Fourth next time, and henceforth to use no other.

BIGHS FOR PAST SHOWS.

Merk Twain Regrest Vaniahed Joys of Other Days.

Where now is Billy Rice? He was a Joy to, me, and so were the other stars of the nigger-abow-Billy Birch, David Wambold, Backus and a delighthid doesn of their brethren who made life a pleasure to me 40 years ago and later. Birch, Wambold and Backus are gone years ago; and with them departed to return no more forever, I suppose, the real nigger-ahow—the senute nigger-ahow—the show which to me had no peer and whose peer has not yet arrived, in my experience. We have the grand opera; and I have witnessed, and greatly enjoyed, the fart act of everything which. Wagner created, but the effect on me has always been so powerful that one act was quite sufficient; whenever I have witnessed two acts I have gone away physically exhausted, and whenever I have ventured an entire opera the result has been the next thing to suicide. But if I could have the nigger-abow back again, in its pristline purity and perfection. I should have but little further use for opera. It access to me that to the elevated mind and the sensitive spirit the hand-organ and the nigger-abow are a standard and a summit to whose rarended allitude the other forms of musical art may not hope to reach.—Mark Twain, in North American Review.

of the most powerful explosives and the results of these experiments have become the standards of the best informed experts on this subject. It was learned from these studies that the average potential energy of gunpowder is 480 foot tons to the pound. You will observe, therefore, that there would be a good deal of "business" concentrated in a signant firercracker. There are to be exact—13,045,537 boys between the ages of four and 20 years in the United States who are going to celebrate the Glorious Fourth. And this takes no account whatever of the old boys, between the ages of 100 m and 20 years in the United States who are going to celebrate the Glorious Fourth. And this takes no account whatever of the old boys, between the ages of 20 and 80, with a few werging on the edge of 30 for good measure. These boys are going to celebrate in the good old-sabloned way with firecracker and toy pistols and cannons and a good many boys are going to celebrate in the good old-sabloned way with firecracker and their faces filled with gunpowder and their caes filled with gunpowder with the fire of such that doesn't make any difference; they are going to celebrate nevertheless. Now, there is no use dragging out satististic to show how many boys were killed and maimed and sent to the hospital last Fourth of July. You will waste your link in writing down the figures and your breath in talking about them, but you will not stop the small boy, nor the old boy from celebrating. BATHING IN THE DEAD SEA.

By No Means a Pleasure, According to One Traveler.

Too means a Piesaure, According to One Traveler.

"No sooner has one plunged into the water than one is whipped off one's feet and goes bobbigs beiplessly about like a wretched cork." says Rev. Haskett Smith of bathing in the Dead sea. "In the effort to regain one's footing and to get back to shore, one's feet and shins are barked by the jagged stones and pebbigs, and when at length one does emerge from its treacherous basom, with the lower-limbs bleeding and torn, one becomes aware of a horrible tingling and burbing sensation-in-greeners, and the same of the skin, from the brine and bitumen which have penetrated everywhere.

"Unless great care is taken the bather in the Dead sea is liable to an eruption, which breaks out all over his body, and which is commonly known as the 'Dead sea rash.' The best antidote to this is to hurry across as quickly as possible to the river Jordan and take a second plunge therein. The soft and muddy waters of that sacred but dirty stream will effectually remove the sait that has incrusted the body."

New Automatic Riffe.

The self-loading or automatic musket is now being seriously considered as the infantry arm of the future. The sequipment of the great armies of the world with an improved riffe is hardly completed when the mechanics begin work on a new weapon. At the recent examinations, of the German War. Academy, the automatic rifle was one of the themes for discussion. The piece now on trial has a magazine bolding ten cartridges; the recoil is utilized to load and cock. Consequently the soldier can remain quietly in the soldier can remain quietly in the target, and fire his ten shots—New York Sun.

Many Ladies Have Poer Complexions from Coffee.

"Coffee caused dark golored blotches on my face and body. I had-been drinking it for a long while and these blotches grandually appeared," ultil maily they became permanent and were about as dark as coffee itself. "I formerly bad as fine a complexion as one could ask for.

"When I became convinced that coffee was the cause of my trouble, I changed and took to using Postum Food Coffee, and as I made it well, according to directions, I liked, it very much, and have since that time used it in place of coffee.

"I am thankful to say Faint set nervous any more, as I was when I was drinking coffee, and my complexion is now as fair and good; as it was years ago. It is very plain that, coffee caused the trouble."

Most bad complexions are caused the trouble. The stomach and coffee is the greatest abstrate of digestion known. Almost any worman can have a fair complexion it she will leave off coffee and use Pestams Food Coffee and nutrillous, healthy dood in proper quantity. Postum, the astural grains from the field that Nature uses to rebuild the nervous system and when that is in good condition, one can depend upon a good complexion as well as a good bealthy body. If you economize foolishly on the necessities of life, saving everything for the possible "trainy day," you will never know the joy of a few well-chosen luxuries, for by the time the rainy day does come, you will have lost all care for even—the sunshine. It is well to practice well-chosen economies in matters where economy is a necessity, or in order to lay by money enough to pay for what will make us better and happier for having it, or to keep us from dependence upon others, but this is not the foolish frugality which denies one the comforts that can well be afforded at the moment without wronging others. Brown county, Indiana, promises a good crop of peaches this summer, notwithstanding the unpromising spring. The Waltman orchard that is claimed to be the largest in the world is loaded with fine fruit. The secret of Brown county's good fortune in the promised peach crop is that the orchards were planted on high hills, where the blooming period was delayed and the frost kept away after it did come.

The consumers use a very peculiar brand of whisky at Alexandria, Indiana. People who drink to excess there are liable to see white snakes with pink eyes.

Some people think that life long frugality, life-long self-denial and constant doing without is the only way by which one can arrive at a competency. Perhaps it is; but through this, one robs life of all its attractions, and entails senseless privations not only on one's self, but upon others, by so doing. It is a poor way to "make money." It is making neither a living nor a life to pauperize yourself by such niggardiness. If you economize foolishly on the necessities of life, saving everything for the possible "rainy day," you will never know the joy of a few well-chosen luxivires, for by the time

TESTING OF KING SAUL

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

ht, 1907, by the Author, W. S. Edson Scripture Authority: —1 Samuel, napter 13.

"What Hast thou done?"—
This is the voice of God speaking through his servant the prophet Samuel, to Saul. It is the question that pierces like a two-dged sword to the innermost conscience and opens to the light the sin that is hid. And the manner of Saul's reply indicates his sense of guilt which he was reluctant to admit. He immediately begins to make excuses.

Excuses flow out of a guiltyheart.

Saul was convicted out of his own mouth. The prophet need of the commerce in detail soul's wrong doing. Saul knew as soon as the prophet had asked: "What hast thou done?"
And he sought to evade the real issue and to confuse the question by telling what the other fellow had done. What a common human failing.
Saul feared the loss of men more than forfeiture of the favor of God. He sacrificed future good upon the altar of seeming present need. Did you ever do that?

"Thou hast done foolishly."
"Thou hast done foolishly."
"And and save the favor of the favor of God. He sacrificed future good upon the altar of seeming present need. Did you ever do that?

"Thou hast done foolishly."
"Saul endeavored to show that he had done wisely, but the prophet plainly characterized his act as foolish, no matter how politic or whe It may appear at the moment. Sin ever is folly. If as we go blindty into the ways of sin we could realize the real Import of our acts and appreaciate their ultimate consequences would not we, too, designate such acts as foolish? How foolish, indeed, is the real Import of our acts and appreaciate their ultimate consequences would not we, too, designate such acts as foolish? How foolish, indeed, is the real Import of our acts and appreaciate their ultimate consequences would not we, too, designate such acts as foolish? How foolish, indeed, is the real import of our acts and appreached the death, but "in the keeping of God's law there is great reward."

Saul had not the moral courage to stand alone with God. He had not the faith to see God's power, nor the patience to wait the coming of the prophet. Thereby he proved unworthy the place he had been called to fill and unable to rise to the larger destiny which would certainly have been his had he claimed it by obedience and faith.

tariger destiny which would certainly have been his had he claimed it by obedience and faith.

"The Lord hath sought him a man after his own heart."—To and fro through the earth God's eyes are searching for the men who shall do his will. It is not favoritism which God shows, but recognition of loyalty to his cause and obedience to his commands. To you and to me comes the call to go forth and utterly destroy the Amalekites of sin, and just to the extent to which we gird on the armor of God and stand with him and perform all that he has commanded, just so far and no further will he entrust the further work of his kingdom to our hands. And where willful fallure comes, he takes from us and gives to more faithful hands.

THE STORY.

K ING SAUL paused in his feverish pacing hack and forth hefore his tended on as the messenger came up. "Speak" he commanded gruffly as the man hesitated in a confused, embarrassed manner. "More desertions?" he asked, savagely, without giving the man a chance to obey his first command.

first command. a chance to oosy his first command.

"Yes," admitted the man, and even in the darkness of midnight King Saul could see as he pressed close to him and pecred in his face that fear and discouragement were written there. "And those who remain," the man went on, "are fearful and afraid," With a guttural sound, half a groan, half an angry exclamation, the king turned sharply and paced up and down a few times with quick, nervous stride, and then, stopping shruptly hefore the man again, he demanded, half appealingly;
"And what is to he done? If the

"Yes," broke in the king, hitterly,
"did he not say that he would come ere this? It is now the seventh day, and still he hath not appeared."
"It might be," continued the man, not noting, the interruption, "that offerings which he would make would reassure the people and lead to victory."

'y."
'Co," ordered Saul, with sudden de-raination, "tell the people to as-mble before me to-morrow. Bring rat and peace offerings."
The man disappeared in the darkness and Saul resumed his pacing back and forth.

"Why should I not?" he muttered to himsed. "Am I not king? and to we may should the people look for encouragement but to the king?"

For nearly seven days now he had held his little army together on the promise and expectation that upon the coming of Samuel the fortupe of the army of Israel would change. But each day—as he had waited he had seen his army dwindle, and he knew that even those who remained were faint of heart, and unfit to enter into conflict with their powerful foe, the Phillistines.

The latter had gathered a strong Philistines.

The latter had gathered a strong army and had come up upon the land and encamped at Michmash, the people fleeing before the advancing host and hiding in the rocks and caves, and the thickets and wheresoever there was afforded shelter. In fact many of the people hecame so panic stricken as to flee across the Jordan to the land of Gad and Gilead. And King Saul had done the best he sould. He had given the signal throughout the land calling the fighting meb to gether and sought by every means to reassure the people.

At the very heginning of the trouble, soon after Jonathan, Saul's sonhad thrown down the pillar of the Philistines which they had crected to indicate their rule over the country word had been sent to Samuel of the critical condition of affairs and he had sent back word that he would come within seven days. Day after day Saul had waited, each day finding the numbers and the courage of his army growing less until at last on the night on which we find him pacing back and forth before his tenthe has grown annry and desperate. Then came the messenger telling of the final desertions, and the sudden resolve to take matters in his own hands. And then began a struggle with his connecience which ended only with the connecience which back. And then began a struggle with his command.

All night long he fought the battle his beart. He felt uneasy and troubled at the thought of assuming the priestity function and offering the sacrifices which it was lawful only for the priest to offer. But on the count God in as a vital factor to success. He remembered not that it was nearly the sacrifices which it was lawful on floor has priest to nier. But on the count God in as a vital factor to success. He remembered not that it was nearly upon human strength and wis assert to wait on God even to the very brink of seeming misfortune than it was to plunge forward tru tirely upon human strength and wisdom. He belitted the thought of, God and exalted his own position before the people, so that it seemed at least to him that his position and authority were at stake, and that the whole welfare of the nation centered around his decisive action.

Thus it came to pass that with the coming together of the remant of his army on the following morning. Saul was prepared with proud and willful spirit to make the offerings which the people brought before him. With punctiflous care Saul performed all the sacred functions while the people looked on with admiring and approving giances. So intent was Saul upon the task in hand and so absorbed were the people watching their king that they did not observe the quiet approach of a figure wrapped close in his dark role and moving slowly, but watching intently the scene before him. Saul had just laid the bleeding sacrifice upon the smoking altar and had turned toward the people as though he would bless them, when lo before him he sees a figure that causes him to start and tremble. At the same moment the people as though he would bless them, when lo before him he sees a figure that causes him to start and tremble. At the same moment the people as though he would bless them, when lo before him he sees a figure that causes him to start and tremble. At the same moment the people such sight of the new comer, and observing the familiar form, they shout:

"Samuel' are the faltering words which drop from Saul's paining lips. and he struggles to gain control of himself. He steps forward and sautes the prophet deferentially, but Samuel, with an imperious gesture, stops him, and in sterra tones demands:

"What hast thou done?"

"Because that I saw that the peostops him, and in stern tones demande:

"What hast thou done?"

"Because that I saw that the people were scattered from me, and that thou camest not within the days appointed, and that the Phillistines subjected themselves together at Michmash; therefore, said I, the Phillistines will come down upon me at Gligal, and I have not made supplication unto the Lord. I forced myself, therefore, and offered a hurnt offering."

"Thou hast done foolishly," Samuel replied. "Thou hast do kept the commandment of the Lord thy God, which he commanded thee: for now would the Lord have established thy kingdom shall not continue: the Lord, hath sought him a man after his own heart, and the Lord hath commanded him to 3-a captain over his people, hecause thou hast not kept his people, hecause thou hast not kept hat which the Lord commanded:

And Samuel without further wor arcse and returned to Gibeán, lea-ing Saul to ponder his words, the av ful import of which only the years t follow could unfold.

Two Fourth of July Stories,

By Gen. William R. Shafter.

Wholesome enthusiasm, whether fired by the battery of words or gunpowder, is bound to create courage and sitr our brave men to greater viceds of valor. I feel that we cannot ceichrate too much for the gloriflestion of the greatest day in the history of our union. When I was a little boy I looked forward to the Fourth of July with all of the pleasurable as tilepation of childhood, and saved my pennies from Christmas time to Independence day to huy the wherewithin for the fitting and noisy ceichration. I think, however, my most exciting Fourth was in the Cuban campaign of 1988. The morning after the Santiago hattle an orderly hrought me a paper containing original doggerel—in seven heroic verses. They were entitled: "Phat Gen. Shafter Wint At ther," and the first stansa hegas; "Now, when Gen. Toral, a Spanish days, and the standard of the shafter at Santiago, Set Gen Toral to Gen. Shafter, "And Gen. Shafter at Santiago, Set Gen Toral to Gen. Shafter, and Gen. Shafter at Gen. Shafter," And Gen. Shafter at Santiago, Set Gen Toral to Gen. Shafter, "And Gen. Shafter at Santiago, Set Gen Toral to Gen. Shafter, "And Gen. Shafter at Santiago, Set Gen Toral to Gen. Shafter," I set—shaft "I'm after," set Gen. Shafter "I'm after," set Gen. Shafter."

It shaft hat the Fourth of 1898 was the only celebration I ever took part, in that inspired the muse, for which I am gusteful.

By Gen. Charles A. Woodruff.
What promised to he the drearlest Fourth of July in my life ended in heling one of the most amusing. I was sent to the Indian country on Milk river, Montana, to deliver some annutites, and had to wait several weeks for the Indians to come in from their

"as expedition."
The Assilhioine Indians came straggiing into camp one by one, and hung around my camp with undisguised curlosity. I 'had a hesdache, and took a quart hottle of ammonia from my melicine chest and sniffed at the cork. I knew how to mystify the Indians, and I did a couple of side steps, rolled my eyes, jerked my body, and pointed my finger to the cardinal points before taking the dose.

The Indians were delighted at my pantomime of war medicine. I told them that whoever took that medicine could never be killed in war, but that I was afraid they would join forces with the Sioux and fight against me if I gave them that dose. I knew them to be the greatest foes of the Sioux, but of course I had to be coaxed into giving way my wonderful charm.

After much persuasion I finally

Sloux, but of course I had to be coased into string away my wonderful charm.

After much persuasion I finally agreed to do it, but hargained that it must not be taken in the presence of others. It was so powerful that be novice could take the white man's medicine with others watching him. Of course that made a hit with the landians at once, and there were many volunteers to be number one.

I selected the chief. He walked into my tent, and I began my mysterlous passes at him. In the meantime I had two quart bottles before me, One contained water and the other ammonia. I made him understand that at the end of my speech, when I clapped my hands, he was to take a deep breath and inhale the war medicine as soon as I removed the glass stopper. I don't believe a motion was lost on the Indian; they are good intactors. I gave three war whoops and made my extemporaneous speech.

Then I clapped my hands, pulled the cork, and thrust the ammonia under the chief's nose. He took a long, deep breath as directed, and fell backward as one dead.

When he revived there were tears rolling down his cheeks, and I expected to have no more fun that Pourth, but here I had not reckoned on the Indian's sense of humor.

That chief went out and was as dumb as an oyster about his treatment, and so close did they keep the secret that every Indian in the camp came into that tent singly and took his war medicine without a murmun.

END OF OLD TAVERN.

Clark Hotel, at Ashford, Conn., Now a Thing of the Peat.

Once she of the most noted taverns in Connecticut, but now with the last guest long since departed, its shut ters closed, its hospitable area but ashes and its title passed from the family in whose name it stood for long past the span of human life, the old Clark hotel, at Ashford, in one of the most beautiful sections of the most beautiful sections of the sate, is falling to pieces. Its day is over its doors have been closed, or ever. Partly dismantied, it stands overlooking a prospect of rare loved; need, as a mute reminder of the old stands overlooking a prospect of rare loved; need, as most reminder of the old connecticut Fath" and the change of the divers along, "the Old Connecticut Fath" and the change from Dyer Clark, who went to Ashford from Hartford in 1894 and leased the lim from Dr. Nehemlah Howe, then "proprieto." Elight years later Clark purchased it, and the property stood in the name of a Clark unit 1897, when it was sold to Henry F. Hall, a wealthy lawer living in Wailingford, whose intention of huilding a commodious home for summer boarders was prevented by liness. Since then it has been falling to pleces. Now the root is sagged in and the building is becoming a prey to the elements.

The old tavern stands on the Boston and Hartford turnght, the direct route hetween the two cities and a road formerly much traveled. It was a noted stopping place for stages. Washington spent a Sundry there during one of his tours of New England and attended the village church, sitting in the deacon's pew.

Recorder's Popularity Contest!

Jamestown Exposition.

They are to be selected by the readers of the Recorder in a Popularity Voting Contest. The two receiving the highest number of votes cast will be taken from Burlington to Jamestown and their transportation, hotel bill and admission to the Exposition paid by the Recorder. The trip will consume at least ten days. The editor and his wife will be the chaperones. The date for the trip will be announced later.

Each dollar paid on subscription, either as a renewal, back subscription or new subscribtion, will entitle the party paying the same to 1,000 votes, and for fractions of a dollar will entitle to votes in the same proportion. The result will be published from week to the same proportion. Tweek during the contest.

Each ballot cut from the Recorder will be good for 10 votes, provided it is signed by the party voting and received at this office not later than 10 days after its date.

Each dollar paid on job work will be entitled to 500 votes.

A-ballot box has been secured and locked, and the keys will remain in the possession of County Clerk B. W. Adams, Atorney Sidney Gaines and Dudley Rouse, who will count and certify the result of each week's ballot, between the hours of 1 and 3 p. m., on Tuesday of each week. Ballots received after 1 p. m. on Tuesday will not enter into the count until the next week. The contest will be conducted in a manner perfectly fair to all parties concerned.

All money paid on subscription since and including April 1, 1907, will be permitted to participate in the contest.

No commission will be allowed to agents on any money for subscriptions or job work, that participates in the contest.

as a permanent grounds and buildings for the Kentucky state fair, for a sum of $2.75,000.

The price originally asked by the Louiswille owner of Douglas Park was $309,000, but after a conference between Mr. Cella and the state fair committee the former agreed to split the difference or sell the park for $2.75,000.

The property is 129 acres, put in at $800 an acre, and buildings and improvements put in at $203,075.

The slate fair committee now has on hand 4156,000; and in order that it might take possession of Douglas Park at once, as is lis desire, it is necessary that $110,000 be borrowed. The members who voted for Douglas Park are fluthert Vreeland, challman; Guthrie W. Wilson, Bardstown; W. R. Moorman, from Glenden; G. N. McGrew, Bayon, and Lewrence Jones, Louisville,

Save the Babies.

NFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Cactoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. "The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. J. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb, says: "Your Castoria is an ideadient for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medigine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile aliments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the verylnest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

zied by Commander.

A drummer sometimes gets his orders twisted, but never quite so badly as the "rookey" I saw down at Chickmanaga when the troops were being mustered in for the Spanish-American war, says a traveling man in the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

This boy, fresh from St. Louis, was on the way to the front and proud of it. He had his first assignment to guard duty and he had been carefally instructed as to calling "Who goes there?"

The officer in command of the division was a dignified martinet. The "rookey" had never seen him. About, midnight the general came home from a reception in town. He was all fixed up in his dress togs and he was the swellest him the new guard ever sew. As the general passed his post the boy gazed at him open-mouthed. Just in time he remembered he was expected to say something. So he gasped: "There goes who?" gasped: "There goes who?"

THE STORY.

THE STORY.

SAUL, the king of Israel, returned to his home at Gibeah not like a conquering hero, but as one who has met some start rebuff and disappointment: In sullen silence he received the praise of the people as they shouted the triumphs of the hattle with the Amalekites and retold to one another now the enemy had been utterly overthrown. King Agag taken and the hest of the spoil carried back for offering to their God. In fact, such was the depression of the king, that the people asked one another: "What alleth Saul? Hath he not won a great victory for the Lord?" And while the bring sought the seculation of his own house, denying himself to even his closest friends, the people discussed the situation. "They do say," said one of a group, "that Samuel, the prophet, hath re bluked him." "Yee," responded another, with an att of sweet he content hemothers.

were to be utterly destroyed, togethor with their goods."

"But did not the paonle talk of the poli to make offering to the Lord, and surely the bringing of Agag back was hut the rightful trophy of a conneror," exclaimed another of the group.

"But Samnel did not think so, evidently, for in great anger he siew Agas, and would take no part in-the offerings which King Saul had caused to be made to the Lord."

"Various exclamations followed this piece of news, and the speaker went on to say:

"Well, well, to what a pass we have come," exclaimed one of the group who up to this time had remained silent and who was known as a close friend of the king. "Our king despairs because of the rebuke of the prophet."

"Thou wouldst not speak lightly of the word of the prophet Sammel," came a reproving voice from the far side of the group, followed by several approving nods and exciamations.

A young man, recently married, early in the spring secured a sub-whan place, mainly with the idea of "fresh, home-grown vegetables." Every evening he would hurry through his supper and rush out to his garden, where he displayed more energy than skill. But, alas! When many little green things began to hreak the ground in his neighbors' gardens, his own remained as bare as the Sahara. "It certainly has got me beat," he confided to a friend at his office one day. "I can't understand why not a blessed thing has come up. I planted peas and corn and tomatoes."

"Perhaps the seed were refective," the friend suggested.
"I hardly think it was that," the gardener replied, "for I got the very best—paid if cents a can for them."

The Medical Times Explains Why Doctors Oppose Patent Medicines.

The Medical Times for April in a moment of frankness explains the whole opposition of physicians to "patent" medicines which are taken without a prescription, in the following words:

ent" medicines which are axen without a prescription, in the following words:

"We will hardly repeat nere the specific statement to the effect that in one year $82,000,000 has here expended on patent medicines in the United States. Enough to give every practitioner in the country a yearly income of $2,000. In the face of such facts as these, all talk of love of humanity, altruism, self-abnegation and the like becomes chean and nauseating. It appears to us that such buncombe should give place to homely common sense."

Reliable authority states that the gross amount of the "patent" medicine biness is about $40,000,000 hut taking the Medical Times' figures as correct they represent an outlay of considerably less than $11 per capita for home medication. The cost of doctors' fees exclusive of medicines except such as are dispensed for the same period, 000. This is reached by allowing an average income of $2,000 to each of the 115,000 physicians in the United States. Even allowing the United States. Even allowing

BELIEVES IN SUN SPOTS.

Word About a Favorite Theory as to Short Crops.

In the bottom of its heart a good part of the financial community cherishes the suspicion that financial crises, especially when caused or accompanied by bad harvests, have something to do with "sun spots," says the New York Post. The argument is that these years of intense solar activity come somewhere near once-in ten years and so do panies; that "sun spots" very probably cause abnormal seasons on our own planet and that shormal seasons cause cropfailures and trouble in the stock exchange. Nobody would need to take this seriously but for the fact that, 32 years ago, a very eminent English economist frankly asserted his belief in the theory. Prof. Javons was confident of its applicability that in 1876 he predicted a European panie in 1879, because the "sun-spot" activity would then be again approaching a maximum.

But how about the facts? The year 1837 was one of sun-spot maximum and also a year of commercial panie. Sun spots were very active in 1871, 1872 and 1873 and we know what happened in the markets. In 1832 a Vicelent maximum was reached; Europehad a stock-exchange panie in 1884. There was a famous "sun-spot year" in 1893 and, what is more to the point, we are still in a period of solar activity and disordered markets.

So far, this is all very well; but let us be thorough. The panic of 1857 was one of the worst or he list, and 1857 came in a period of soun-spot minimum. In 1868, when one of the worst of England's financial crises occurred, solar activity was at the lowest feel in a decade. A period of sun-spot minimum began in 1889 and continued into the "Baring year," 1890. Evidently sun spots do not always have the same effect.

Prof. Jevons thought that the effect was brought about through crop failures. The astronomers tell us, howest fevel in a decade. A period of sun-spot minimum began in 1889 and continued into the "Baring year," 1890. Evidently sun spots do not always have the same effect.

WARNING IN SHOE SOLE.

Lookout Man Wears Copper Plate to Start Electric Buzzer.

Some of the dives about town that are under the han of the police have ingenious contrivances for warning occupants and patrons of the approach of a "huil" or any other suspected person. By the way, these places are never referred to in the vernacular as "dives" or "joints," for the vocabulary of the inventors of the occabulary of the inventors of siang changes as quickly as a word comes into general use, so a suspected place is now always referred to as a "dump."

Warning of the approach of a policeman or detective is given by means of an electric buzzer. Formerly the pushbutton connected with the buzzer was concealed under the edge of the har in front of or behind a water pipe. This device, however, was discovered by the police, who thereafter or entering a suspected place kept a close watch on the barkeeper and gave him no chance to press the button. Then came the prong device. This consisted of two small metal prongs projecting from the edge of the wall. When a man suspected to he a limb of the law entered the door the barkeeper carelessly placed a coin across the two prongs, thus making a circuit and causing the buzzer to sound in the rear.

causing the buzzer to sound in the rear.

This device was discovered, too, a now a lookout is stationed outside the door of a dive. He apparently is lounger, but he scans closely by quick-giance the face of every person who enters. If a e of every person who enters. If a e of every person who enters, if a e one of a callar loo "all right" the lookout presses hi foot, which has a copper plate salle to the sole, to another small plate as fixed to the surface of a cellar door way outside. This makes the circul and causes the buzzer to get busy, so that by the time the "bull" throw open the door the occupants who are wanted by the police have had thut to make their escape and those whereman are scated at tables harmless ly drinking beer or engaged in a friendly game of placehe or whist Everything is apparently "on the level" and the "bull" is forced to withdraw without having been able to obtain any evidence.

Writes About a Haystack and a Fleid Not Existing.

Mries About a Haystack and a Fasis Not Existing.

George Moore, the doyen of the Irish realistic novellats, has a rather curious manner of speaking, every now and then his words burst out of him in violent exclamation, says the Saturday Evening Post.

He set out with young artists, Will Rothenstein and Waiter Sickert, to see the pictures in the Dulwich gallery. They rode on a street car through dismail mile after mile of London suburb, growing very gloomy.

Then Rothenstein said: "Were going through Peckham now."

"Peckham? cried George Moore. "We must get down and look at Peckham! they waiked along dismail streets and the air of George Moore grew more and more harassed. At last he cried, "Id on to see that haystack and that field! There was a haystack and a field in my story! Where are they?"

They waiked along more dismail streets, and at last they came upon a policeman.

George Moore stopped and said to him: "Could you kindly tell me where, I can find a haystack and a field!"

neld?"
"There aren't no 'aystack nor no fleid in Peckham," said the policeman.
"But there must be a haystack and a field in Peckham!" cried George Moore.
The policeman shook his head stolidly.

George Moore tottered on a few stops with a broken air, then threw up his arms to the skies and cried in a tone of anguish: "That is the fate of the realist! He writes a story about a haystack and a field in Peckham and there aren't any there!"

"UNCLE BILLY" HAD PROOF.

His Reason for Knowing Jews Are "the Chosen People."

"the Chosen People."

In Macon, Ga., lives an old darkey called "Uncle Billy." who is janitor at Mercer university. Whenever he is "bryke," as is generally the case, he creeps up to a student and says:
"Honey, is yo' got a nickel?"

If the student reples negatively, Uncle Billy will saiff disdainfully and mutter:
"Well, if you ain't got a nickel yo' sholy is a pore crittur."

Money obtained in this way goes into a jackpot, for, atthough Uncle Billy is a preacher, he is very fond of poker, and numerous little games are played on the campus back of the main building.

There was a Jew in the college named's Steinau who had often "skinned" the old darkey, and Uncle Billy was justing after revegsc. One day, his chance came, for in the first deal he held four kings, and he determined to fleece the Jew in a way he would never forget. A grim smille wreathed his face as the Jew kept raising him. Finally he remarked:
"Look a' here, honey, you has raised me enough; 'is ge gwine to call yo'."

The Jew laid down four aces, and Uncle Billy's face changed to a study worthy of a Kemble's pencil. Never again did he play Steinau. When one of the students asked him why, he replied:

"Honey, de mo' I thinks about it, de mo' I realizes de fack dat de Jews am de chosen people ob de Lord."—Lippincott's.

At Cape Breton there are immense colleries, being worked under the ocean. These submärine mines cover a thousand acres, and are being increased steadily. The nines are entered at the shore, said the operators follow the vein beneath the water for more than a mile. It might be expected that the weight of the water would force its way into the mine. The bed of the ocean is as tight as a cement cistern. A sort of fireclay lines the submarine roof of the mine, and the sediment above is held in place and packed down by the water, pressure until there is not a crevice, nor a drop of water from overhead.

Our life is but a scap bubble hanging, from a reed; it is formed, expands to its full size, clothes itself with the lovellest colors of the prism, and even escapes at moments from the law of gravitation; but soon the black speck appears in it and the globe of emerald and gold vanishes into space, leaving behind it nothing but a simple drop of turNid water. All the poets have made this comparison, it is so striking and so true. One Point of View,

It was the desire of a teacher in a negro school to impress upon the minds of the youths the benefits derived at Tuskegee and other seats of learning for the ambitious negro. One day, in closing a brilliant discourse on this subject, in which Booker T. Washington was set forth as a criterion, she said to one little boy who had evidently heard not a word of her talk:

"Now Rastus, give the name of the greatest negro?"

The answer was surprisingly forth-coming—"Joe Gans!"

The Happlest Man.

The happlest man in the world is the common, every day chap who makes his own board and has the respect of his neighbors. He saves a little money as he dosen't try to get a corner on the local output, and he is a slave to neither ambition nor society. He never expects to wear out the seat of his pants in the senate and when he slides into his clothes in the morning he never wastes any time trying to pick out the right kind of sox, suspenders and neckties that will blend with the general effect. He wears a "biled" shirt when he feels like it, and when his pet corn begins to jump he whips out his pet jack knife and cuts a four inch gash in the side of his boot and nothing is said about it in the papers. He has an appetite like a cyclone and never has to sit up nights to poultice his conscience. He believes in the doctrine of live and let live. When he encounters one of the needy he does not stufter with his pocketsook. The plain plug of a man is happy because he is satisfied and does not spend the best part of his happy because he is satisfied and does not spend the best part of his life in yearning for something about four sizes to big for him.

Passing Of The Walnut.

The distressing news comes that American walnut lumber is being bought for foreign shipmeut. The domestic destruction had almost exterminated the supply, and what little is left, it seems, is to go abroad to be used as a substitute for mahogany in veneers. This sounds like a death knell and soon no doubt we are to see the last of the walnut trees. A sigh will go up from the old settler as he recalls the early American forests where the walnut reigned as a prime favorite. The once magnificent groves have disappeared almost entirely. Here and there a few straggles remain to remind us of the lordly splendor that characterized their prime. There were other fine trees, many of them, which combined to make that great natural wonder, the primeval American forest. All of these had their peculiar merits, were valued for some especial virtue, and were known and loved by every true child of nature. The oak, the elm, the popular, the beech and soores of others had their specital admirers. But the walnut was looked upon with peculiar regard. Not only was it famous for ith tender recollections of childhood. It grew always in the richest soil. Around it the blue grass was most lish and put on its deepest green. There the oxilps and nodding violets reached their finest form. Hardby could be found the wild brier, the sweet musk roses and the eglantine.

Not only was the walnut a prince among woods, but it was a nut bearer, a furnisher of food. The gathering of the nuts afforded one of the chief delights of childhood. There the children gathered in the golden days of jolly autumn to make the woods resonant with their laughter. Under the spreading limbs of the walnut, on the velvety greensward many a love vow was plighted, many a romance begun that lingered through all the years of after life. The walnut, too, was the favorite home of the squirels. There of all places he lover to the seekers after nuts, and the oaks with their aconns attracted the wild pigeons in countless millions, but above and beyond them all in solid, worth a about four sizes to big for him.

Breed Them Right.

A leading horse breeder writes a warning on horse breeding, now that the demand is strong. He says:

The very rapid increase in the value of all good, useful horses will very materially stimulate the breeding business. Hundreds of people will start in an enterprise that promises such great returns, and the tendency will be to breed almost every animal that will reproduce itself, regardless of qualities, soundness and a general desirability. As a consequence, a great many horses of nondescript character will be raised at a loss alike to those who breed them and to the state, while on the other hand those who choose wisely and breed and raise only the best, using stallions and mares that are deeply bred in the best blood lines of the breeds that they intend to raise, and who by care and attention raise serviceable horses, useful for the purpose for which they are intended, sound, kind and beautiful, will not only make a great deal of money for themselves, but will greatly benefit the section of country in which they dire.

A STORY OF THE PERIOD OF THE JUDGES IN ISEALL By the "Highway and Byway" Preacher

Scripturo Authority: - Judges

SERMONETTE.

The Man of the Hour.—It has been said that grave crises create great leaders. Strictly speaking, this is not true.

They do not create.

They reveal.

gone before and the great issues when they arise find him prepared and ready to meet them.

The need of the hour has been the door of opportunity by which the man of the hour could step forth and show what manner of man he was. It is the shallow reader of history, indeed, who estimates the great characters with the measuring rod of chance and favorable opportunity.

That the boy is father of the man was never more true than with those who have stamped their personality and character on the pagss of history.

The discipline, the influences, the struggles, the victories of the cariller years was the rugged, stern pathway which led to the place of great opportunities.

Way back through the years

nities.

Way back through the years there has been the gathering of strength, of skill, of moral courage, of mental vigor for the doing of the great task, the hereole seed.

Othniel, the one man in issued when God graud trust with woing of the great task, the herole deed.

Othniel, the one man in israel whom God could trust with the great task of delivering from the oppression of the Mesopotamian king, had been preparing for that hour all through the long years which had gone before.

We read that "the Spirit of the Lord came upon him" and then he "judged larael and went out to war."

But let us remember that it was the prepared man upon whom the power of God came for the doing of the mighty deed.

There is a good deal of silly

deed.

There is a good deal of silly dreaming on the part of people of what they might and would do if they had the Spirit of God to aid them.

Shame be to such, who have never learned the sacredness of the daily task, and stood the testing of the daily discipline.

God uses tried men. God's spirit comes upon prepared men.

THE STORY.

SIN is a treacherous guide, a mighty conqueron, a relentless task moster. He leads by pleasant paths at first to the ambuscade where the soul is enmeshed and overthrown, and then he turns as the hard task-master and exacts his tribute.

Thus it was with the children of Israel, They did evil in the sight of the Lord and served Baalim, and forsock the Lord God of their fathers, so that the Lord delivered them into the bands of spollers that spoiled them and into the bands of their enemies round about, so that they could not any longer stand before them, and they were in great distress.

Things had gone from bad to

Things had gone from bad to worse until at last the king of Mesopotamis had descended upon the land, bad saudued the cities, and had exacted a large tribute, which was grievous burden for the people to bear. And if the full amount of the treasure was not fortheoming be sent his solders to force payment.

Now when the people of Israel began first to mingle with the people about them, there were those in Israel who raised the voice of warning and protest, that God had said that they should have no dealings with the nations about them, but the cry of bigotry and narrow-inheddness was raised, and the few found themselves standing alone in their loyalty to God. They were branded as cranks and enemils of the true progress of the nation, and the progressive and therail element jointed to the growing prosperity of the nation prove that the free Intercurse with the neighboring nations was a boon which it would be folly to cut

Why should they be so identished as to lose the opportunities lying right at their door of profitable-trade? Why should they not sell to them what they could and buy in return those things which secred devirable? Why should they be so stright-liked and exclusive? "Flat-not Moses and Joshus been altogether too strict? The nations about were disposed to be friendly, and why should they be any the less why should they be any the less than the secretary and they should they be any the less than the secretary than the secretary and the secretary than the secretar

Thus the people reasoned, and would not listen to the certain few who strove to stem the popular wifecopen policy. And not only did the inderes among the Ilbernia speak disparsgingly of these, but in various ways they cansed persecutions to be made upon them.

Now among those who had remained true to the precepts and teachings of Moses and Joshua and opposed the Dopular movement was, Othniel, who in the days of Joshua had so hravely fought ngainst the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kirsthese the control of the control of Israel and to dwell in a portion of his inheritance quite apart from them.

When this had been accomplished, the false leaders congratulated theuselves that now there was no hindrance to their modernizing the nation of Israel and making it like the great nations about them. In order to do this it was deemed necessary to introduce some of the social customs of the other autions, and this led to internarriages, and it was no? long before the strange gods of tho other nathons had fround their way into the cities of the Israelites.

"And why should they not?" asked the liberals. "Do not these, our neighbors, sojourn among us to buy and sell, and why should we refuse to the them have their gods to worship and serve, even as we worship and serve, even as we worship and serve our God?"

Then as they became familiar with the more festive and elaborate service of the heathen worship of their God was too narrow and severe and natural step to share with heart they ceased further protest, realizing that they must let the evil run its course.

And the evil was not long in bringing its penalty, for, weakened by their sinful induspences, they were unable to withstand the demands of the king of Mesopotamia, who, learning of the richness of the country, descended upon it and placed it under thints. Then was it that the buydens of oppresselon rested heavily upon the land. The king demanded more and more and as the tribute money was increased, the teskmatters multiplied to collect the sameters of the powerful king, and they serve this powerful king, and they serve this powerful king, and they serve this powerful king, and they were no longer kindly disposed to wards them, but sought by many ways to trouble them and rob them of their sustenance.

In these sore straits the people began to call upon the name of their God, and repented of their folly in going after the gods of the people about them and in following their customs.

One day a group of men had gath-

God uses tried men. God's spirit comes upon prepared men.

Oh, that boys and girls, young men and young women, would awaken to the truth that the future destiny; that the man of the hour of to-morrow is in the making to-day.

In these sore straits the people behout them and in following their sustains.

THE STORY.

In the store in the prophe was the present tiving is shaping the future destiny; that the man of the hour of to-morrow is in the making to-day.

THE STORY.

In the store in group of men had gathered and were been and in following their many condition.

"Ah, if we had only listened to Othniel and the few who counseled with him," exclaimed one. "Where hou is semmeshed and overthrown, and then he turns as the hard task aster and exacts his tribute.

Thus it was with the children of race. They did well in the sight of race, that the Lord delivered them into the hands of their semies round about so that they and not any longer stand before them and they were in great disease.

Things had gone from bad to orse until at last the king of Messo bramis had descended upon the land, ad eshqued the cities, and had exerted a large tribute, which was rievous burden for the people to ear. And if the full amount of the reasure was not fortheoming he sent its soldiers to force purpose.

As on the vestern pairies in pioneer days, the trapper's camp fire, kindled to prepare his frugal meal or to warm him from the bitting wind, fanned into renewed vigor, spread, first on the timp blade of grass to heighboring bidses, and thence to the tangled masses all around until the broad plains were one vast each of seathing flame destroying all before it, so the mail order business, started in the eastern cities on a small scale, fained by the breeze of judicious advertising, has spread until it now covers the length and breadth of our sind and threatens disaster to the smaller dealers everywhere. The note of warning has heen sounded, the light is visible in the sky, and yet, apparently oblivious to it all, the onea whose safety is being endangered, heed not the starm nor the signal of disaster. What will be the result along this line? With the growth of the catalogue house comes the death of the rural mertantile trade. Let them once destroy the country merchant and the markets of the world will be in the hands of a few wealthy capitalists. Their branch houses will appear in all the country towns and the farmer will no longer be independent. His friend, the country dealer, who through competition was forced to pay the value of the butter, eggs, etc., will-be a thing of t-2 past, and in his place will appear the fat, glosting face of the capitalist, in whose hemmbed conscience there is no thought of pity, whose breast contains instead of a heart a great lump of cold stony gold, whose one ambitton is to buttle up a greater fortune than the world has ever seen, and who cares marght for, the tears or thais, woes or weeping of his victimes so long as he can squeese a little more of the covered gilltering treasure from him.

The Endless Chaln—It Keeps the where our laws are made, and unless a check is administered the passage of the parcels post bill will lark one of ils greatest triumphs.

Fint let us lock at a few of the simple reasons why the farmer should patronize the home dealer. In the first place their interests are centered in each other. Every season of plenty on the farm means a prosperous year to the country merchant. So in the prosperity of the farmer does the country merchant expect to gain. The farmer finds, therefore, in the country dealer, a stannch and loyal friend and a defender of his rights. They pay taxes together, live side by side, their children play and go to school together. When the crops are poor or misfortune comes, to whom does the farmer look? Not to the mail order magnate, but to his neighbor, the country merchant. How often does the mail order concerntake any interest in the political questions or logal measures beneficial to the farmer? Yet with their brighthued catalogue of pictured bazgains they reach out an open hand for the farmer? Hand earned dollar. And does the gait value received Not often. The importance of Rats.

With the exception of the famous Piper, nobody has yet found a successful method of getting rid of rats. Ways and means we have all seen advertised in the street cars and newspapers, and yet other methods we have now and then heard pleasantly narrated in the course of polite conversation. But these deal with the rat as an individual—with our personal rat, so to speak; and Invention has yet to find the way of annihilating entire communities. For such a solution of the "rat problem" the department of agriculture has recently stated that the communities. For such a solution of the "rat problem" the department of agriculture has recently stated that it would liberally reward the inventor. The rat, individually, is a nulsance; the rat, collectively, an actual drain upon the legitimate profits of American agriculture. Reduced to probable figures this yearly tax, levied and successfully collected by a countiess army of rodents, reaches a surprising total. Board and lodging for one rat for one year is estimated at 50 cents; and it may be fairly enough assumed that the farms of the country support at least one rat for every cow, horse, plg, or other useful kind of live stock. If this is true, even allowing that one half of the sustenance of the rate is waste matter, the hoard bill counts up in cereals to something over $50,000,000. In France the loss yearly sustained through their existence is officially placed at $40,000,000, which indicates pretty clearly that the figures roughly estimated by our own investigators are far below the actual. Who ever can find a way to destroy the pest in large numbers will therefore gators are far below the actual. Whoever can find a way to destroy the pest in large numbers will therefore not only earn the rewards of the department of agriculture, but will confer a blessing upon practically every living agriculturist. Nor, adds the Boston Budget, aned he be debarred by sentimental reasons. The rats now living on the country without giving anything in return for it are all descended from stowaways who came over without paying any attention whatever to the lumnigration laws.

One of the Yale professors has been making a study of the occupations of Yale graduates by classes. He finds, among other things, that a constantly lessening number are entering the ministry, and a steadily increasing number are studying law. The law now claims more than twice as many as any other profession. Next to it comes finance. Less than one-twelfth of the graduates enter the ministry, in spite of the fact that one of the purposes for which Yale was founded was "to train godly young men for the Christian ministry." But, side by side with these facts, it is also noted that charitable and philanthropic work—the giving both of money and of service—is yearly claiming a larger share of the interest of educated men and women. Perhaps that is where the One of the Yale professors has been Perhaps that is where the young men" of to-day are

A bill was recently presented in the Italian chamber of deputies providing for a $200,000 lottery, with the proceeds of which it is proposed to carry out excavations at the site of the Roman amphitheater at Benayeuto, the town founded, according to tradition, by Diomedes, and possessing Trajan's triamphal arch, which resembles the arch of Titus in Rums, and is the finest and best preserved of all the Roman structures. The amphitheater at Benevento is lying almost intact under a number of old houses occupied by poor people. Benevento is the capital of a province of that name, and is situated 14 miles southeast of Naples. In the Middle Ager it was the seat of a Lombard duchy, and in 1806 areas of a Lombard duchy, and in 1806 it was given by Napoleon I. to Talieyrand, who look-the title of prince of Benevento.

What is Preaching?

What is Preaching?

One of the most notable utterances from the Unitarian brethren comes from the Hev. Dr. Thomas Silicer, says Boston Herald, who deplores the habit of some of his brethren of the cloth in treating of economics, politics and civics in their pulpits, instead of civics in their pulpits, instead of civics in their pulpits, instead, or preaching the gospel. In Dr. Silicer's opinion, this isn't preaching at all. It is lecturing, instead. A great many churchgoers will agree with this view. There may be special occasions when sermons on texts from Holy Writ may appropriately yield to some temporary exigency, but as a rule religion, pure and simple, is the preacher's best theme and most acceptable to his congregation.

PLOT TO KILL WITTE

HATCHED AMONG "PATRIOTS,"

BLACK HUNDRED DREW LEADER ON

Enticed Him To a Wood and Cut His Throat—Dark intrigue in Rue-sia Comes To Light,

St. Pedersburg, July 3.—From revolutionary sources there has been obtained and published full details of a see-sational plot to compass the nurder of Count Witte, the formor Russian prumier who represented his country at the peace negotiations at Portsmouth in 1895. This assassistation as planned by the Moscow branch of the Union of True Russian Feople, the companization to which the emperor sent a communication on June 17 conveying his blessing to the ultra reactionary party and his hopes for the success of its purposes. The execution of the plot was intrusted to the leader of the Moscow branch, a man named Kazantseff, who came from St. Petersburg the latter part of May and secured employment in a factory as a common laborer. He befriended several of his fellow workers, and after announcing himself as an anarchist, he enlisted four men to assist him in carrying out his commission. It was planned to throw a bomb at Count Witte's carriage from the window of a cheap boarding house on Kamenny Island while the count was on his way to attend a meeting of the council of the empire.

The plot, however, was betrayed by the revolutionist bureau, which gave Count Witte warning. The four work lagmen continued to pretend loyalty to Kazantseff in order not to arouse his suspicion. The day for the assassination was fixed, and that morning Kazantseff led his assistants to the woods in the vicinity of St. Petersburg in order to get the bombs from a secret hiding place.

At this point the four men turned on Kazantseff and killed him, carrying out the sentence of death passed on him.

The revolutionists kept the facts in their possession secret in order to aid the police in identifying the murderers of the young man who was found in a wood in sthorbs of this city June 11 with his throat cut and who is supposed to have been executed by fellow-terrorists.

Through the aid of certain telephone numbers this crime has been traced to some well-known leaders of the Black Hundred's organization in Moscow.

In Lake,

Chippewa Lake, Mich., July 3.—
Drowned by a 15-pound pickerel. This in brief expresses the fate of Mrs. George Cutler and Charles T. Chambers, both of lonia, who went fishing. The fish became hooked on a trolling line that was tied to a cleat in the boat, ran under the craft and upset the boat. The cause of the drowalian was not known until searching parties on rafts with grappling books brought the fish to the surface, deed and still stached to the hook. The body of Chambers was found, but that of his companion is still missing.

Mrs. Cutler, wife of a prominent shoe merchant of lonis, came here with her If-year-old son for an outlag and took quarters at the hotel. Chambers who was a Pere Marquette engineer, and neighbor and close friend of the Cutlers, dropped off his regular run to spend the day. The drowned pair started out and when they had not returned at night young Don Cutler be same alarmed and instituted a search Although the lake was fairly well covered with pleasure seekers all day, no one witnesse dihe accident.

The disaster occurred when there were few people down town. Its original is mysterious and no one serous to be able to give a connected town. Its original took place. Police Chief Mergar happened to be in the neighborhor had took place. Police Chief Mergar happened to be in the neighborhor had took place. Police Chief Mergar happened to be in the neighborhor had took place. Police Chief Mergar happened to be in the neighborhor had took place. Police Chief building a mass of ruins, from which a dense cloud of dust was arising.

A part of the Stewart building collapsed soon afterward. A fire slarm was turned in, but when the department arrived there was no sign of a blaze. Within five minutes, however, fames seemed to shoot up-from many parts of the ruins. It was not long before they had become a raging furnace that threatened many buildings in the wholessale district for three or more hours. The department worked on the ruins until after dark before the fire was entirely extinguished.

The Bals building occupied by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender Co. was three stories sligh and located near Meridian and Maryland streets. It was nearly 50 years old. One theory as to the cause of the disaster was that the building was overloaded and that it gave-away under the long strain. As sistant Manager Richt said that his company ceried over $50,000 worth of stooks and that it was practically destroyed. The Stewart building was built a quarter of a century ago and was one of the landmarks of the wholessale district. It is probable that the remainder of the Stewart building will have to be destroyed, as Building in spector Winterroad is not sure that it can be used again. It was not until later in the day that the departnent was sure that it could save any portion of the Stewart or other adjointing buildings.

Geed Joke Played in Old Days on Would-Be Fashlonabla.

Old Camden, in his "Remains," tells a good story of a trick played by a kinght upon a would-be fashlonable shoemaker. Sir. Philip Calthrop-pursed John Drakes, the shoemaker of Norwich in the time of King Henry VIII., of the proud humor which our people have to be of the gentlemen's cut. This knight bought as much fine French taway-cloth as should make him a gown, and sent it to the tailor's to be made. John Drakes, a shoemaker, coming to this tailor's and seening the knight's gown cloth lying there, bid the tailor buy cloth of the same price and pattern and make it of the same fashlon as the knight's gown, and perceiving the like cloth lying there, saked whose it was, "John Drakes," the shoemaker, who will have it made of the self-same fashlon that yours is made of." "Then make mine as full of cuts as the shears will make it!" John Drakes had no time to go for his gown till Christmas day, when he meant to wear it. Perceiving the same to be full of cuts, he began to swear at the tailor. "I have done naught but what you bid me," quoth the tailor. "for as Sir Philip Calthrop's garment is. seven se have I made yours." "Sy my latchet!" quoth John Drakes, "I will never wear gentlemen's fashlons again!"—London T. P.'s Weekly.

The fact that Priam was closeted with the adjuster did not prevent Casesandra from dropping in to say that she had told him just how it would be "She was all I saved." murnured the burnt-out monarch, jerking his thumb at the retiring prophetes.
"Say no more," rejoined the other. "We'll call the loss total, and if I could make it any more than that, old man, I'd do it, under the circumstancea."

"It is," replied the lady.
"Well," continued the countryman, somewhat sheepishly, "I'd like to swap

Accounted For.

Among the many stories told of the Scottish judge, Lord Young, is one associated with an election in Edinburgh, when it was announced that Lord Wolmer had been returned by a majority of three votes. Later a correction made the majority 300, and gave the names of two lords of season who had voted for the successful candidate. Lord Young, hereupon remarked: "That accounts for the two ciphers."

Flow of Artesian Well.

To calculate the rate of flow of an artesian well a simple plan is to lower a partesian well as imple plan is to lower a bottle or aniline fluid to a depth of any 500 feet and then electrically explode a cap to burst the bottle. The time required for the fluid to appear at the surface gives an accurate gauge as to the velocity of flow. It is claimed that this method gives results as accurate as a welr. The diameter of the pipe being known, the rate of flow readily follows.

The Happiest Man.

The Happiest Man.

The happiest man in the world is the common, every day chap who makes his own board and has the respect of his neighbors. He saves a little money as he dosen't try to get a corner on the local output, and he is a slave to neither ambition nor society. He never expects to wear out the seat of his pants in the senate and when he slides into his clothes in the morning he never wastes any time trying to pick out the right kind of sox, suspenders and neckties that will blend with the general effect. He wears a "biled" shirt when he feels like it, and when his pet corn begins to jump he whips out his pet jack knife and cuts a four inch gash in the side of his boot and nothing is said about it in the papers. He has an appetite like a cyclone and never has 'to sit up nights to poultice his conscience, He believes in the doctrine of live and let live. When he encounters one of the needy he does not stutter with his procketbook. The plain plug of a man is happy because he is satisfied and does not spend the best part of his life in yearning for something about four sizes to big for him.

Breed Them Right.

A leading horse breeder writes a warning on horse breeding, now that the demand is strong. He says:

The very rapid increase in the value of all good, useful horses will very materially stimulate the breeding business. Hundreds of people will start in an enterprise that promises such great returns, and the tendency will be to breed almost every animal that will reproduce itself, regardless of qualities, soundness and a general desirability. As a consequence, a great many horses of nondescript character will be raised at a loss alike to those who breed them and to the state, while on the other hand those who choose wisely and breed and raise only the best losing stallions and mares that are deeply bred in the best blood lines of the breeds that they intend to raise, and who by care and attention raise serviceable horses, useful for the purpose for which they are intended, sound, kind and beautiful, will not only make a great deal of money for themselves, but will greatly benefit the section of country in which they live.

There is practically no limit to the demand, at rich figures (which will grow larger each season for the next eight or ten years), for the horse that is bred right, raised right and trained to be good in his class, whether it is as a park horse, a reliable well-mannered, sound, handsome family carriage horse, or a sturdy draft horse.

Passing Of The Walnut.

The distressing news correction that American walnut lumber is being bought for foreign shipment. The domestic destruction had almost domestic destruction had almost exterminated the supply, and what little is left, it seems, is to go abroad to be used as a substitute for mahogany in veneers. This sounds like a death knell and soon no doubt we are to be the last of the walnut trees. A sigh will go up from the old settler as he recalls the early American forests where the walnut reigned as a prime favorite. The once magnificent groves have disappeared almost entirely. Here and there a few stragglers remain to remind us of the locally aplendor that characterized their prime. There were other fine trees, many of them, which combined to make that great natural wonder, the primeval American forest. All of these had their peculiar merits, were valued for some especial virtue, and were known and loved by every true child of nature. The oak, the elim, the popular, the beech, and scores of others had their special admirers. But the walnut was looked upon with peculiar regard. Not only was it famous for its durability, color and strength, but around it clustered many of the tender recollections of childhood. It grew always in the richest soil. Around it the blue grass was most lush and put on its deepest green. There the ornips and nodding violets reached their finest form. Hardby could be found the wild brier, the sweet musk roses and the eglantine.

Not only was the walnut a prince among woods, but it was a nut bearer, a furnisher of food. The gathering of the nuts afforded one of the chief delights of childhood. There the children gathering of the nuts afforded one of the chief delights of the walnut, on the velvety greensward many a romance begun that lingered through all the years of after life. The walnut, too, was the favorite home of the squirres, There of all places he loved to linger, lightning up the limbs with his sprightly springing and lending ineffable grace by his inimitable poses. How sweet the green tuts smelled as the children walnut, on the velvety greensward many a romance begun that lingered through all the years of after life. Th

Every foot of ground kicked and said Apple was rotten. Balloon started to pitch, but went up in the air.

When Spider caught a fly the crowd cheered. Old Ice kept cooling the game until Coal burned him with a pitched ball. You should have heard of Ice Cream. Cabbage had a good head and kept quiet. Organ refused to play and Bread loafed around and put him out. SERMONETTE.

The Man of the Hour—it has been said that grave crises create great leaders. Strictly speaking, this is not true.

That is, the leader has been in the process of making during all the years which have gone before and the great issues when they arise find him prepared and ready to meet them.

sues when they arise find him prepared and ready to meet them. The need of the hour has been the door of opportunity by which the man of the hour could step forth and show what manner of man he was. It is the shallow reader of history, indeed, who estimates the great characters with the measuring nod of chance and favorable opportunity. That the boy is father of the man was never more true than with those who have stamped their personality and character on the pages of history. The discipline, the influences, the struggles, the victories of the carlier years was the rugged, stern pathway which led to the place of great opportunities.

Othniel, the one man in is courage, of mental vigor for the doing of the great task, the heroic deed.

Othnici, the one man in Israel whom God could trust with the great task of delivering from the oppression of the Mesoptamian king, had been preparing for that hour all through the long years which had gone before.

We read that "the Spirit of the Lord came upon him" and then he "judged Israel and went out to war."

But lot us remember that it was the prepared man upon whom the power of God came for the doing of the mighty deed.

There is a good deal of silly dreaming on the part of people of what they might and would do if they had the Spirit of God to aid them.

Shame be to such, who have never learned the sacredness of the daily task, and stood the testing of the daily discipline.

God uses tried men. God's spirit comes upon prepared men.

Oh that have and girls, young men.

Oh, that boys and girls, young men and young women, would awaken to the truth that the present living is shaping the future destiny; that the man of the hour of to-morrow is in the making today.

THE STORY.

Sin is a treacherous guide, a mighty conqueror, a relentiess task master. He leads by pleasant paths at first to the ambuscade where the soul is emmeshed and overthrown, and then he turns as the hard task-master and exacts his tribute.

Thus it was with the children of israel. They did evil in the sight of brack. They did evil in the sight of brack. They did evil in the land of the Lord and served shailm, and forsook the Lord God of their fathers, so that the Lord delivered them into the hands of their fathers, to that the Lord delivered them into the hands of their fathers, so that they could not any longer stand before them, and they were in great distress.

could not any ionizer stand oesore them, and they were in great discrete. Things had gone from bad to worse until at last the king of Mesopotamia had descended upon the land, had sadued the cities, and had exacted a large tribute, which was crievous burden for the people to hear. And if the full amount of the treasure was not forthcoming he sent his soldiers to force payment. Now when the people of israel became first to mingle with the people about them, there were those in israel who raised the voice of warning and protest, that God had said that they should have no dealings with the nations about them, but the cry of bigotry and narrow-nindedness was raised, and the few found themselves standing alone in their loyalty to God. They were branded as cranks and enemies of the true progress of the nation, and the progressive and liberal element pointed to the growing prosperity of the nation prove that the free intercourse with the neighboring nations was no mon with it would be folly to cut off.

Thus the people reasoned, and would not listen to the certain for who strove to stem the popular wife open policy. And not only did the leaders among the liberals speak disparagingly of these, but in various ways they caused persecutions to be made upon them.

Now among those who had remained true to the precepts and teachings of Moses and Joshua and opposed the popular movement was Othniel, who in the days of Joshua had so bravely fought against the strong cities of Cansan and had overthrown by his own prowess Kitsith-speiper, and had thereby won the beautiful Achsah as his wife. The hitter enmity of those who were leading Israel astray seemed to center upon him and he found it expedient to withdraw from the midst of Israel and to dwell in a portion of his inheritance quite apart from them.

When this had been secomplished the false leaders congratulated the selves that now there was no his drance to their modernishing the nation of israel and making it like the great nations about them. In order to do this it was deemed necessary to introduce some of the social cue forms of the other nations, and this let to inter-marriages, and it was not long before the strange gods of the other nations had found their way into the clies of the israelites.

"And why should they not?" asked the liberals. "Do not these, our neighbors, sojourn among us to buy and sell, and why should we refuse to let them have their gods to worship and serve, even as we worship and serve, even and unattractive. And so it came to pass that in time their worship was corrupted, until finally it was an easy and natural step to share with their heathen associates and neighbors in the festive worship of the fow who had stood with him had oried out against this thing, but had met with such sharp rebuff and ridicule, that with great sorrow of heart they ceased further protest, realising that they must let the evil run its course.

And the evil was not long in bringing its penalty, for, weakened by their, sinful induigences, they were unable to withstand the demands of the king of Mesopotamia, who, learning of the richness of the country, descended upon it and placed it under tribute. Then was it that the burdens of oppresseion rested heavily upon the land. The king demanded more and more and as the tribute money was increased, the taskmasters multiplied to collect, the same. One day a group of men had gathered and were bemoaning their amhappy condition.

"Ah, if we had only listened to Othniel and the few who counseled with him," exclaimed one. "Where, now, is our bossted prosperity? Where now are the friends we made among the nations about us? Where now is the greatness and clory of our nation? Gone! Gone! And what hope is there for us? Where shall we go for one to help us?" At these words they all shoot their heads sorrowfully and were about to separate, when one of them spoke up and said:

"Let us go to Othniel. It may be that he will help us."

"But what can Othniel do against this powerful king of Mesopotamia?" spoke up another, dejectedly.

"But nevertheless let us go anyway," urged the other.

And even as they went the spirit of the Lord came upon Othniel and he went forth and met them in the way, and when he had gathered to himself an army be went out and made war upon the king of Mesopotamia and the Lord delivered him linto Unite's hand, and he judged the land, and the nation had peace for 40 years, even during the life of Othniel.

Alcohol a slow Poison.

A very large number of people in society are dying day by day, poisoned by alcoholic drinks without knowing it, without being supposed to be poisoned by them. I hardly know any more powerful source of disease than alcoholic drinks. I do not think it is known, but I know alcohol to be a most destructive poison. I say from my experience, that it is the most destructive poison. I say from the country.—Sir William Guil, M. D.

bring comfort or necessary improvements in the country places? Then why should the farmer patronize them? By actual test it has been found that the same goods can be procured as cheaply, if not at more reasonable prices, at home. Trade with your neighbor, whose interests are your interests, whose hand is aiways ready to assist you in time of trouble. Patronize those who patronize those who patronize hose the high control of the farmer's dealer than the farmer's dollar, earned by homes tentile in the farmer's dollar, earned by homest tell, should not be added to the blood money of these great mall order corporations. The farmer must join the local merchant and the country editor in battling this great peril that in creeping, creeping onward with great rapidity, and unless these forces are combined and their efforts prove increasing; the day is not far distant when the chance will be gone forever—the power will be too great to conquer.

Snakes Reared for Their Skins.

The idea that snakes are useless creatures and should be exterminated wherever found, will have to pass away, says the Slioe Trade Journal, as in Australia they are now being systematically reared for the sake of their skins, which have a considerable commercial value in London, Paris and New York. Snakeskin is the fashicable material for slippers, beits, bags, purses, lewel boxes, card cases, dreshiag-table accessories, etc. Rabbit trappers supplement their means considerably by catching young, snakes and extracting their polisonous fungs. The blacks are also expert, snake, catchess. To them the snake is an agreeable article of diet.

FUOLING THE PUBLIC

FRICKS OF THE TRAVELING RETAIL GROCERY AGENTS.

GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR

Price May Be Small, But the Are Expensive Even at That and Net Big Profits.

You may know something about the modus operand of the traveling 'groer, and how the house after paying him 25 per cent. commission still makes a princely profit. There may be some things, inside affairs that it is well that the people in general may know, It will be found on close investigation that the average Mercantill Supply company, Buyers' association or whatever name is used to guill the unsuspecting farmer, consists of one or two schemers, who have a small office room in some large city, and a back room in the near neighborhood where the "stories" are stored and the re-packing and the mixing done. The re-packing and the mixing done of sugar for $4.60; five cases of canned goods at $2.40 a case; three boxes of diried fruits at ten eents a pound, a few gallons of extract at a bargain and ten or 15 pounds of spices at a profit of 260 per cent, the order is sent to the "home office." There it is sent to the shade in the concernity at and is not a profit of 250 per cent, the order is sent to the wholesale grocery house which generally stands in with the concernity in the case of prunes, and packed in the packing of the packing

Where the Money is.

More than 40 per cent of the population of the United States proper lies in less than a dozen eastern states. These states are known as manufacturing states. In the banks of one, New York state, is contained nearly 40 per cent of the money of the country. New York city atone has in its banks 25 per cent. of the money in circulation. This has been made possible by the esuditions that enable the large cittes to draw trade from all sections of the country.—In fact, great cities must have support of a large territory. But one of the great evils and which injures the masses who are residents of agricultural district is the system of drawing support from local towns and communities to the cities. This system takes from the rural districts the surplus wealth that should be residued to build them up.

be resained to build them up.

The Drinking Orchid.

One of the most remarkable plants known to horticulturists is the drinking orchid, which is found in South America. This orchid takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty, by means of a tube which it lets down into the water. The tube when not in use is colled upon the top of the plant.

The formation of the orchid is different from others of its species, having sharp leaves, lancehead-shaped, growing round the root and radiating from it. From the center of the plant hangs the tube, about one-sighth of an inch thick and one-fourth of an inch wide. When touched it gradually contracts and rolls itself up in a spirallike coll. As a rule these orchids are to be found growing directly over the water, or where water has been, and in the latter case it is almost pathetic to see how the tube will work its way over the ground to a pool or river.

NOT A GOOD SYSTEM.

How the Mall Order Business Injures the Agricultural Sections.

We must admit that the mail order system is a legitimate business If it is carried on legitimately. It is a great American privilege to carry on trade in this way. Yet the principle from an American standpoint or any other standpoint that is consistent with equal rights for all is entirely wrongs. Through the mail order system the merchants suffer a direct loss. To them it is an unfair competition. It diverts trade from established channels. The loss of the merchants in the local town means a loss to the town itself, to every resident of the town and the surrounding community. It is the business of the city or town that makes it a live place or a dead one. Dependent upon the activity of a town is to a great extent the value of all farm lands in its trade territory. Thus is the farmer affected by any system that causes a deterioration in his home town. Yet the farmers are the main supporters of the catalogue houses. They assist in feeding the snake that is stealing their eggs and they little realize it. They are as vitally laterested in the upbuilding of their home town as the merchant. It is for their home town as the merchant in the community that the town is there. There is a more vital phase of the question that few farmers realize. That is the evils resulting from the vast capital that is concentrated in the large financial centers. It is this surplus of money that makes it easy to build up trusts and combinations. These trusts affect the sfairs and the prosperity of the farmer. He does not stop to think that when he sends hit money to the distant concern that he is doing just as much to help along the trusts.

HELPS FOR TOWN BUILDERS.

Some years ago on bill boards and street cars and in the pages of the magazines were run a series of advertising cards the prominent feature of which was "Spotless Town." There can be little doubt as to the wholesome lessons taught by this unique advertisement. The town that is not kept in good condition, its walks in good repair, its streets well graded, and all neat and clean, is a reflection upon the residen..." of the place, and its avidence that the town is already dead or fast dying. Should you make a good 'Impression upon atrangers, keep streets clean, business places at tractive, and don't forget that the front yards and the general conditions of the residences indicate the character of the people who reside in them.

Residents of agricultural sections

ter of the people who reside in them.

Residents of agricultural sections who a few years ago looked upon the automobile as a nuisance, are beginning to realize that it is a great factor in road improvement, and has brought about renewed interest in country roads and their betterment, with a converse possible benefit to the farmers. It is as much to the interest of the people of a town that there be good roads leading to it, as it is to the fermers who must use them in hauling their goods to market.

Ing their goods to market.

There is a vast difference in the farmers of to-day and the farmers of a quarter of a century ago. It is won derful how the improvements brought into existence in a single generation will change conditions. Every inno vation that makes life in the towns more desirable, also finds a way of conferring a benefit upon the farmers. No longer need for the resident of the farm district to, not have all the up to-date things that can be found in the finest city homes. The telephone and the rural delivery has brought him within a "stone throw" of the city.

Living for the Children.

Froebel's sentiment "Come, let us live for our children' resis on a sound philosophic basis. To live for them is to call out the noblest impulses of parenthood. And we cannot live for them in the truset sense until we be come familiar with their needs. It is in the endeavor to meet those needs in the largest way possible that we find our own characters richly recompensed in strong and well-developed parenthood. We practically become what we are by what we have done on left undone, what we are willing or unwilling to do for our childron. The principle is universait, and chould find its extension and application among children at all times and in all places. Has not the church lost ground ir failing to recognize the primary and fundamental place of the child in so clety? If so, it is obvious how that lost ground may be recovered.—Homl lette Review.

Anticipating Age.
Why do people allow themselves to fret about getting old? There are those who anticipate it and fear it as if it were the most melancholy fate that could 'befall' one, and many of them have never been really young in snirit.

Every morning from a little room of a great white house on the eastern shore of the Nile, at Assouan, is elicked by telegraph to Cairo the question: "How much water?" The answer comes, so many thousand gallons leas. A button is pressed, the water which flows under the from bridge at Cairo is increased or diminished some ten days later in accordance with the telegraphic answer and the intervening valley between Assouan and Cairo has a little more or a little less water on its surface. The man at the button may bring joy or sorrow to thousands of little farms—It is all according to the message he receives.

From the great white house there extends across the river a grante wall or adm 150 feet high. Capable of Producing a Noisy Morning Chorus.

The chipmunk is not usually considered much of a songbird, but according to Ernest Thompson Seton he is quite a success in a vocal role. In Mantloba the chipmunk comes above ground about the first or second week of April, says Mr. Seton in Success. Mounted on some log or root, it reiterates a loud chirpy. 'Chuck-chuck-chuck': 'Other chipmunks run forth into the sunlight, and seeking some perch add their 'Chuck-chuck-chuck' to the spring salute.' They are active from this time of the year on, and their sunsy morning cherus is not by any means confined to that original outburst. On April 29, 1905, at Cos Cob, I heard a chipmunk in full song. He kept it up for It minutes without ceasing, and uttered 130 chirps to the minute. He got no reply, though he worked very hard and seemed tired toward the list. On May 28, 1905, at Cos Cob, I heard a chipmunk singing. He kept it up for the minutes, uttering three chirps to the secend.

LIFE INSURANCE A SACRED

Responsibilities of Officers and Di-

Evidently President Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance company, has learned the great leason of the times with respect to the responsibility and duty of directors of corporations. Speaking to the new board of trustees, on the occasion of his election to the presidency, he emphasised the fact that "life insurance is more than a private business, that life insurance trustees are public servants, charged at once with the obligations of public service and with the responsibilities that attach to a going business which at the same time must be administered as a lrust.

He also realizes that zimilar responsibilities rest upon the cincer of the company. "I understand," he save, "your anxiety in selecting the men who are day by day to carry this burden for you, who are to discharge this trust in your behalf, who are to administer for the benefit of the people involved the multitudinous and exacting details to which it is impossible for you to give personal attention. My long connection with the New York Life—covering nearly twenty years—my service in about every branch of the company's working organization, gives me, as I believe, a profound appreciation, not merely of the heavy burden you have placed on my shoulders, but of the standards of faith, the standards of integrity, which must be maintained at all times hy the man who serves you and the policyholders in this high office."

Best of all, perhaps, he feels that words are cheep, and that the public will be satisfied with nothing short of performance. "My thanks, therefore," he continues, "for an hohor which out-ranks any distinction within the reach of my ambition, cannot be expressed in words; they must be read out of the record I make day by day."

for ever so long: something that I do not have to stop to prepare and still is nourishing."

Grape-Nuts is the most scientifically made food on the market. It is perfectly and completely cooked at the factory and can be served at an instant's notice, either with rich cold cream, or with hot milk if a hot dish is desired. When milk or water is used, a little sugar should be added, but when cold cream is used alone the natural grape-sugar, which can be seen glistening on the granules, is sufficiently sweet to satisfy the palate. This grape-sugar is not poured over the granules, as some people think, but exudes from the granules in the process of manufacture, when the starch of the grains is changed from starch to grape-sugar by the process of manufacture. This, in effect, is the first act of Aigeshini. Herefore, Grape-Nuts food is pre-digested and is most perfectly assimilated by the very weakest stomach. "There's a Reason."

After the abooting it developed that Henry Givens, son of the murdered man, had cut young Durham, who refased to rey his way into the picnic grounds. Durham returned to his store at Junction City and calling upon Sheriff George Coalter, at Danville, asked him to come down to Junction City and arrest him. The negroes were much excited over the shooting and threats were made to lynch Durham, but race war was sverted by Durham's timely arrest. Young Durham is in a serious condition.

OILED HIS HORSE

And Then Applied a Match—Farmer's Unhappy Mistake,

Lexington, Ky.—Silas McCord, a farmer living on Tea Run, in Fleming county, cremsted his family horse in his efforts to rid it of lice. He saturated the horse with coal oil, and after the oil had penetrated the horse's akin, smeared it over with a coat of grease. Seeing few of the vermin congreate McCord applied a lighted match to the grease to fry the pests, and the horse roasted to death in a few minutes. McCord has been arrested.

THE STORY.

Sin is a treacherous guide, a mighty conqueror, a relentiess (ask master. He leads by pieusant paths at first to the ambuscade where the soul is emeshed and overthrown, and then he turns as the hard task-master and exacts his tribute.

Thus it was with the children of israel. They did evil in the sight of he Lord and served Baalin, and for-sook the Lord and served Baalin, and for-sook the Lord God of their fathers, so that the Lord delivered them into the bands of spollers that spolled hem and into the hands of their memics round about, so that they could not any longer stand before them, and they were in great discusses.

Things had gone from bad to worse until at last the king of Mesopotamia had descended upon the land, old and the streets which was strieves burden for the people to bear. And if the full amount of the treasure was not fortheoning he sent his solders to force payment.

Now when the people of Israel began frest to mingle with the people about them, there were those in Israel who raised the voice of warming and protest, that God had said that they should have no dealings with the nations about them, but the cry of bigotry and narrow-mindedness with the nations and the progress was raised, and the fow found them selves standing alone in their low-alty to God. They were branded as cranks and enemies of the true progress of the nation, and the progressive and liberal element pointed to the growing prosperity of the nation with the neighboring nations was a boson which it would be foily to cut off.

Now among those who had remained true to the precepts and teachings of Moses and Joshua and ouposed the popular movement was Othnicl, who in the days of Joshua had so bravely fought against the strong cities of Canaan and had overthrown by his own prowess kirright-speaker, and had thereby won the beautiful Achaeh as his wife. The bitter ennilty of those who were leading Israel natray seemed to center upon him and he found it expedient to withdraw from the midst of Israel and to dwell in a portion of his inheritance quite apart from them.

When this had been accomplished the false leaders congratuiated then-selves that now there was no hiddrance to their modernising the nation of Israel and making it like the great nathous should be the false leaders congratuiated then-selves that now there was no hiddrance to their modernising the nation of Israel and making it like the great nathous should be the false leaders congratuiated then-selves that now there was no hiddrance to their modernising the nation of Israel and making it like the great nathous should be a nation of the other nations, and this and in the control of the social customs of the other nations, and this and indicates had found their way in the clitter of the Israelites. One day a group of men had gathered and were bemoaning their mhappy condition.

"Ab. If we had only listened to Othniet and the few Who counseled with him," exclaimed one. "Where, now, is our boasted prospority? Where now are the friends we made among the nations about us? Where now is the greatness and glory our nation? Gone! Gone: And what hope is there for us? Where now is the greatness and glory our nation? Gone Gone: And what hope is there for us? Where now is the greatness and proy our nation? Gone! Holp us?"

At these words they all shook their heads sorrowfully and were about to separate, when one of them spoke up and said:

"But moverful king of Mesopotamia?" spoke up another, dejectedly.

"But nevertheless left us go anyway," urged the other.

And even as they went the spirit of the Lord came upon Othniel and he went forth and met them in the way, and when he had gathered to himself an army he went out and made war upon the king of Mesopotamia and the Lord delivered him into Othniel's hand, and he judged the land, and the nation had peace for 40 years, even during the life of Othniel.

But let us look at a few of the simple reasons why the farmer should patronize the home dealer. In the first place their latterests are centered in each other. Byery season of plenty on the farm mean a prospersons year to the country merchant. So in the prosperity of the farmer does the country merchant expect to gain. The farmer finds, therefore, in the country dealer, a stauach and loyal friend and a defender of the rights. They pay taxes together, live pide by side, their children pits and go to school together. When the arrops are poor or misfortune come, to whom does the farmer look? Not to the mail order magnate, but to his neighbor, the country merchant. Profits.

You may know something about the modus operand of the traveling 'groer, and how the house after paying bim 25 per cent, commission still makes a princely profit. There may be some things, inside affairs that it is weil that the people in general may know. It will be found on close invessingstion that the average Mercantile Supply company, Buyers' association or whatever name is used to guil the unsuspecting farmer, consists of one or two schemers, who have a small office room in some large city, and a back room in the near neighborhood where the "stores" are stored and the repeaching and the mixing are two important parts of the work of the "company." When the "representative" sells John Jones 100 pounds groods at $2.40 a case; three hoxes of dried fruits at ten sents a pound, a few gallous of extract at a bargain and ten or 15 pounds of spices at a profit of 200 per cent, the order is sent to the "home office." There it is recorded. The boy is sent down to the wholesale grocery house which generally stands in with the concern, brings hack a lot of ordinary hulk dried fruits, the cases of seconds or thirds, in canned goods, and the average run of poor spices. In the packing room the dried fruits are overhauled, washed up if possible as in the case of promounds, but only run from 18 to 22; branded with some fectitious mark and shipped out with the other supplies. The spices are dumped out, and again run through a mill with a lot of ground nut-shells, bark or other matter, and perhaps some bran or other cheap material is added. The extracts are of the cheapent class, synthetic, and the pure fruit flavors are products of colatar, doctored up with coloring matter to look good. The itabel is the only pure thing about it is the only pure thing about it is the only pure thing about it is a sheemer traveled over the country carrying with him samples of Ceylon teas hat cost only 20 cents a pound, and the funny thing about it was that there was no kicking, he-cause the farmers knew nothing as they thought that they had a

where the Money Is.

Where the Money Is.

More than 40 per cent. of the population of the United States proper lies in less than a dozen eastern states. These states are known as manufacturing states. It the banks of one. New York state, is contained nearly 40 per cent. of the money of the country. New York city alone has in its banks 25 per cent, of the money in circulation. This has been made possible by the esnditions that enable the large cities to draw trade from all sections of the country. In fact, great cities must have support of a large territory. But one of the great evils and which lajures the masses who are residents of agricultural district is the system of drawing support from local towns and communities to the cities. This system takes from the rural districts the surplus wealth that should be resisted to build them up.

The Drinking Orchid.

One of the most remarkable plants known to horticulturists its the drinking orchid, which is found in South America. This orchid takes a drink whenever it feels thirsty, by means of a tube which it leist down into the water. The tube when not in use is coiled upon the top of the plant.

The formation of the orchid is different from others of its species having sharp leaves, lancehead-shaped, growing round the root and radiating from it. From the center of the plant hangs the tube, about one-eighth of an inch thick and one-fourth of an inch thick and one-fourth of an inch wide. When touched it gradually contracts and rolls itself up in a spiral-like coil. As a rule these or-chids are to be found growing directly over the water, or where water has been, and in the latter case it is almost pathetic to see how the tune will work its way over the ground to a pool or river.

NOT A GOOD SYSTEM.

How the Mali Order Business Injur

How the Mail Order Susiness injures
the Agricultural Sections.

We must admit that the mail ordersystem is a legitimate business if it is carried on legitimately. It is a great American privilege to carry on trade in this way. Yet the principle from an American standpoint or any other standpoint that is consistent with equal rights for all is entirely wrongs.
Through the mail order-system-themerchants suffer a direct loss. To them it is an unfair competition. It diverts trade from established channels. The loss of the merchants in the local town means a loss to the town itself, to every resident of the town and the surrounding community. It is the business of the city or town that makes it a live place or a dead one. Dependent upon the activity of a town is to a great extent the value of all farm lands in its trade territory.
Thus is the farmer affected by any system that causes a deterioration in his home town. Yet the farmers area the main supporters of the catalogue, houses. They assist in feeding the snake that is stealing their eggs and they little realize it. They are as v'ttally, interested in the -uphuilding oil their home town as the merchant.—It is for their benefit as well as for all in the community that the town is there.
There is a more vital phase of the question that few farmers realize.
That is the evils resulting from the vast capital that is concentrated in the large financial centers. It is this surplus of money that makes it easy to build up trusts and combinations.
These trust affect the affairs and the prosperity of the farmer. He does not stop to think that when he sends his money to the distant concern that he is doing just so much to help along the trusts.

Some years ago on bill hoards and street cars and in the pages of the magazines were run a series of advertising cards the prominent feature of which was "Spotless Town." There can be little doubt as to the whole-some lessons taught by this unique advertisement. The town that is not kept in good condition, its walks in good repair, its streets well graded, and all neat and clean, is a reflection upon the residents of the place, and is evidence that the town is already upon the residents of the place, and is evidence that the town is already, dead or fast dying. Should you make a good impression upon strangers, keep streets clean, business places attractive, and don't forget that the front yards and the general conditions of the residences indicate the character of the people who reside in them.

Residents of agricultural sections who a few years ago looked upon the automobile as a nuisance, are heginning to realize that it is a great factor in road improvement, and has brought about renewed interest in country roads and their hetterment, with a corresponding benefit to the farmers. It is as much to the interest of the people of a town that there he good roads leading to it, as it is to the farmers who must use them in hauling their goods to market.

There is a vast difference in the farmers of to-day and the farmers of a quarter of a century ago. It is wonderful how the improvements-brought into existence in a single generation will change conditions. Every innovation that makes life in the towns more desirable, also finds a way of conferring a henefit upon the farmers. No longer need for the resident of the farm district to not have all the uptro-date things that can be found in the finest city homes. The telephone and the rural -delivery has brought him within a "stone throw" of the city.

Froehel's sentiment "Come, let us live for our children" rests on a sound philosophic basis. To live for tem is to call, out the noblest impuises of parenthood. And we cannot live for them in the truset sense until we he come familiar with their needs. It is in the endeavor to meet those need in the largest way possible that we find our own characters richly recompensed in strong and well-developed parenthood. We practically become what we are by what we have done or left undone, what we are willing or unwilling to do for our children. The principle is universal, and caould find its extension and application among children at all times and h all places Hiss not the church lost ground it failing to recognize the primary and fundamental-place of, the child in society? Anticipating Age.

Why do people allow themselves to fret about getting old? There are those who anticipate it and fear it as if it were the most melancholy fate that could befall one, and many of them have never been really young in spirit.

And youth is more a matter of spirit than it is of body. Enthusiasm, interest in everything, warmth o heart and hreadth of feeling, are the qualities that stand for youth.

The Guille of the Greeks.

At first the more thoughtful ones regarded the gift suspiciously. Then, taking further-thought, they said, one to the other:

W WATER IN THE RIVER REGULATED FOR HARVESTS.

Every morning from a little room of a great white house on the eastern shore of the Nile, at Assouan, is olicited by telegraph to Calro the question: "How much water?" The answer comes, so many thousand gallons less. A button is pressed, the water which flows under the flron bridge at Cairo is increased or diminished some ten days later in accordance with the telegraphic answer and the intervening valley between Assouan and Cairo has a little more or a little less water on its surface. The man at the button may bring joy or sorrow to thousands of little farms—it is all according to the message he receives.

From the great white house there extends across the river a granite wall or dam 150 feet high. Half way up this wall, and stretching its entire length, a line of shutters opens or closes by a pressure of the hulwon. In the winter months a huge iske expands to the southward, which has every appearance of being a flood, for, in certain-places, the tops of palm trees are discernible above its surface, and the summits of inundated ruins apparently mark the sites of sunken citles. As the days go by, and Cairo demands more and more water, the paim trees and the ruins seem to rise from their was-ry beds, until, in June and early July, the river flows freely with all its historic indolence.

Still the cry for water is insatiable, and now the 150 feet of granite wall will be lengthened by 23 feet, which will double the power of the man at the hutton, and after that no more palms or ruins will anfold themselves, as the hot months come, from the surface of the lake. The palm trees will not be missed, hut what of the ruins. That is the tribute of the past which modern agricultural Egypt is called upon to pay.

Just south of the granite wall is the Island which holds the amphiblous ruins. Twenty-three feet of granite wall since of Oslics. A temple of 14 columns rises on its eastern bank, and on its western is the great temple of 15 called upon to pay.

Capable of Producing a Noisy Mornin Chorus.

The chipmunk is not usually considered much of a songbird, but according to Ernest Thompson Seten he is quite a success in a vocal role. In Manitoba the chipmunk comes above ground about the first or second week of April, says Mr. Seton in Success. Mounted on some log or root, it relierates a loud chirpy "Chuck-chuck-chuck!" Other chipmunks run forth into the sunlight, and seeking some perch add their "Chuck-chuck-chuck" to the spring salute. They are active from this time of the year on, and their sunay morning chorus is not by any means confined to that original outburst. On April 29, 1905, at Coo Cob, I heard a chipmunk in full song. He kepf it up for 1H minutes without ceasing, and uttered 130 chirps to the minute. He got no reply, though he worked very hard and seemed tired toward the last. On May 28, 1905, at Cos Cob, I heard a chipmunk singing. He kepi it up for the eminutes, uttering three chirps to the second.

Careful Public Guardian.

One of the pillars of the city ordinances is a traffic policeman stationed at Fourth avenue and Twenty-third street. He loses no opportunity of making war on persons who drop hanan peels in the street. He pounces upon an offender and orders him to pick up the slippery menace to life and limb and to carry it to a receptacle for waste on the sidewalks.

LIFE INSURANCE A SACRED TRUST.

Responsibilities of Officers and Di-rectors.

Evidently President Kingsley of the New York Life Insurance company has learned the great lesson of the times with respect to the responsibility-and duty-of directors of corporations. Speaking to the new board of trustees; on the occasion of his election to the presidency, he emphasized the fact that "life insurance is more than a private business, that life insurance trustees are public servants, charged at once with the obligations of public service and with the responsibilities that attach to a going husiness which at the same time must he administered as a trust."

He also realizes that similar responsibilities rest upon the "Green of the company." If understand," he says, "your anxiety in selecting the men who are day hy day to carry this hurden for you, who are to discharge this trust in your hehalf, who are to administer for the benefit of the people involved the multitudinous and exacting details to which it is impossible for you to give personal attention. My long connection with the New York Life—covering nearly, twenty years—my service in about every branch of the company's working organization, gives me, as I helleve, a profound appreciation, not merely of the heavy hurden you have placed on my shoulders, hut of the standards of faith, the standards of integrity, which must be metalianed at all times by the man who serves you and the policyholders in this high office."

Best of all, perhaps, he feels that words are cheap, and that the public will be satisfied with nothing short of performance. "My thanks, therefore," he continues, "for an honor which out-ranks any distinction within the reach of my amhitton, cannot be expressed in words; they must be read out of the record i make day by day."

Orape-Nuts Is the most scientifically made food on the market. It is perfectly and completely cooked at the factory and can be served at an instant's notice, either with rich cold cream, or with hot milk if a hot dish is desired. When milk or water is used, a little sugar should be added, but when cold cream is used along, the natural grape-sugar, which can be seen glistening on the granules, is sufficiently sweet to satisfy the painter. THE NEW SPECIAL JUDGE

May Adjourn Hargis Trial Until a

Lexington, Ky.—Through the appointment of Judge W. B. Moody, of Eminence, as the special judge to try the Hargis cases at Sandy Hook, there is a new phase placed on the case. Attorney B. R. Jouett, for the prosecution, said that the thought Moody was a good appointment, and was thoroughly satisfied with him. Jouett said, however, he did not know when the case would begin, as it was necessary to get an order from the judge for the personal that the control of the case would begin, as it was necessary to get an order from the judge for the personal that the case have been subpopenaed, and Jouett did not know that Moody had heen appointed until notified.

He said he would not be surprised to see Judge Moody call the case, and then adjourn the trial until the authorease could be served on the witnesses.

Commonwealth's Attorney J. P. Adams, of Beattyville, returned here from Hot Springs cured of his throat trouble. He signified his willingness to go to Sandy Hook and assist Commonwealth's Attorney John Waugh conduct the prosecution.
